Former Official Raps New U.S. Military Plan

Deplores Fight Against Trading With Red China

WASHINGTON, March 27 (AP)— Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson broke a year-long silence on public issues tonight to assail the Dulles doctrine of "massive retaliation" against new Communist aggression.

He argued that the results of such a policy could weaken the great anti-Communist alliances "because our allies would rightly believe that their very existence was being recklessly exposed to unnecessary risks."

He asserted further that a democratic nation could in fact use massive atomic retaliation only against an all-out enemy assault and the threat of such retaliation therefore would not prevent small aggressions.

Acheson also took occasion, in an article to be published in tomorrow morning's New York Times, to denounce use of home front "fear of communism" to "raise doubts about our allies" and attack such nations as Britain which trade with or recognize Red China.

In this he joined issue with his long-time political foe, Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), who has called for an end of aid to Britain unless it cut off trade with Communist China.

"One thing can be said of this line of argument," Acheson wrote. "It strikes straight at the heart of our policy, past and present.

"It is the last word in isolationism. It bypasses discussion of the wisdom and necessity of appliances, by seeking to destroy the allies themselves."

Acheson served as secretary of state in the Truman Cabinet for four years until he turned over the office to his Republican successor, John Foster Dulles, in January, 1953. Acheson strongly emphasized the importance he attaches to the maintenance of coalitions such as the North Atlantic alliance, to offset Soviet power. He said American diplomacy should aim to preserve and strengthen the coalitions.

Acheson declared that it has been argued that the United States can not afford another war like that in Korea but he said that "such a war is the only kind that we or anyone else can afford."

"Only a madman would attempt to avoid it by plunging into the unspeakable disaster of a world war."

Acheson did not challenge the necessity of possesing "retaliatory striking power effective to deter general war." In fact, he said that the cost of such power actually is more "than we are now spending."

He called for more air defense "of which we have far too little

Barkley To Make Race For Senate

PADUCAH, Ky., March 27—UP—Former Vice President Alben W. Barkley stepped out of political retirement at the age of 76 Saturday night by announcing he will seek to regain the United States Senate seat he held for 22 years.

Barkley, who said he feels as spry as ever, announced from his stately Southern home, "The Angles," that he was not making the race to gratify any personal ambition, but in answer to the requests of many Kentuckians.

"When I retured from public life a year ago, I had no intention or desire ever to return to it, and Mrs. Barkley and my family share that attitude " he said, but went on to say that "if the people of this state feel I can render to them and to the nation further service . . . I am ready to undertake the task with such ability and devotion as God has given me."

Assured of the Democratic nomination in August, Barkley will oppose the incumbent Republican, Senator John Sherman Coope Somerset, in a battle that could prove vital to control of the Senate in the 84th Congress next year. At present, the Senate has 48 Democrats, 47 Republicans and one Independent.

Curtain Lifted For A Peep At—

U.S. Arsenal Of Horror Weapons

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON, March 27 (AP)—Military science has, or is devising, a selective arsenal of weapons to kill multitudes in a split-second, minutes or years.

The thermonuclear bomb, spectacular in its savage performance, is getting major popular attention now because of the Pacific islands tests and the fantastic power revealed.

But behind the scenes, in obscure laboratories and proving grounds, scientists are working in other fields, improving and perfecting radiological, gas and germ warfare.

The United States has no monopoly on the general principles of the new weapons, although it may possess superiority in them and hold a good lead in the means for delivering all or any of them if an enemy compels that course.

Overshadowed by the official announcements and speculation about the H-bomb and the A-bomb, which kill in the twinkling of an eye, is the so-called "C-bomb."

Actually, a "C-bomb," in itself, will not be an explosive weapon designed primarily for mass destruction by blast and heat but a deadly vehicle for radiological warfare. It would be an additive to a powerful explosive weapon, like a fusion or fission bomb. The explosion would disseminate the radioactivity impregnated in the element cobalt—whence comes the name "C-bomb."

As the March 1 test at Bikini demonstrated, an exploding H-bomb generates an immense amount of radioactivity incidental to the fusion-explosion process. But, the "ash" and contaminated moisture from a fission or fusion bomb loses its poisonous quality rapidly.

This is an entirely "satisfactory" characteristic for some military operations. However, strategists foresee the possibility that in an all-out war situations might occur where there would be need for other means of killing or incapacitating large number of enemy troops or war goods workers or, more important, of rendering a big area of a nation uninhabitable for a period of weeks, months or years.

Thus, it might be unnecessary to kill, but merely to drive an enemy out of an area.

The natural "fall-out" of radiated material from an atomic cloud, with its short life, would be inadequate. The problem is to keep alive, at a deadly high level, the radioactive contamination. And in the mineral element cobalt military scientists are finding their answer.

Cobalt is not fissionable, like uranium nor fusionable like hydrogen. But some forms, such as the element cobalt 60, has a prolonged radioactive life when impregnated. Its dangerous contamination can last for several years. But of equal significance militarily, other atomic forms of the element have much shorter life spans. So there is selectivity for the duration of contamination—it can be days or years. If the military plan requires friendly forces

Colleges Of Louisiana Begin Battle For Funds Before Lawmakers Meet

BATON ROUGE—UP—The extra-curricular fight for funds has started in earnest between the state's colleges and universities, and it grew a little warmer this week in brief skirmishes after the joint fiscal committee's next-to-last open meeting here.

After hearing requests of Northeast State College and McNeese State, both of which were increased from two-to four-year colleges by the 1950 legislature, Rep. L. D. Napper of Ruston asked the committee to require the state board of education to take a stand, before the legislative session in May, on whether it favored continuing both schools on a four-year basis.

This measure passed handily, and prompted Sen. Charles Duchein of Baton Rouge to move a resolution of wider scope along the same lines. He proposed having the state board and the Louisiana State University board of supervisors go on record expressing an opinion of any laws affecting state colleges or universities that might come up in the legislature.

Stiff opposition to that measure was quick in coming, particularly from the New Orleans members, who probably sniffed opposition to the two four-year day colleges mentioned for New Orleans. Some of them claimed that such recommendations were not within the scope of the committe's functions. The vote was delayed for various reasons until the second day, and chairman Bryan Lehmann defeated it by breaking a 9-9 vote. The Norco representative sided with New Orleans.

Later in the week, some 15 Northeast Louisiana legislators who were concerned over the debate on McNeese and Northeast announced they would oppose any effort to change the status of the two schools. They cited per-student costs and said costs were less for the two than for any other state college.

President Lewis Slater of Northeast had cited the fact that Louisiana State University has only 35 per cent of the state's college enrollment but gets 55 per cent of the appropriations for education.

LSU responded quickly to both Slater and the legislators. The state colleges, it said, teach undergraduates while LSU teaches graduates an professional students in addition and carries on two other important functions as well—research and extension.

Furthermore, it said that any cost-per-student figures derived by dividing total appropriations by the number of students would be misleading. Slater had told the fiscal committee that the cost per student at Northeast was $487 a year. LSU said the cost for undergraduates on the Baton Rouge campus was only $461 a year. And so it goes.

Lease Extensions In Cornie Lake Area Are Sought

FARMERVILLE, March 27 (Special)—Harvey G. Fields, prominent Farmerville attorney, left last night for Washington and New York to represent Dallas, Shreveport and Monroe oil interests who desire to drill in the Cornie Lake area near here. While in Washington, he will visit several governmental officials, including the chief of the mineral division of the Bureau of mines and minerals.

Fields will appear before the department of interior and bureau of mines and minerals to present an application asking for recognition of leases covering the Cornie Lake project and one other area in behalf of developers and oil operators and residents of Arkansas and Louisiana. The area is a wildlife and soil conservation project and was sold to the United States government in 1936 and 1937. Fields will argue in behalf of those citizens who sold the property but reserved the mineral rights.

The attorney was successful in getting the federal government to recognize the life of leases for 25, which brought about a reversal of a former opinion that allowed only 10 years.

While in Washington, he will visit Senator Ellender and Congressmen Long and Brooks, who will sponsor his introduction to the department. He will also visit Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., and from there go to New York on a business trip.

6 Arkansas Solons Seek Re-Election

WASHINGTON, March 27—UP—The six Arkansas members of the House, all Democrats, announced simultaneously Saturday they will be candidates for re-election.

They are Reps. E. C. Gathings, Wilbur D. Mills, James W. Trimble, Oren Harris, Brooks Hays and W. F. Norrell.

The congressmen formally filed their papers with state election officials. They gathered in Norrell's office earlier this week to fill them out and pose for news pictures.

Proponents Gaining

Solons Ready For Perennial Fight Over Stock Law

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Friends and foes once again are choosing up sides for the never-ceasing legislative fight over whether cows should be shoved off Louisiana highways.

Proponents of the highway ban are attempting to stir public attention with everything from television debates to hand circulars.

Opponents, who insist they speak for the little guy unable to get land from the big boys, are engineering a compromise idea calling for the state to fence main highways.

To touch statistics, state police reports show the year-by-year totals of motor vehicle accidents involving livestock. The number in 1950 was 152 with three persons killed and 21 injured. The number in 1953 was 570 with two killed and 91 injured.

Rep. Percy Roberts of East Baton Rouge Parish, champion of clearing out the cattle to save motorists' lives, is getting ready for his third fight on the issue.

This time, he says he hopes vote swapping won't drygulch the stock law bill. His last bill in the 1952 session couldn't even get out of committee.

"Two years ago," he says, "a senator and two representatives—I won't name them—were among the bitter foes of such legislation. Today they are for it. Some time ago a motorist in their district swung out to dodge a cow and killed a child."

Roberts, chairman of a legislative study group on the stock law, and Sen. M. Eloi Girard of Lafayette, have drafted a bill outlawing cattle on major highways where the daily traffic count is 1,000 vehicles or more.

Their bill names each highway and the highway sections in open range parishes where the ban would apply. Under this law, state police, sheriffs and constables

Dodge Resigns As Director Of U. S. Budget

Going Back To Banking Job In Detroit Soon

WASHINGTON, March 27 (AP)—Joseph M. Dodge, who was President Eisenhower's first official appointee, is resigning as director of the budget April 15 to return to his banking job in Detroit.

Dodge, 63, reminded Eisenhower in his letter of resignation of his intention to leave "as soon as practicable" after the 1955 budget was completed and expressed regret that the time had come.

In a "Dear Joe" reply, Eisenhower accepted the resignation "only with the greatest reluctance" and said he would sorely miss Dodge's advice and counsel. Asserting Dodge's services had been "invaluable to the country," Eisenhower added:

"Your competence and knowledge in an exceedingly difficult field have immeasurably helped solve the gigantic fiscal and management problems that have faced this administration."

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich), a friend of Dodge, said the budget director had stayed longer than his original plans for a year's service.

Ferguson said he is confident that Dodge's resignation was not a result of differences with the administration or disappointment with congressional decisions on budget matters.

The White House said no successor ha been chosen. The No. 2 man in the bureau is Rowland R. Hughes, a vice president on leave of the National City Bank of New York who was brought here by Dodge to be deputy director.

Friends and associates of Dodge agreed with Sen. Ferguson and James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, that Dodge had taken the job on a temporary basis only.

Now, having helped in the transition from a Democratic to a Republican regime and in the preparation of Eisenhower's first complete budget, they said he wanted to return to his post as chairman of the board of the Detroit bank.

He served as financial adviser to Gen. Eisenhower in Europe and to Gen. MacArthur in Japan as well as numerous other assignments, and became known as a hard man with a dollar and a firm believer in balanced budgets.

Friends said the financial climate as it has been developing in Washington held no great appeal to him.

Eisenhower said last Wednesday the economic situation has not reached a point where slam bang emergency measures are needed and Secretary of Commerce Weeks said earlier in the week that the economy is "in excellent shape."

But Weeks added, in a speech at Toronto, that the government is prepared to use without hesitation "new monetary policy, new tax revisions, new incentives to business expansion and employment, large scale public works and whatever further public spending and legislation are needed to cope with an emergency."

Dodge's letter of resignation was dated Feb. 26, at a time when House Republican leaders were expressing confidence that the excise tax reduction bill which passed the Senate last Thursday night would be enacted.

This measure, which now needs only adjustment of Senate-House differences, will add about a billion dollars to the expected deficit of $2,900,000,000 for the coming fiscal year.

Sen. Knowland Opens Drive To Break Logjam

Move May Serve To Take Spotlight From McCarthy

WASHINGTON, March 27 (AP)—Republican leaders today spurred the Senate toward action on President Eisenhower's legislative program in an apparent effort to reclaim the spotlight from Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP floor leader, said he is trying to expedite committee action so the Senate can speed up work on major administration bills.

"It's obvious that if we are to hit our July 31 adjournment deadline, we can't wait until July to get these bills before the Senate," he said.

Sen. Ferguson of Michigan, also calling for speed, said he will ask the Senate Republican Policy Committee next Tuesday to outline a long-range schedule of Eisenhower priority bills.

Neither Ferguson, who heads the policy committee, nor Knowland would concede that the furore over McCarthy's clash with Army officials had delayed action on the legislative program.

Knowland said he knows "of no legislation that has been held up because of the McCarthy-Stevens controversy," although he said that public attention has been drawn away from the Eisenhower program by the row.

But the California Senator struck back at an assertion by Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell in Gary, Ind., last night that because of the McCarthy-Army row he doubts "if the average citizen even recalls that the

Farmerville Official Named As Louisiana's 'Mayor Of The Year'

By YVONNE BRETT
(State Editor)

BATON ROUGE, March 27—Mayor R. L. Turnage of Farmerville was named here today as Louisiana's "mayor of the year" at the closing session of the 17th annual Louisiana Municipal Convention which was attended by some 300 representatives of towns and cities throughout the state.

Monroe Mayor John E. Coon was unanimously elected as vice-president of the Fifth District Group of the association. Two other Monroe city officials, P. A. Poag, secretary-treasurer of the City of Monroe, and Dick Harper, city engineer, were named to official capacities in organizations within the association.

Poag was named secretary-treasurer of the Louisiana Municipal Clerks Association and Harper was elected president of the Louisiana Municipal Engineering Association.

Mayor Armand Biator of New Iberia was named president of the association and Frank Kees of Natchitoches was named executive vice-president. Mayor Turnage, in accepting the mayor of the year award said, "The honor does not belong to me, but to the many faithful and good citizens of Farmerville who worked together to make this possible."

The honor, conferred by the Louisiana Municipal Review, came as a result of the mayor's work in steering Farmerville through a four-year improvement program that changed it from a "down at the heels town" to one of the state's cleanest and most modern municipalities.

Mayor Turnage was selected from nine nominees, who were submitted by members of the Louisiana Municipal Association. The final selection was made by a board which included Mrs. Margaret Dixon, managing editor of the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate, who presented the award, and Edward Steimel of the Public Affairs Research Council, and Dr. Kimbrough Owen of the L.S.U. department of government.

The Farmerville mayor and members of the town council took office in 1949. The Review in conferring the award said that the town was in a dilapidated condition, streets were almost impassable, unsightly and ill-lighted. Sanitary conditions were named as a community disgrace and there was practically no police protection and fire protection was almost non-existent, Mrs. Dixon said.

Their first act was to declare that a state of emergency existed. They hired an engineering firm to make a survey and recommend just what was needed. They created a municipal board of health, three women and a Farmerville physician, to serve with the aldermen and started a clean-up program.

During the next four years after

New Crisis Near Between Naguib And Militarists

CAIRO, March 27—UP—Rival mobs of demonstrators roved Cairo Saturday screaming their support of the factions in a showdown fight between President Mohammed Naguib and the revolutionary council which launched him into power.

A spokesman for the council broke openly with Naguib by attacking him as "a tool of subversive elements"—apparently the civilian politicians who now are backing the president.

The wideopen rift between Naguib and the military junta, headed by its "strongman" Vice Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser, was brought into the open by spokesman Maj. Amin Shaker.

At a press conference Shaker said the president was the front for the "elements who fomented the disorders leading to the burning of Cairo, Jan. 26, 1952."

The spokesman said the elements behind Naguib were attempting "to stir up class hatred" and return to power.

Absentee Voting Is Opened Here

With absentee voting in the West Monroe elections opening Saturday morning only two persons had taken advantage of the situation, R. Dean Farr, Ouachita parish clerk of court, said late yesterday. The office was open from 8 a.m. until 12 noon Saturday.

Absentee voting will continue this week through Saturday, Farr pointed out. Office hours for the voting will be from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. until 12 noon Saturday. The voting is being held in the Ouachita parish clerk of court office, court house building.

The election for mayor and aldermen of the West Monroe city government will be held Tuesday, April 6. The offices of Ward 5 judge and city marshall will not come up for election until July.

Fred Mitchell, Widely Known, Dies Suddenly

Fred Mitchell, 63, widely known in the drygoods business, succumbed to a sudden heart attack at his home, 101 Stubbs Avenue, shortly after midnight Friday. He had returned from Shreveport, where business interests required his presence Friday, and soon after he returned and had retired he had a sudden attack. Death occurred in a half hour.

The funeral will be held in the Hixon Brothers Funeral chapel today at 2:30 p.m. Rev. Wayne W. Gray, minister of Covenant Presbyterian Church, will officiate.

Mr. Mitchell was an elder in that church and was one of the charter members and Highly interested in the progress of this organization. Interment will be in Riverview Burial Park.

Mr. Mitchell was born in Rison, Arkansas near Pine Bluff. He had resided in Monroe 40 years, and was first connected here with the old Monroe Drygoods company. Later and at the time of death he was heavily interested in the Lee Drygoods company in Shreveport and also he was large stockholder and general business manager of a group of drygoods stores in small towns in Louisiana. They were known as the Dixie Drygoods stores and there were 10 or them in Louisiana, and one in Mississippi.

Solons Ready For Perennial Fight Over Stock Law

Proponents of the highway ban are attempting to stir public attention with everything from television debates to hand circulars.

Rep. Percy Roberts of East Baton Rouge Parish, champion of clearing out the cattle to save motorists' lives, is getting ready for his third fight on the issue.

Dodge Resigns As Director Of U. S. Budget

Going Back To Banking Job In Detroit Soon

WASHINGTON, March 27 (AP)—Joseph M. Dodge, who was President Eisenhower's first official appointee, is resigning as director of the budget April 15 to return to his banking job in Detroit.

Dodge, 63, reminded Eisenhower in his letter of resignation of his intention to leave "as soon as practicable" after the 1955 budget was completed and expressed regret that the time had come.

In a "Dear Joe" reply, Eisenhower accepted the resignation "only with the greatest reluctance" and said he would sorely miss Dodge's advice and counsel. Asserting Dodge's services had been "invaluable to the country," Eisenhower added:

"Your competence and knowledge in an exceedingly difficult field have immeasurably helped solve the gigantic fiscal and management problems that have faced this administration."

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich), a friend of Dodge, said the budget director had stayed longer than his original plans for a year's service.

Ferguson said he is confident that Dodge's resignation was not a result of differences with the administration or disappointment with congressional decisions on budget matters.

The White House said no successor ha been chosen. The No. 2 man in the bureau is Rowland R. Hughes, a vice president on leave of the National City Bank of New York who was brought here by Dodge to be deputy director.

Friends and associates of Dodge agreed with Sen. Ferguson and James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, that Dodge had taken the job on a temporary basis only.

Now, having helped in the transition from a Democratic to a Republican regime and in the preparation of Eisenhower's first complete budget, they said he wanted to return to his post as chairman of the board of the Detroit bank.

He served as financial adviser to Gen. Eisenhower in Europe and to Gen. MacArthur in Japan as well as numerous other assignments, and became known as a hard man with a dollar and a firm believer in balanced budgets.

Friends said the financial climate as it has been developing in Washington held no great appeal to him.

Eisenhower said last Wednesday the economic situation has not reached a point where slam bang emergency measures are needed and Secretary of Commerce Weeks said earlier in the week that the economy is "in excellent shape."

But Weeks added, in a speech at Toronto, that the government is prepared to use without hesitation "new monetary policy, new tax revisions, new incentives to business expansion and employment, large scale public works and whatever further public spending and legislation are needed to cope with an emergency."

Dodge's letter of resignation was dated Feb. 26, at a time when House Republican leaders were expressing confidence that the excise tax reduction bill which passed the Senate last Thursday night would be enacted.

This measure, which now needs only adjustment of Senate-House differences, will add about a billion dollars to the expected deficit of $2,900,000,000 for the coming fiscal year.

Move May Serve To Take Spotlight From McCarthy

WASHINGTON, March 27 (AP)—Republican leaders today spurred the Senate toward action on President Eisenhower's legislative program in an apparent effort to reclaim the spotlight from Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP floor leader, said he is trying to expedite committee action so the Senate can speed up work on major administration bills.

"It's obvious that if we are to hit our July 31 adjournment deadline, we can't wait until July to get these bills before the Senate," he said.

Sen. Ferguson of Michigan, also calling for speed, said he will ask the Senate Republican Policy Committee next Tuesday to outline a long-range schedule of Eisenhower priority bills.

Neither Ferguson, who heads the policy committee, nor Knowland would concede that the furore over McCarthy's clash with Army officials had delayed action on the legislative program.

Knowland said he knows "of no legislation that has been held up because of the McCarthy-Stevens controversy," although he said that public attention has been drawn away from the Eisenhower program by the row.

But the California Senator struck back at an assertion by Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell in Gary, Ind., last night that because of the McCarthy-Army row he doubts "if the average citizen even recalls that the

By YVONNE BRETT
(State Editor)

BATON ROUGE, March 27—Mayor R. L. Turnage of Farmerville was named here today as Louisiana's "mayor of the year" at the closing session of the 17th annual Louisiana Municipal Convention which was attended by some 300 representatives of towns and cities throughout the state.

Monroe Mayor John E. Coon was unanimously elected as vice-president of the Fifth District Group of the association. Two other Monroe city officials, P. A. Poag, secretary-treasurer of the City of Monroe, and Dick Harper, city engineer, were named to official capacities in organizations within the association.

Poag was named secretary-treasurer of the Louisiana Municipal Clerks Association and Harper was elected president of the Louisiana Municipal Engineering Association.

Mayor Armand Biator of New Iberia was named president of the association and Frank Kees of Natchitoches was named executive vice-president. Mayor Turnage, in accepting the mayor of the year award said, "The honor does not belong to me, but to the many faithful and good citizens of Farmerville who worked together to make this possible."

The honor, conferred by the Louisiana Municipal Review, came as a result of the mayor's work in steering Farmerville through a four-year improvement program that changed it from a "down at the heels town" to one of the state's cleanest and most modern municipalities.

Mayor Turnage was selected from nine nominees, who were submitted by members of the Louisiana Municipal Association. The final selection was made by a board which included Mrs. Margaret Dixon, managing editor of the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate, who presented the award, and Edward Steimel of the Public Affairs Research Council, and Dr. Kimbrough Owen of the L.S.U. department of government.

The Farmerville mayor and members of the town council took office in 1949. The Review in conferring the award said that the town was in a dilapidated condition, streets were almost impassable, unsightly and ill-lighted. Sanitary conditions were named as a community disgrace and there was practically no police protection and fire protection was almost non-existent, Mrs. Dixon said.

Their first act was to declare that a state of emergency existed. They hired an engineering firm to make a survey and recommend just what was needed. They created a municipal board of health, three women and a Farmerville physician, to serve with the aldermen and started a clean-up program.

Colleges Of Louisiana Begin Battle For Funds Before Lawmakers Meet

BATON ROUGE—UP—The extra-curricular fight for funds has started in earnest between the state's colleges and universities, and it grew a little warmer this week in brief skirmishes after the joint fiscal committee's next-to-last open meeting here.

After hearing requests of Northeast State College and McNeese State, both of which were increased from two-to four-year colleges by the 1950 legislature, Rep. L. D. Napper of Ruston asked the committee to require the state board of education to take a stand, before the legislative session in May, on whether it favored continuing both schools on a four-year basis.

This measure passed handily, and prompted Sen. Charles Duchein of Baton Rouge to move a resolution of wider scope along the same lines. He proposed having the state board and the Louisiana State University board of supervisors go on record expressing an opinion of any laws affecting state colleges or universities that might come up in the legislature.

Stiff opposition to that measure was quick in coming, particularly from the New Orleans members, who probably sniffed opposition to the two four-year day colleges mentioned for New Orleans. Some of them claimed that such recommendations were not within the scope of the committe's functions. The vote was delayed for various reasons until the second day, and chairman Bryan Lehmann defeated it by breaking a 9-9 vote. The Norco representative sided with New Orleans.

Later in the week, some 15 Northeast Louisiana legislators who were concerned over the debate on McNeese and Northeast announced they would oppose any effort to change the status of the two schools. They cited per-student costs and said costs were less for the two than for any other state college.

President Lewis Slater of Northeast had cited the fact that Louisiana State University has only 35 per cent of the state's college enrollment but gets 55 per cent of the appropriations for education.

LSU responded quickly to both Slater and the legislators. The state colleges, it said, teach undergraduates while LSU teaches graduates an professional students in addition and carries on two other important functions as well—research and extension.

Furthermore, it said that any cost-per-student figures derived by dividing total appropriations by the number of students would be misleading. Slater had told the fiscal committee that the cost per student at Northeast was $487 a year. LSU said the cost for undergraduates on the Baton Rouge campus was only $461 a year. And so it goes.

Lease Extensions In Cornie Lake Area Are Sought

FARMERVILLE, March 27 (Special)—Harvey G. Fields, prominent Farmerville attorney, left last night for Washington and New York to represent Dallas, Shreveport and Monroe oil interests who desire to drill in the Cornie Lake area near here. While in Washington, he will visit several governmental officials, including the chief of the mineral division of the Bureau of mines and minerals.

Fields will appear before the department of interior and bureau of mines and minerals to present an application asking for recognition of leases covering the Cornie Lake project and one other area in behalf of developers and oil operators and residents of Arkansas and Louisiana. The area is a wildlife and soil conservation project and was sold to the United States government in 1936 and 1937. Fields will argue in behalf of those citizens who sold the property but reserved the mineral rights.

The attorney was successful in getting the federal government to recognize the life of leases for 25, which brought about a reversal of a former opinion that allowed only 10 years.

While in Washington, he will visit Senator Ellender and Congressmen Long and Brooks, who will sponsor his introduction to the department. He will also visit Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., and from there go to New York on a business trip.

6 Arkansas Solons Seek Re-Election

They are Reps. E. C. Gathings, Wilbur D. Mills, James W. Trimble, Oren Harris, Brooks Hays and W. F. Norrell.

The congressmen formally filed their papers with state election officials. They gathered in Norrell's office earlier this week to fill them out and pose for news pictures.

New Crisis Near Between Naguib And Militarists

CAIRO, March 27—UP—Rival mobs of demonstrators roved Cairo Saturday screaming their support of the factions in a showdown fight between President Mohammed Naguib and the revolutionary council which launched him into power.

A spokesman for the council broke openly with Naguib by attacking him as "a tool of subversive elements"—apparently the civilian politicians who now are backing the president.

The wideopen rift between Naguib and the military junta, headed by its "strongman" Vice Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser, was brought into the open by spokesman Maj. Amin Shaker.

At a press conference Shaker said the president was the front for the "elements who fomented the disorders leading to the burning of Cairo, Jan. 26, 1952."

The spokesman said the elements behind Naguib were attempting "to stir up class hatred" and return to power.

"If their efforts are successful law and order will break down," Shaker warned.

Strange Case Of Wrong Body Still Puzzles Police

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 27 (AP)—The strange case of the wrong body still mystified police today but the man first thought to have died in an Oklahoma auto accident was found "very much alive" in Dallas, Tex.

The mystery developed when Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Smith of Miami Beach discovered that the body of the man killed near Chickasha, Okla., Tuesday, and sent here for burial, was not that of their son, Herman, 23-year-old Korean War veteran.

Police of several states took part in the hunt and Herman finally was located late today at Dallas.

A tenant at Smith's residence in Dallas said Smith and Matthew Francis Grady of Dallas rented a garage apartment there March 17. Grady left about a week ago, according to the tenant, and Smith claimed Grady took Smith's car, clothing and some other possessions.

A social security card with Grady's name on it was found in the dead man's wallet.

Lt. Peter Stewart, acting superintendent of the Miami Beach Detective Bureau, said, "About all we really know is that we have a body on our hands. We're running down all possible clues and have sent the fingerprints to be checked by the FBI in Washington."

The body was mangled in the auto accident at Chickasha and was dressed in Smith's clothes. It was Smith's car and Smith's wallet was among the clothing.

Smith left Miami Beach two weeks ago to seek employment at Las Vegas, Nev., or El Paso, Tex. He was in New Orleans a week ago when his parents last heard from him. New Orleans authorities said they knew nothing about him.

The body was sent here for burial yesterday. The Smiths viewed it and said it was not their son. A fingerprint check added further proof the body was not that of Herman Smith.

to move in soon, the contamination can be made short-lived.

But suppose masses of an enemy must be killed quickly?

Here gas fits into the picture, specifically the nerve or "G" gas.

American military scientists now are ready to speak somewhat more freely of nerve gas. The reason is that this gas is not an exclusive American invention, but came originally from the laboratories of Nazi Germany.

Today, when a reporter made inquiry about nerve gas, the Pentagon for the first time was ready to provide details in the form of data prepared by the Army's Chemical Corps.

From the cold, medical phraseology of that data comes a picture of agonizing death.

There are several forms of so-called nerve gas. They are without color and without smell.

"The inhaled vapor from as few as three drops would prove fatal to a human being in about four minutes," the Corps says. "More toxic than the previously known chemical warfare agents, the nerve gases are designed to destroy life with suddenness; their presence is not ordinarily detectable by the senses, and we must rely upon detection devices to identify them."

Gas may be absorbed by breathing, through the skin or eyes or swallowed. Here is what happens to victims:

He becomes confused mentally; the skin turns blueish; there is vomiting; blood pressure drops sharply to the point of shock; the heart slows down; the pupils of the eyes constrict to pin-points. There is a "sudden inability to breath," coughing, choking spasm —and death.

Gas masks have been designed to cope with nerve gas. If detection is made soon enough and the material is readily available, atropine may help save the victim.

The other item in the arsenal of flexible weapons, capable of doing jobs in several ways, with or without death, is bacteriological warfare.

Like gas, it is difficult to detect quickly. One of the greatest eventual advantages of "BW," a weapon long under experiment but still not entirely perfected, is that it can be applied under the long-range plans of strategic operations. Its effect "hangs fire," may not be felt for the days or weeks required for incubation of a disease.

It is a weapon devised for use against cattle and crops as well as man. Used in this strategic manner, it could reduce or destroy food sources of a nation, wrecking the war goods production capability and destroying the will to fight.

Heavy Rains In Mississippi End Danger Of Fire

JACKSON, Miss., March 27 (AP)—Hefty rains along a broad strip across central Mississippi last night and today ended the danger of forest fires for a while.

Rains the last several days put "the whole state in good shape," the state Forestry Commission reported.

"If we get some grass growing and some more rain, we hope our troubles will be over for the spring."

Forest fires, especially in the lower Delta, have plagued foresters for several weeks.

The rainfall strip centered on a line between Vicksburg and Meridian, with heaviest falls in the Jackson area. Pelahatchie, 30 miles east of the capital, reported the heaviest fall during the 24 hours ending at noon today, 2.06 inches.

Other falls included: Meridian, 1.80; Crystal Springs, 1.69; Jackson, 1.58; Forest, 1.62; Louisville, 1.24; Union, 1.40; Laurel, 1.19; and Vicksburg, .43.

More scattered thundershowers and rain are forecast for north Mississippi tonight and tomorrow, with cooler temperatures.

Gusty winds of 30-40 miles per hour buffeted Jackson early today with water standing in streets at times.

Only scattered traces was reported along the Gulf Coast.

Gov. Robert F. Kennon reluctantly announced this week that his Korean trip has been postponed a while and indications are now that he probably won't be able to go at all.

The governor was packed and ready to leave Monday by military air transport when word came of the postponement, for some unknown reason, to about May 20, a time which would conflict with the legislative session.

President Eisenhower had invited Kennon and four other governors, all of them members of the executive committee of the National Governors' Conference, to make the week-long tour of Korea and report back to him and the nation on rehabilitation conditions there.

"If the situation is such that I feel I can without injustice to my duties as governor, I will make the trip later," Kennon said, "but from here it looks doubtful."

But assuming, he said, that the United States has or will obtain adequate military strength, "it may be suggested that the threat to use this power at places of our own choosing will deter lesser aggressions."

This suggests, Acheson argued, that the United States proposes "to strike not at the place that the aggressor group has chosen but at some other place . . . a place which would hurt them (the enemy) badly."

"It would be foolish to assume that this would not produce counter retaliation," he said, "which would hurt us as much, or perhaps more, and would be designed to prevent any further strikes by us. And then we would be in World War III.

"Strategic atomic bombing is not our first but our last resort . . . no responsible, certainly no democratic, government would use it on any lesser occasion (than an all-out attack by an enemy).

"So, as a threat, which we do not mean the policy would not deter."

The United States, he said, should rely upon its own defensive power and that of its allies and upon its atomic striking power "to deter all concerned from the overwhelming disaster of general war; and, in addition, to provide the means . . . to meet piecemeal or creeping aggression."

The fire department was completely reorganized, Mrs. Dixon said, and additional equipment was obtained, and reduction in fire insurance rates was the result. Four full-time officers were put on the police force and the number of cases appearing in the mayor's court dropped "dramatically" after an initial increase, Mrs. Dixon said.

Proof of the success of the Farmerville program comes from the fact that several engineering firms have visited the town to get data on its progress and how it was carried out.

Other legislative matters adopted by the association concerned retirement program, taking police chiefs and fire chiefs out from under civil service, financial aid to municipalities anl the shipment of natural gas out of the state.

Featured speakers on the final day's calendar of the three-day session were Victor E. Cooley, deputy director, Office of Defense Mobilization, Washington, D. C., and Allen C. Thompson, vice-president of the American Municipal Association and mayor of the City of Jackson, Miss.

Parish wards now have local option right to decide for the open or closed range. Since last June, three wards have shifted to the closed range.

Rep. Cecil Blair of Rapides Parish and colleagues want Roberts and Girard to accept the fencing proposal.

"Then we could answer the problems once and for all," the young legislator contends. Otherwise, the fence bill will be introduced as a separate measure.

The fencing idea has been around for months. It is now being molded into a concrete proposal for the state to provide wire, fenceposts and cattle gaps on road crossings. Blair estimates the total cost at less than $750,000.

According to this new fencing version, cattlemen would be given a year to build the fences. If they failed to act, cattle would be impounded as the Roberts - Girard draft proposes.

Open range cowmen "are willing to do it," Blair insists.

He says three means of raising the fence money are being considered: (1) from the state general fund, (2) by raising drivers licensing 50 cents, or (3) from any new highway bond issue.

President has a program."

"That is just a political statement made for political purposes," Knowland declared. "The Democrats who are complaining about lack of action on legislation never in the last 20 years were confronted with the situation we face.

"They never have had to operate the Senate when they lacked a majority and they never have been in a position where the party responsible for the program had only a one-vote margin in committees."

Democrats outnumber Republicans 48-47 in the Senate with one Independent who often sides with the Democrats.

Eisenhower complimented the House last week for the speed with which it was considering his proposals. He said everyone knows that the Senate, with unlimited debate, can't move along as swiftly.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) said he doubts the Republicans will have much to brag about in November in the way of legislative accomplishments.

"Out of the 196 or more proposals the President has made in one form or another, the Republicans will be lucky to get a dozen through Congress," he said.

CAB Recommends Merger Of Two Latin Air Routes

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board recommended today that the Latin American routes of Pan American Grace Airways (PANAGRA) and Braniff Airways be colsolidated.

The board gave the airlines 60 days in which to submit a proposal for a single independent line, but said the new outfit must be free from the control of either Pan American World Airways or W.R. Grace. The line would operate between Houston and Miami and points on the combined international routes of PANAGRA and Braniff.

CAB's proposal was made at the same time that a decision was deferred on the controversial case in which Pan American, PANAGRA and Eastern Air Lines submitted a proposal for a voluntary interchange of equipment in providing through service for passengers between Latin America and the eastern United States.

The board also had been considering a possible competitive interchange arrangement between Braniff and National Airlines.

This proposal would have involved extension of Braniff's route from Havana to Miami for an interchange with National.

Last May 14, President Eisenhower sent back to the board its still unannounced decision in the case with a request that the record be brought up to date. The record was reopened and new hearings were held.

The board said that since its earlier decision, certain events have occurred which "have had a substantial impact on the national transportation policy in South America and the issues in this case."

Famous Trichologist Tells Truth About Saving And Improving Hair

This new method of home treatment of saving and growing thicker hair will be demonstrated in Monroe, La., Monday ONLY, March 29, 1954. These private individual demonstrations will be held at the Frances Hotel on Monday ONLY, March 29, 12 NOON to 9 p.m.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 17 — In an interview here today Mr. Wm. L. Keele, internationally famous trichologist and director of the Keele Hair and Scalp Specialists, said "There are 18 different scalp disorders that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person must realize no one tonic or so call cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

GUARANTEED

"The Keele firm, recognizing that most people are skeptical of claims that hair can be grown on balding heads, offer a guarantee," Keele said.

Once a person avails himself to the Keele treatment his skepticism immediately disappears. To insure this, we offer this guarantee. "If you are not completely satisfied with your hair progress at the end of 30 days, your money will be returned."

HOPELESS CASES DISCOURAGED

First the Keele specialists are quick to tell hopeless cases that they cannot be helped. But the "hopeless" cases are few. Only if a man is completely, shiny bald is he in this lost category.

If there is fuzz, no matter how light, thin, or colorless the Keele firm can preform wonders.

Everyone is given a complete private examination to determine the condition of his scalp, and cause for his hair trouble.

FREE EXAMINATIONS

This examination is very thorough and highly technical, it requires 20 to 30 minutes. There is no charge for this examination and no appointment is necessary. After the examination he is told the required length of treatment and how much it will cost.

After starting treatment, he makes regular reports to the Keele firm in Oklahoma City, and a trichologist will return to check his process periodically.

To spread the opportunity of normal, healthy hair to the thousands who are desperately looking for help, the Keele firm is sending specialists to various cities to conduct examinations and start home treatment.

NO CURE-ALL

"We have no cure-all for slick, shiny baldness," Keele emphasizes. "If there is fuzz, the root is still capable of creating hair and we can perform what seems to be a miracle."

There is one thing Keele wants to be certain every man and woman knows. If a recession appears at the temples or a spot begins to show up on the crown of the head, there is something wrong and it should be given immediate attention.

HAIR FOR LIFETIME

"If clients follow our directions during treatment, and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives," Keele said. "Our firm is definitely behind this treatment, it all depends on the individual client's faithful observation of a few simple rules."

HOW'S YOUR HAIR?

If it worries you call Trichologist W. Quinten Selby at the Frances Hotel in Monroe, La., on Monday ONLY, March 29, 12 NOON to 9 p.m. The public is invited. You do not need an appointment. The examinations are private and you will not be embarrassed or obligated in any way.—Adv.

Strange Case Of Wrong Body Still Puzzles Police

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 27 (AP)—The strange case of the wrong body still mystified police today but the man first thought to have died in an Oklahoma auto accident was found "very much alive" in Dallas, Tex.

The mystery developed when Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Smith of Miami Beach discovered that the body of the man killed near Chickasha, Okla., Tuesday, and sent here for burial, was not that of their son, Herman, 23-year-old Korean War veteran.

Police of several states took part in the hunt and Herman finally was located late today at Dallas.

A tenant at Smith's residence in Dallas said Smith and Matthew Francis Grady of Dallas rented a garage apartment there March 17. Grady left about a week ago, according to the tenant, and Smith claimed Grady took Smith's car, clothing and some other possessions.

A social security card with Grady's name on it was found in the dead man's wallet.

Lt. Peter Stewart, acting superintendent of the Miami Beach Detective Bureau, said, "About all we really know is that we have a body on our hands. We're running down all possible clues and have sent the fingerprints to be checked by the FBI in Washington."

The body was mangled in the auto accident at Chickasha and was dressed in Smith's clothes. It was Smith's car and Smith's wallet was among the clothing.

Smith left Miami Beach two weeks ago to seek employment at Las Vegas, Nev., or El Paso, Tex. He was in New Orleans a week ago when his parents last heard from him. New Orleans authorities said they knew nothing about him.

The body was sent here for burial yesterday. The Smiths viewed it and said it was not their son. A fingerprint check added further proof the body was not that of Herman Smith.

to move in soon, the contamination can be made short-lived.

But suppose masses of an enemy must be killed quickly?

Here gas fits into the picture, specifically the nerve or "G" gas.

American military scientists now are ready to speak somewhat more freely of nerve gas. The reason is that this gas is not an exclusive American invention, but came originally from the laboratories of Nazi Germany.

Today, when a reporter made inquiry about nerve gas, the Pentagon for the first time was ready to provide details in the form of data prepared by the Army's Chemical Corps.

From the cold, medical phraseology of that data comes a picture of agonizing death.

There are several forms of so-called nerve gas. They are without color and without smell.

"The inhaled vapor from as few as three drops would prove fatal to a human being in about four minutes," the Corps says. "More toxic than the previously known chemical warfare agents, the nerve gases are designed to destroy life with suddenness; their presence is not ordinarily detectable by the senses, and we must rely upon detection devices to identify them."

Gas may be absorbed by breathing, through the skin or eyes or swallowed. Here is what happens to victims:

He becomes confused mentally; the skin turns blueish; there is vomiting; blood pressure drops sharply to the point of shock; the heart slows down; the pupils of the eyes constrict to pin-points. There is a "sudden inability to breath," coughing, choking spasm —and death.

Gas masks have been designed to cope with nerve gas. If detection is made soon enough and the material is readily available, atropine may help save the victim.

The other item in the arsenal of flexible weapons, capable of doing jobs in several ways, with or without death, is bacteriological warfare.

Like gas, it is difficult to detect quickly. One of the greatest eventual advantages of "BW," a weapon long under experiment but still not entirely perfected, is that it can be applied under the long-range plans of strategic operations. Its effect "hangs fire," may not be felt for the days or weeks required for incubation of a disease.

It is a weapon devised for use against cattle and crops as well as man. Used in this strategic manner, it could reduce or destroy food sources of a nation, wrecking the war goods production capability and destroying the will to fight.

Heavy Rains In Mississippi End Danger Of Fire

JACKSON, Miss., March 27 (AP)—Hefty rains along a broad strip across central Mississippi last night and today ended the danger of forest fires for a while.

Rains the last several days put "the whole state in good shape," the state Forestry Commission reported.

"If we get some grass growing and some more rain, we hope our troubles will be over for the spring."

Forest fires, especially in the lower Delta, have plagued foresters for several weeks."

The rainfall strip centered on a line between Vicksburg and Meridian, with heaviest falls in the Jackson area. Pelahatchie, 30 miles east of the capital, reported the heaviest fall during the 24 hours ending at noon today, 2.06 inches.

Other falls included: Meridian, 1.80; Crystal Springs, 1.69; Jackson, 1.58; Forest, 1.62; Louisville, 1.24; Union, 1.40; Laurel, 1.19; and Vicksburg, .43.

More scattered thundershowers and rain are forecast for north Mississippi tonight and tomorrow, with cooler temperatures.

Gusty winds of 30-40 miles per hour buffeted Jackson early today with water standing in streets at times.

Only scattered traces was reported along the Gulf Coast.

Gov. Robert F. Kennon reluctantly announced this week that his Korean trip has been postponed a while and indications are now that he probably won't be able to go at all.

The governor was packed and ready to leave Monday by military air transport when word came of the postponement, for some unknown reason, to about May 20, a time which would conflict with the legislative session.

President Eisenhower had invited Kennon and four other governors, all of them members of the executive committee of the National Governors' Conference, to make the week-long tour of Korea and report back to him and the nation on rehabilitation conditions there.

"If the situation is such that I feel I can without injustice to my duties as governor, I will make the trip later," Kennon said, "but from here it looks doubtful."

But assuming, he said, that the United States has or will obtain adequate military strength, "it may be suggested that the threat to use this power at places of our own choosing will deter lesser aggressions."

This suggests, Acheson argued, that the United States proposes "to strike not at the place that the aggressor group has chosen but at some other place . . . a place which would hurt them (the enemy) badly."

"It would be foolish to assume that this would not produce counter retaliation," he said, "which would hurt us as much, or perhaps more, and would be designed to prevent any further strikes by us. And then we would be in World War III.

"Strategic atomic bombing is not our first but our last resort . . . no responsible, certainly no democratic, government would use it on any lesser occasion (than an all-out attack by an enemy).

"So, as a threat, which we do not mean the policy would not deter."

The United States, he said, should rely upon its own defensive power and that of its allies and upon its atomic striking power "to deter all concerned from the overwhelming disaster of general war; and, in addition, to provide the means . . . to meet piecemeal or creeping aggression."

The fire department was completely reorganized, Mrs. Dixon said, and additional equipment was obtained, and reduction in fire insurance rates was the result. Four full-time officers were put on the police force and the number of cases appearing in the mayor's court dropped "dramatically" after an initial increase, Mrs. Dixon said.

Proof of the success of the Farmerville program comes from the fact that several engineering firms have visited the town to get data on its progress and how it was carried out.

A resolution, presented to the association by Lawrence B. Pettit of Monroe, chairman of the Ouachita Parish Juvenile Citizens' Committee, was adopted by the body calling for the establishment of juvenile detention homes throughout the state of Louisiana. The Municipal Association adopted the resolution in conjunction with their legislative program to be presented to the state legislature which meets in May. Other legislative matters adopted by the association concerned retirement program, taking police chiefs and fire chiefs out from under civil service, financial aid to municipalities and the shipment of natural gas out of the state.

Featured speakers on the final day's calendar of the three-day session were Victor E. Cooley, deputy director, Office of Defense Mobilization, Washington, D. C., and Allen C. Thompson, vice-president of the American Municipal Association and mayor of the City of Jackson, Miss.

Parish wards now have local option right to decide for the open or closed range. Since last June, three wards have shifted to the closed range.

Rep. Cecil Blair of Rapides Parish and colleagues want Roberts and Girard to accept the fencing proposal.

"Then we could answer the problems once and for all," the young legislator contends. Otherwise, the fence bill will be introduced as a separate measure.

The fencing idea has been around for months. It is now being molded into a concrete proposal for the state to provide wire, fenceposts and cattle gaps on road crossings. Blair estimates the total cost at less than $750,000.

According to this new fencing version, cattlemen would be given a year to build the fences. If they failed to act, cattle would be impounded as the Roberts - Girard draft proposes.

Open range cowmen "are willing to do it," Blair insists.

He says three means of raising the fence money are being considered: (1) from the state general fund, (2) by raising drivers licensing 50 cents, or (3) from any new highway bond issue.

President has a program."

"That is just a political statement made for political purposes," Knowland declared. "The Democrats who are complaining about lack of action on legislation never in the last 20 years were confronted with the situation we face.

"They never have had to operate the Senate when they lacked a majority and they never have been in a position where the party responsible for the program had only a one-vote margin in committees."

Democrats outnumber Republicans 48-47 in the Senate with one Independent who often sides with the Democrats.

Eisenhower complimented the House last week for the speed with which it was considering his proposals. He said everyone knows that the Senate, with unlimited debate, can't move along as swiftly.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) said he doubts the Republicans will have much to brag about in November in the way of legislative accomplishments.

"Out of the 196 or more proposals the President has made in one form or another, the Republicans will be lucky to get a dozen through Congress," he said.

CAB Recommends Merger Of Two Latin Air Routes

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board recommended today that the Latin American routes of Pan American Grace Airways (PANAGRA) and Braniff Airways be colsolidated.

The board gave the airlines 60 days in which to submit a proposal for a single independent line, but said the new outfit must be free from the control of either Pan American World Airways or W.R. Grace. The line would operate between Houston and Miami and points on the combined international routes of PANAGRA and Braniff.

CAB's proposal was made at the same time that a decision was deferred on the controversial case in which Pan American, PANAGRA and Eastern Air Lines submitted a proposal for a voluntary interchange of equipment in providing through service for passengers between Latin America and the eastern United States.

The board also had been considering a possible competitive interchange arrangement between Braniff and National Airlines.

This proposal would have involved extension of Braniff's route from Havana to Miami for an interchange with National.

Last May 14, President Eisenhower sent back to the board its still unannounced decision in the case with a request that the record be brought up to date. The record was reopened and new hearings were held.

The board said that since its earlier decision, certain events have occurred which "have had a substantial impact on the national transportation policy in South America and the issues in this case."

Before the turn of the century, gasoline usually was called naptha.

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., March 27 (AP) —An explosion ripped the big Texaco refinery here tonight and set off a spectacular fire.

But highway patrol Capt. C. O. Layne said there were no casualties.

Roadblocks were set up to keep the curious away from the area.

The explosion reportedly occurred in a high octane unit at the plant.

Russell Blasts Factional Rows In West Monroe

Jack M. Russell, candidate for alderman in the April 6 city elections in West Monroe, said last night that in the event he was elected he would appeal to the "sound thinking" of West Monroe citizens in an effort to return West Monroe to a "stable" political station.

"It's time the people of West Monroe realized they have a real city in the making and settled down to a unified effort," Russell said.

Russell, a West Monroe taxi company operator, said that West Monroe "has been in a state of confusion — politically" for the past few years. "It's time petty politics take a back seat and logic takes over," Russell declared.

Heralding himself as an independent candidate, Russell said "there is no place in West Monroe for either political factions or cliques." He blasted "political agitation" that has often been "actually immoral in many cases."

He did not specifically name any instances, but when asked to elaborate said "The people of West Monroe know what I mean."

Listing, in what he considered the order of importance, Russell released the following platform:

1. Improved water system. He pointed out that he would wholeheartedly go along with present plans to expand the city water system. He labelled the need "acute."

2. Improved fire protection. "That, of course, ties directly into our needs in the water department." He said that in order to improve fire protection additional water facilities would be mandatory.

3. Streets. Russell declared West Monroe's streets "among the worst in the state." He called for an "overall improvement program and a perpetual maintenance program."

4. Playgrounds. According to Russell, West Monroe's recreation facilities need "only development." He said he would, if elected, insist on an ample financial program to develop city playgrounds and "turn the management over to a citizen's board." He pointed out that much the same system is practiced except that the Recreation Council is "sorely underfinanced."

Most of all, according Russell, West Monroe needs "sincere cooperation from everyone for a common cause — the development of the city." He pledged himself to cooperate and work with the city administration "regardless of who is elected."

Boardman Lauds Sears Employes In Fund Drive

C. C. Boardman, co-chairman of the American Red Cross fund campaign, Saturday congratulated the employes of Sears Roebuck and Co. for contributions which this group has made to the current drive. The employes donated a total of $221.75.

Meanwhile, C. D. McAdams, manager of the Monroe store, said the company had agreed to double any contribution made by employes of the business. This will make a sizable increase over last year's donations, which was one of the leaders at that time.

Other groups making "commendable progress in their drive" according to Boardman included the Brown Paper Industries, which increased donations 70 per cent over last year. Manager Joe Powell joined Boardman in extending thanks to the participants in the drive.

Boardman further urged all employe groups to strive to make their contributions 100 per cent. "The success of our own drive is going to depend on memberships," Boardman said.

Russell Blasts Factional Rows In West Monroe

Jack M. Russell, candidate for alderman in the April 6 city elections in West Monroe, said last night that in the event he was elected he would appeal to the "sound thinking" of West Monroe citizens in an effort to return West Monroe to a "stable" political station.

"It's time the people of West Monroe realized they have a real city in the making and settled down to a unified effort," Russell said.

Russell, a West Monroe taxi company operator, said that West Monroe "has been in a state of confusion — politically" for the past few years. "It's time petty politics take a back seat and logic takes over," Russell declared.

Heralding himself as an independent candidate, Russell said "there is no place in West Monroe for either political factions or cliques." He blasted "political agitation" that has often been "actually immoral in many cases."

He did not specifically name any instances, but when asked to elaborate said "The people of West Monroe know what I mean."

Listing, in what he considered the order of importance, Russell released the following platform:

1. Improved water system. He pointed out that he would wholeheartedly go along with present plans to expand the city water system. He labelled the need "acute."

2. Improved fire protection. "That, of course, ties directly into our needs in the water department." He said that in order to improve fire protection additional water facilities would be mandatory.

3. Streets. Russell declared West Monroe's streets "among the worst in the state." He called for an "overall improvement program and a perpetual maintenance program."

4. Playgrounds. According to Russell, West Monroe's recreation facilities need "only development." He said he would, if elected, insist on an ample financial program to develop city playgrounds and "turn the management over to a citizen's board." He pointed out that much the same system is practiced except that the Recreation Council is "sorely underfinanced."

Most of all, according Russell, West Monroe needs "sincere cooperation from everyone for a common cause — the development of the city." He pledged himself to cooperate and work with the city administration "regardless of who is elected."

What Kind Of Mark Have You?

Psalms Ninety says, "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. I will say of the Lord, he is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in Him will I trust. Surely He shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisesome pestilence. He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust: His truth shall be thy shield and buckler. Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day; nor for the pestilence that walketh by darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday. A Thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand but it shall not come nigh thee. Only with thine eyes shalt thou behold and see the reward of the wicked . . ."

Fellow Americans, it is not hard to realize that the days which are passing are days of crisis for the nation. On every hand, evil hands are working. At every hour, the forces of Satan himself are diligently working to speed the deliverance of America into the hands of destruction.

Throughout the United States and overseas, there are devoted men asking, begging and pleading on bended knees for Religious peoples everywhere to awaken to the dangers at hand, to take the sword and the shield and prepare for battle with the ungodly. Never has the Church been faced with an enemy who uses the Church itself as its weapon. Never have a people, satisfied in their material power and vanity, been so smug in the face of near disaster.

It has been said that on the people of the Earth today there are two distinguishing marks. One is the mark of godliness while the other is the mark of the ungodly. One must consider seriously his future in the light of that fact. If you have the mark of God stamped in your mind, it is certain that you are opposed to the forces working against the Church and nation. Unless you have this mark, you must be branded with the other sign. It is as simple as that; no in between.

It is certain that for your beliefs, if the present foreign situation fails to change for the better, you will suffer. Christ offered not a picnic or a holiday to those who joined his religion. He offered a fight for existence on the face of the Earth. Today, as believers in God, Americans should place their faith in God, yet, how many do? One can easily be a "half-hour Christian," he can know the ritual of his church forward and backward, but it is that which is in his mind, the thoughts, that count. The best churchgoers can never miss a service, they can know the prayer book inside out and can repeat the scriptures from Genesis through Revelations, but do they believe them? What good does it do to know these things unless you have faith in them and can really believe them?

How many Americans today are placing their trust in God? Apparently, there are many who don't and some of them include those who are supposedly His ministers. One is shocked to read each week of men high in some Churches denouncing other churches and their officials and lay-members. Did the uncalled for diatribe by two Bishops of one faith against another Church of a different faith spark of godliness? Were these men, acting in the interests or under the commandments of God in making such intemperate statements? It is hard to believe that their trust is in God and not in their own supposed power.

The American people are today faced with fiery and terrible destruction on one hand, moral and domestic destruction on the other, but in some ethereal dream, they maintain the idea that "nothing can happen here." A glance at the history books is enough to point out that nation after nation which lost God, lost itself. A loss of faith is the key to quick destruction. The "half-hour Christians" who pride themselves on never missing Church, but conveniently forgetting what they heard as soon as the service is over, must reconsider.

Religion is not made for fashion. It is not put at the disposal of people so that they can show the other man how much better he is, it is not made for the convenience of the human race. Religion as an instructor is a hard taskmaster. The following of God's laws in these days and times bring sometimes insults and derogatory remarks. The early Christians had no fear of insult, theirs were the marks of pain and suffering and each scar was as a medal for valor. The Apostle Paul was a notable example of this. He bore the scars of the beatings, the stonings and the clubbings he received at the hands of the pagans and the unbelievers all of his life, yet, never was there a more kindly or patient human.

It is certain that the human race was put on the Earth for a purpose. Whether it is an individual purpose, or an overall collective purpose is not known by the keenest of clerics. God's ways are marvelous and are not disputable. It is just as certain that at the close of the days, there will come a time of judgement. Those who bear the marks of God will ascend to His place and the others——.

These days in the face of the destruction of the Human race, all Americans as temporal leaders of the Earth's free peoples should be on their knees at every opportunity asking guidance of God and placing their faith in Him who it is certain will deliver in some manner every person, young or old.

Instead, what does one behold? The very houses of God are profaned by bigots and usurpers who defile the commandments of God preaching a gospel of hate towards one's fellow man. The people are asleep, unaware of the dangers and furthermore, not caring to learn about them. Those who make their voices heard above the snores of disunity and nonbelief are branded "hysterical and not in keeping with the times." What in the name of all that is fair are the "times?" What kind of times are these that resound with the footsteps of degeneracy and hypocracy in the highest of places, debauchery of youth, of adults, the idolizing of gross sinners and the adulation of non-believers?

Jesus said, "I am the resurection and the life: He that believeth in me though he were dead, yet shall he live." The power of virtue is not in man, but in God. Belief in God is that virtue. Americans, the time is short. Best everyone consider his mark. There are but two kinds.

Which ones are found on you?

Caldwell Parish

In the years gone by, in the present and in the future, Caldwell parish with the source of government, the parish seat at Columbia will hold a strategic place in the overall development of the area. Trends in the past several decades and the predictions of the future show that great amounts of new industry will head South. As the leader of agriculture, and having marked the advance of progress and industrial growth over the land, to a great extent the well being of the nation might well be found in the South.

In this great advance, destined beyond a shadow of a doubt to play an extremely important part, is Caldwell parish.

With fertile land, numerous waterways and other advantages, this Northeast Louisiana parish through which, flows the beautiful Ouachita river, has many beneficial opportunities both natural and man made to offer in the additional growth of the area.

Caldwell people are progressive as is seen in the government, schools, churches and business life. In the minds of the elected officials, the object seems to be, "what's good for the betterment of my parish, is what I want." There are predictions that water transport as well as the already present rail and highway systems will spur future industrial growth. A United States engineer recently stated that "the future will see more river transportation than was ever recorded in the days of the steamboat. God gave this water system to the South and it is up to the South to utilize it. Caldwell parish seems to be starting the procedure.

Those who are watching the area grow, and those who follow the signs of the times, can see "leadership" written all over the Caldwell parish records. To her citizens who have in the past years demonstrated the heritage of their forefathers, will certainly go a high position in the new South.

Just watch Caldwell parish grow alongside her sister parishes in Louisiana and the progressive new South.

Must There Be Disunity?

The American people have in the past weeks, seen a terrible spectacle. They have beheld two sincere men, both apparently working for the same end result, split, and presumably driven apart when there is no necessity for such action and when the nation needs to be about far more important business. The result on the nation's governmental life has been chaos.

Senator McCarthy pleads for a continued investigation into the activities of subversives and the President continues to demand a further and harder fight against the Communists overseas. Can there be a better combination in the war against Marxism? Instead, there is the terrible situation wherein Senator McCarthy is not even given a fair break by the press corps in the capitol, most of whom despise him, being followers of another philosophy. Their word goes to the President and their loaded questions are placed to insure that in some manner, he gratifies them by denunciatory remarks aimed not directly at the Senator, but in a manner which leaves no doubt as to whom the statements are directed.

In short, there is a most concerted and deliberate attempt to split the two officials. Was there any real necessity for the statement by the President at his press conference on Wednesday? He asserted that in effect, "no judge should try his own case." When informed that the Senator had previously announced his intention to step down off the committee, the President offered a "no comment."

Does the President not know the situation surrounding the McCarthy-Army case? Does he not realize that it was one of his own officials who leaked a "report" to the Alsop brothers, infamous Washington columnists? Did he not realize that the Alsop brothers then gave the "report" to the Democrat senators?

Is this honorable or proper procedure for a supposedly Republican administration leader? Does the tapping of the Senator's telephone wires by Stevens add to the honor of the administration? Is the Senator not to be granted the privilege accorded every common criminal, that of the right of cross examination?

The President would seem to indicate that McCarthy should not be granted even this privilege. This newspaper has dealt extensively with the efforts of the Republican "Advance" into the administration. It realizes full well that the President is receiving advice not in accord with the wishes of a great many Americans both in the foreign policy and the domestic fields. There is small doubt that the President has lost a great amount of his perspective in this heated affair which has reached porportions all out of contact with the real importance of the matter.

Must one either be "anti-McCarthy, pro-Eisenhower" or "pro-McCarthy, anti-Eisenhower?" Indeed that is what the Marxists and many others desire. Are the two both seemingly working towards the end of Communism not able to reconcile their views? It would appear that until the rumor mongers of the capitol press corps stop their racing back and forth between the Senator and the President with their "did you hear what he said about you now" statements, there can be no peace.

In the meantime, the American people are becoming screened from the events of the days by the terrible barrage of McCarthy wire stories. Indeed, the wire editors of the newspapers today are hard put to find anything but a McCarthy story to send to the printers.

The President must realize that the very same columnists who today are espousing his cause against the Wisconsin Senator, are the very same ones who used the lowest of tactics in "blowing up" the Nixon affair and supporting beyond all degrees of fairness and journalistic ethics, his opponent, Mr. Stevenson, in the election. After they have succeeded in destroying unity within the Republican party, they will indeed, return their support to their own particular philosophy which so many of them support, the one directly opposed to that supposedly held by Mr. Eisenhower.

There is no necessity for disunity and the faster the President realizes it, the better off everyone will be. Both men can do their excellent work in close cooperation and harmony, a force which is needed if there is to be a successful opposition to the danger at hand.

Baptist Minister Takes Issue With Editorials

Oak Ridge, La.

Editor, Morning World:

Consistent attention to the editorial pages of the News-Star and Morning World has convinced me that you are assuming, either deliberately or unconsciously, the role of a moral crusader. I should not wish to question your sincerity in seeking to achieve worthy ends; but I do raise serious questions about the means employed to achieve them. Without knowing what voice you may have in the policies of the two papers, one can see a synchronization of the tone in the editorials with that of the total thought pattern of the papers. A prime effect is to underscore an apparent fundamental policy in the form of an old—although completely false—assumption that "the end justifies the means." Am I right and is this policy morally correct? There is a vast difference between morality and moralizing.

To be specific, notice the editorial page of the News-Star for Monday, March 22 (almost any other issue of either paper would do). The lead editorial — "St. Lawrence Seaway" — is a classic example of the policy in question. That is a tame one, though, compared to the incredible thing alongside it, "The New Orleans Incidents." Apparently you are not satisfied with the Constitution's guarantees relative to the Separation of Church and State. You would sell your birthright for a mess of pottage.

Can you see the inconsistency of your position? Obviously, alcoholism is a more widely prevalent evil than narcotics addiction; yet your papers regularly advertise liquor. With one side of your mouth you emotionally implore us to try to "get God into the schools"; with the other side you encourage things that, according to your reasoning, would indicate the lack of His presence there. Is it not true that we have legislation authorizing the teaching in our public schools of the scientific facts about the effects of alcohol and narcotics upon the human body? We need the moral courage and support to demand the enforcement of existing laws.

I fail to follow your naive assumption that given religious teaching in the public schools there would be ipso facto a swift decline in narcotics addiction. Jeepers! You are now ignoring states' rights, local option, home rule, FEPC and what have you. Really now, shouldn't you be the first to cry that government has already assumed too many prerogatives without taking on the additional load of attempting religious teaching? The teachers in our public schools are hardly qualified professionally to teach religion. But more important, what religion would be taught? The diversity of our religious culture spells defeat for any attempt at non-sectarian religious instruction even if it were possible to find an individual without sectarian bias to teach it. Are we to suppose that the school can accomplish what (as you would suggest) the home and the church have failed to accomplish?

The truth is that God is "on the side of the schools" now and is already in the classrooms, for the door can't be barred to Him as if He were a magazine salesman. I am quite confident that God goes to schoool with my children as He does with countless others like them who, as they should, have learned about Him at home and in Sunday School and the services of their church. I am unalterably opposed to any form of religious teaching in our public schools: they have grown great and are a mighty bulwark for Democracy without it. The opinion that they are wicked is unjustified.

Again, looking at the same editorial page, I must strenuously object to Pegler's scandalous and beastly column. He says that J.B. Matthews "truthfully remarked in a magazine article that protestant ministers were playing a dangerous part in the Red conspiracy." I am unable to express my utter contempt for such foul lies. Why do you print them? If you call such filth "bringing us back to morality" then many of us are confused, because it doesn't sound like anything that Jesus is reported to have said. Why your paper would pay money for such folderol and support such a parasite is beyond me.

Finally, your near fanatical devotion to McCarthy in no wise contributes toward a better morality. But it follows the inexorable pattern: reckless charges and sensational overstatement; ultra-nationalism and its concomitant — a compulsive effort to force acceptance of one's opinions as normative and final (remember the Puerto Ricans who shot up Blair House and the congressmen). It is regrettable that you must place yourself in the presumptuous position of appearing to believe that you and McCarthy are about the only simon-pure patriots left. You have no certainty that even McCarthy will remain true to the faith, so that leaves only you. Poor you!

As an objective presentation of reasoned opinion, an editorial can be a positive force in crystallizing public thought through reflection upon all sides of an issue. The editor, to be sure, is entitled to his opinion; but remember that although bias is inevitable, it should be kept at a minimum and under constant criticism.

I like to think of a good newspaper as history being recorded daily. The editorial page should aim to present a cross section of the best contemporary thought on vital issues of the day. My considered judgment, after extensive conversations with a wide circle of readers, is that our Monroe papers should give us a diet more substantial in protein content and less greasy with McCarthyism.

"Quackropractic"

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

On behalf of the Ouachita Parish Medical Society and the Fifth District Medical Society I would like to thank you for your sincere interest and editorial comments referable to the "cult" of Chiropractic Medicine. As an ethical, professional group, we must depend upon unbiased layman as yourself to alert the community to such hazards of public health.

The members of the Medical Profession are not infallible, neither are they endowed with supernatural powers, but they have at their command all of the medical ideas which have been tested and proven since written history began.

Every physician is pledged to give his discoveries to his fellow practitioners and the ideas of each generation have been passed along to the next generation. When an organization has studied, and taught and practiced a certain line of reasoning for 10,000 years, they are quite likely to have knowledge which is worth using. The ideas which present day physicians are using are based on the toil and study of millions of capable men who have devoted their lives to this work.

True, the Louisiana State Medical Society is sponsoring a program designed to place the cold facts before the public. This is our honest responsibility to the community. It is not intended to insult the accused's personal intelligence, but it is designed to educate the layman as to the "cult's" ignorance and incompetence to practice medicine. These are the cultists who advertise in the newspapers that they can cure tuberculosis, heart disease, cancer, and infectious diseases by simply "adjusting the spine."

Chiropractic, per-se, may have its derivation from the Greek era, but it was founded by the owner of a grocery and meat market in 1895. I should not think it facetious to recognize that such a meager beginning has propelled itself to the most prosperous business in 59 years.

It is stated that the course of study covers four years, but it is not stated how many years the student actually completes. It is stated that a 4,400 hours basic course is recommended, but it is not stated how many hours are required! If the curriculum and hours of study parallel or surpass the minimum requirements of the American Medical Association for Class A Medical Schools, why doesn't the American Medical Association recognize Chiropractors as Doctors of Medicine? To become a Doctor of Medicine, a high school graduate must attend college (pre-medical school) four years, maintaining a "B" average or better in grades before he is even considered for Medical School. If he is accepted for Medical School, he must then maintain a passing grade for four additional years before he is allowed to graduate. He then interns for one year, and, if he desires to specialize, he remains in one of the medical centers as a resident for from three to five more years, depending upon the specialty. Thus, you can see that a high school graduate has from nine to thirteen years ahead of him before he is allowed to practice in any of our communities. Should anyone wish to complete this medical course as outlined above and then see fit to limit himself to Chiropractic medicine, he could certainly do so with our blessings!

It is stated that there are 22,000 chiropractors in the U. S. and over 32,000,000 citizens in America under chiropractor "care"; but this doesn't necessarily make it legitimate. In fact, in our own state of Louisiana, it is — at the present— illegal to practice chiropractic medicine. But it was proudly boasted that there were 100 chiropractors practicing in Louisiana currently, despite their knowledge that the law exists.

I dwell only briefly upon the explanation given for chiropractic medicine. It is asinine to believe that any man can "adjust" a vertebral column (the spine). For all intents and purpose, it is a boney, semi - rigid structure, supported by many strong ligaments and muscles. To actually move (or adjust) one vertebra forward or backward upon the other, even a fraction of an inch, would cause immediate paralysis from this level of the spinal cord, downward. If this should occur high enough in the neck, immediate death ensues. If this method of treatment is to be accepted, then the years and years of medical research in the fields of polio myelitis, cancer, and heart disease, to mention only a few, have been wasted, to say nothing of the millions of dollars donated to support them.

We are shamed for having deprived sick people of chiropractic medical care. Yet, it is stated, that the chiropractor does not want to practice medicine. Pray tell, what is the practice of medicine if it is not the care of the sick? Thus, the physician - anesthesiologist's terminology, "Chiropractic Medicine," to me, is well - founded. It is stat- that the chiropractor prescribes no medicine, performs no surgery, etc.; however, may I here refer you to a short article which appeared in our local newspaper only recently, verbatum.

Chicago, March 10 —U P —Two men were ordered booked Wednesday on charges of performing an abortion on a 24-year-old unmarried Dallas girl who was found dead on a suburban street Tuesday.

An inquest into the death of Ozell Skains, Dallas telephone operator, was continued until March 18 to permit a chemical analysis.

Ordered booked at the inquest Wednesday were John C. Goetschel 26, and George Malek, 27.

At the inquest, Oak Park police Lt. Fremont P. Nestor testified that both men told him they knew Miss Skains was pregnant out of wedlock.

He said Goetschel, a chiropractor, told him he prescribed 12 five-grain quinine tablets for her and told her to take two at a time, followed by a hot bath.

Goetschel, Nestor said, also admitted giving Miss Skains chiropractic treatments in an attempt to induce abortion.

Thus the word is actually "Quackropractic." It is derived from one English and one Greek word. "Quack" and "Praktikos," meaning "done by quacks."

Seriously, our objection to chiropractors is certainly nothing new. The Louisiana State Medical Society has, for years, opposed any legislation relative to admitting chiropractors to this state. Louisiana is proudly one of the three states in the Union that has not legally accepted chiropractic medicine. There can be no compromise when the health of our families is at stake. To this end, our legislators in the past, have always agreed.

It is our sincere hope and prayer that th citizens of this community will recognize the true facts and join us in our fight for their well-being.

Chairman - Committee on Public Policy, Ouachita Parish Medical Society.

Chiropractor Doctors

El Dorado, Ark.

Editor, Morning World:

I read in your paper that there is an attack on the Chiropractor doctors in Louisiana. In behalf of them and my own experience; my neck was broken in 1948, causing high blood pressure. I tried many fine doctors, but no medicine did any good. I wasn't able to work at all. A certain Chiropractor was recommended to me and I started taking adjustments, but I did not have any confidence in him. I continued to go and I began to improve and now am working everyday and have been since September 1, 1953.

I want the world to know I am 100 per cent for them and if any question I could answer would help, I would be glad to do so.

DAR Deserves Homage Of All Americans

Columbus, Ohio.

Editor, Morning World:

Your editorial of recent date, republished in The Columbus Ohio Dispatch, dealing with America's outstanding patriotic organization, the Daughters of the American Revolution, is most timely, for which I wish to thank you.

With you I join in praise of the fine work this great organization has done and is doing to keep this magnificent nation of ours on the true road that made it great and the most powerful of nations in recorded history. This organization has consistently and with undeviating courage fought its detractors and deserves the homage of all red - blooded Americans.

It seems clear that in our generation there has arisen a coterie of false philosophers, preaching a false doctrine entirely foreign to the original American concept of human self - government. These pseudo-liberals would have us accept the principle that government is everything, creator of all, man included, the very antithesis of everything our founding fathers believed and advocated in establishing this new idea of self - government. There was just one idea in all the thought, planning and designing this American concept . . . banishment of tyranny which our forbears came over here to get away from, religious, political and economic . . . and to set up a form of government that would forever bar the rearing of its ugly head again. These pseudo - liberals, apparently knowing little or nothing of the history of tyranny, would, in their ignorance, take us back down that long, hard road from which it took man 4000 long years to emerge.

That, briefly, is what the DAR is fighting.

Dear John Letters

Korea.

Editor, Morning World:

I am one of the home town boys here in Korea. Since being in Korea I have found a rather difficult situation in the receiving of mail and the problems of boys and their girl friends and husbands and wives. There has been so many Dear John letters written from home I think due to the misunderstandings of the Korean situation.

In my opinion, as so many hundreds of other guys here, people seem to think that the war is over. But it isn't, just a cease fire. We are facing a serious situation.

Would you please print in your paper just a little to let our wives and girl friends know that we need their assurance and confidence as much as ever. To get that we must hear from them. The problem of being untrue to our loved ones while in Korea is the main trouble.

I hope that you will please place this in your paper because it would help us here ever so much.

Highway Police—A Credit To Louisiana

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

I want to congratulate you on the article regarding the state police.

I think it is wonderful if papers, radio stations and television stations will give public servants credit where credit is due.

I think the state highway police are doing a great job, and trying hard, and if they can get the support of newspapers, radio stations and television stations it will make them feel a lot better in some of the ways they are treated otherwise.

Your editorial was really outstanding, and I hope when you find a public servant doing a good job you will continue editorials such as this.

Stagnant Water

West Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

In recent weeks your paper has said very much about rabies control in Ouachita Parish. This question therefore became very prevalent in my mind. Why spend over a thousand dollars protecting one dog from another when there are places in this parish that breed far worse diseases. It is not common sense to know that a ditch full of stagnant water, rubbish, etc. would, will and does breed more insidious diseases than one dog will transmit to another.

The place that I make reference to is located on Ouachita Drive in the West Monroe Area. I ask you as one citizen to another to personally inspect the drainage situation and therefore draw your own conclusion. It is my personal and sincere opinion that your paper has the will and fortitude to help the good people of this area with this problem of sanitation and to have the perseverance to put human health before that of a dog.

It is not my purpose to gloat the fair-haired politicians of Ouachita Parish, but rather to awaken them to the fact that we pay taxes and that we vote. Therefore I say in closing, let us protect mankind from the human first, and the canine from the dog last.

SPCA In Monroe

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

A good dog pound and a cruelty prevention society for animals? I wish to express myself strongly in favor of both.

This week a friend of mine found one of her fine collie dogs bleeding at the mouth and she rushed it to an animal hospital and the vet was able to save it. It was the children's pet and they had raised it from a little puppy.

On other occasions I have seen fine dogs beaten cruelly. Once a fine dog whose only transgression was rushing gladly to meet its master and for this show of affection wa subjected to a cruel beating. I was informed by the owner that she hated it and called the dog pound and had them come and get it.

The other was a beautiful white collie, which I saw beaten with a yard broom. I am quite sure this dog had escaped from a circus. I had previously fed it when I found it thirsty and hungry. It ate ravenously and then left.

Then there are people who put out rat poison and thereby poison cats. A poisoned cat is a pitiful thing to watch. My cat has been poisoned three times, but I have been able to pull it through. It's crime being that it likes to scratch in fresh dirt and probably scratched up some flower seed.

Can't we organize an SPCA in Monroe?

What Kind Of Mark Have You?

Psalms Ninety says, "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. I will say of the Lord, he is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in Him will I trust. Surely He shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisesome pestilence. He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust: His truth shall be thy shield and buckler. Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day; nor for the pestilence that walketh by darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday. A Thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand but it shall not come nigh thee. Only with thine eyes shalt thou behold and see the reward of the wicked . . ."

Fellow Americans, it is not hard to realize that the days which are passing are days of crisis for the nation. On every hand, evil hands are working. At every hour, the forces of Satan himself are diligently working to speed the deliverance of America into the hands of destruction.

Throughout the United States and overseas, there are devoted men asking, begging and pleading on bended knees for Religious peoples everywhere to awaken to the dangers at hand, to take the sword and the shield and prepare for battle with the ungodly. Never has the Church been faced with an enemy who uses the Church itself as its weapon. Never have a people, satisfied in their material power and vanity, been so smug in the face of near disaster.

It has been said that on the people of the Earth today there are two distinguishing marks. One is the mark of godliness while the other is the mark of the ungodly. One must consider seriously his future in the light of that fact. If you have the mark of God stamped in your mind, it is certain that you are opposed to the forces working against the Church and nation. Unless you have this mark, you must be branded with the other sign. It is as simple as that; no in between.

It is certain that for your beliefs, if the present foreign situation fails to change for the better, you will suffer. Christ offered not a picnic or a holiday to those who joined his religion. He offered a fight for existence on the face of the Earth. Today, as believers in God, Americans should place their faith in God, yet, how many do? One can easily be a "half-hour Christian," he can know the ritual of his church forward and backward, but it is that which is in his mind, the thoughts, that count. The best churchgoers can never miss a service, they can know the prayer book inside out and can repeat the scriptures from Genesis through Revelations, but do they believe them? What good does it do to know these things unless you have faith in them and can really believe them?

How many Americans today are placing their trust in God? Apparently, there are many who don't and some of them include those who are supposedly His ministers. One is shocked to read each week of men high in some Churches denouncing other churches and their officials and lay-members. Did the uncalled for diatribe by two Bishops of one faith against another Church of a different faith spark of godliness? Were these men, acting in the interests or under the commandments of God in making such intemperate statements? It is hard to believe that their trust is in God and not in their own supposed power.

The American people are today faced with fiery and terrible destruction on one hand, moral and domestic destruction on the other, but in some ethereal dream, they maintain the idea that "nothing can happen here." A glance at the history books is enough to point out that nation after nation which lost God, lost itself. A loss of faith is the key to quick destruction. The "half-hour Christians" who pride themselves on never missing Church, but conveniently forgetting what they heard as soon as the service is over, must reconsider.

Religion is not made for fashion. It is not put at the disposal of people so that they can show the other man how much better he is, it is not made for the convenience of the human race. Religion as an instructor is a hard taskmaster. The following of God's laws in these days and times bring sometimes insults and derogatory remarks. The early Christians had no fear of insult, theirs were the marks of pain and suffering and each scar was as a medal for valor. The Apostle Paul was a notable example of this. He bore the scars of the beatings, the stonings and the clubbings he received at the hands of the pagans and the unbelievers all of his life, yet, never was there a more kindly or patient human.

It is certain that the human race was put on the Earth for a purpose. Whether it is an individual purpose, or an overall collective purpose is not known by the keenest of clerics. God's ways are marvelous and are not disputable. It is just as certain that at the close of the days, there will come a time of judgement. Those who bear the marks of God will ascend to His place and the others——.

These days in the face of the destruction of the Human race, all Americans as temporal leaders of the Earth's free peoples should be on their knees at every opportunity asking guidance of God and placing their faith in Him who it is certain will deliver in some manner every person, young or old.

Instead, what does one behold? The very houses of God are profaned by bigots and usurpers who defile the commandments of God preaching a gospel of hate towards one's fellow man. The people are asleep, unaware of the dangers and furthermore, not caring to learn about them. Those who make their voices heard above the snores of disunity and nonbelief are branded "hysterical and not in keeping with the times." What in the name of all that is fair are the "times?" What kind of times are these that resound with the footsteps of degeneracy and hypocracy in the highest of places, debauchery of youth, of adults, the idolizing of gross sinners and the adulation of non-believers?

Jesus said, "I am the resurection and the life: He that believeth in me though he were dead, yet shall he live." The power of virtue is not in man, but in God. Belief in God is that virtue. Americans, the time is short. Best everyone consider his mark. There are but two kinds.

Which ones are found on you?

Caldwell Parish

In the years gone by, in the present and in the future, Caldwell parish with the source of government, the parish seat at Columbia will hold a strategic place in the overall development of the area. Trends in the past several decades and the predictions of the future show that great amounts of new industry will head South. As the leader of agriculture, and having marked the advance of progress and industrial growth over the land, to a great extent the well being of the nation might well be found in the South.

In this great advance, destined beyond a shadow of a doubt to play an extremely important part, is Caldwell parish.

With fertile land, numerous waterways and other advantages, this Northeast Louisiana parish through which, flows the beautiful Ouachita river, has many beneficial opportunities both natural and man made to offer in the additional growth of the area.

Caldwell people are progressive as is seen in the government, schools, churches and business life. In the minds of the elected officials, the object seems to be, "what's good for the betterment of my parish, is what I want." There are predictions that water transport as well as the already present rail and highway systems will spur future industrial growth. A United States engineer recently stated that "the future will see more river transportation than was ever recorded in the days of the steamboat. God gave this water system to the South and it is up to the South to utilize it. Caldwell parish seems to be starting the procedure.

Those who are watching the area grow, and those who follow the signs of the times, can see "leadership" written all over the Caldwell parish records. To her citizens who have in the past years demonstrated the heritage of their forefathers, will certainly go a high position in the new South.

Just watch Caldwell parish grow alongside her sister parishes in Louisiana and the progressive new South.

Must There Be Disunity?

The American people have in the past weeks, seen a terrible spectacle. They have beheld two sincere men, both apparently working for the same end result, split, and presumably driven apart when there is no necessity for such action and when the nation needs to be about far more important business. The result on the nation's governmental life has been chaos.

Senator McCarthy pleads for a continued investigation into the activities of subversives and the President continues to demand a further and harder fight against the Communists overseas. Can there be a better combination in the war against Marxism? Instead, there is the terrible situation wherein Senator McCarthy is not even given a fair break by the press corps in the capitol, most of whom despise him, being followers of another philosophy. Their word goes to the President and their loaded questions are placed to insure that in some manner, he gratifies them by denunciatory remarks aimed not directly at the Senator, but in a manner which leaves no doubt as to whom the statements are directed.

In short, there is a most concerted and deliberate attempt to split the two officials. Was there any real necessity for the statement by the President at his press conference on Wednesday? He asserted that in effect, "no judge should try his own case." When informed that the Senator had previously announced his intention to step down off the committee, the President offered a "no comment."

Does the President not know the situation surrounding the McCarthy-Army case? Does he not realize that it was one of his own officials who leaked a "report" to the Alsop brothers, infamous Washington columnists? Did he not realize that the Alsop brothers then gave the "report" to the Democrat senators?

Is this honorable or proper procedure for a supposedly Republican administration leader? Does the tapping of the Senator's telephone wires by Stevens add to the honor of the administration? Is the Senator not to be granted the privilege accorded every common criminal, that of the right of cross examination?

The President would seem to indicate that McCarthy should not be granted even this privilege. This newspaper has dealt extensively with the efforts of the Republican "Advance" into the administration. It realizes full well that the President is receiving advice not in accord with the wishes of a great many Americans both in the foreign policy and the domestic fields. There is small doubt that the President has lost a great amount of his perspective in this heated affair which has reached porportions all out of contact with the real importance of the matter.

Must one either be "anti-McCarthy, pro-Eisenhower" or "pro-McCarthy, anti-Eisenhower?" Indeed that is what the Marxists and many others desire. Are the two both seemingly working towards the end of Communism not able to reconcile their views? It would appear that until the rumor mongers of the capitol press corps stop their racing back and forth between the Senator and the President with their "did you hear what he said about you now" statements, there can be no peace.

In the meantime, the American people are becoming screened from the events of the days by the terrible barrage of McCarthy wire stories. Indeed, the wire editors of the newspapers today are hard put to find anything but a McCarthy story to send to the printers.

The President must realize that the very same columnists who today are espousing his cause against the Wisconsin Senator, are the very same ones who used the lowest of tactics in "blowing up" the Nixon affair and supporting beyond all degrees of fairness and journalistic ethics, his opponent, Mr. Stevenson, in the election. After they have succeeded in destroying unity within the Republican party, they will indeed, return their support to their own particular philosophy which so many of them support, the one directly opposed to that supposedly held by Mr. Eisenhower.

There is no necessity for disunity and the faster the President realizes it, the better off everyone will be. Both men can do their excellent work in close cooperation and harmony, a force which is needed if there is to be a successful opposition to the danger at hand.

Baptist Minister Takes Issue With Editorials

Oak Ridge, La.

Editor, Morning World:

Consistent attention to the editorial pages of the News-Star and Morning World has convinced me that you are assuming, either deliberately or unconsciously, the role of a moral crusader. I should not wish to question your sincerity in seeking to achieve worthy ends; but I do raise serious questions about the means employed to achieve them. Without knowing what voice you may have in the policies of the two papers, one can see a synchronization of the tone in the editorials with that of the total thought pattern of the papers. A prime effect is to underscore an apparent fundamental policy in the form of an old—although completely false—assumption that "the end justifies the means." Am I right and is this policy morally correct? There is a vast difference between morality and moralizing.

To be specific, notice the editorial page of the News-Star for Monday, March 22 (almost any other issue of either paper would do). The lead editorial — "St. Lawrence Seaway" — is a classic example of the policy in question. That is a tame one, though, compared to the incredible thing alongside it, "The New Orleans Incidents." Apparently you are not satisfied with the Constitution's guarantees relative to the Separation of Church and State. You would sell your birthright for a mess of pottage.

Can you see the inconsistency of your position? Obviously, alcoholism is a more widely prevalent evil than narcotics addiction; yet your papers regularly advertise liquor. With one side of your mouth you emotionally implore us to try to "get God into the schools"; with the other side you encourage things that, according to your reasoning, would indicate the lack of His presence there. Is it not true that we have legislation authorizing the teaching in our public schools of the scientific facts about the effects of alcohol and narcotics upon the human body? We need the moral courage and support to demand the enforcement of existing laws.

I fail to follow your naive assumption that given religious teaching in the public schools there would be ipso facto a swift decline in narcotics addiction. Jeepers! You are now ignoring states' rights, local option. home rule, FEPC and what have you. Really now, shouldn't you be the first to cry that government has already assumed too many prerogatives without taking on the additional load of attempting religious teaching? The teachers in our public schools are hardly qualified professionally to teach religion. But more important, what religion would be taught? The diversity of our religious culture spells defeat for any attempt at non-sectarian religious instruction even if it were possible to find an individual without sectarian bias to teach it. Are we to suppose that the school can accomplish what (as you would suggest) the home and the church have failed to accomplish?

The truth is that God is "on the side of the schools" now and is already in the classrooms, for the door can't be barred to Him as if He were a magazine salesman. I am quite confident that God goes to schoool with my children as He does with countless others like them who, as they should, have learned about Him at home and in Sunday School and the services of their church. I am unalterably opposed to any form of religious teaching in our public schools: they have grown great and are a mighty bulwark for Democracy without it. The opinion that they are wicked is unjustified.

Again, looking at the same editorial page, I must strenuously object to Pegler's scandalous and beastly column. He says that J.B. Matthews "truthfully remarked in a magazine article that protestant ministers were playing a dangerous part in the Red conspiracy." I am unable to express my utter contempt for such foul lies. Why do you print them? If you call such filth "bringing us back to morality" then many of us are confused, because it doesn't sound like anything that Jesus is reported to have said. Why your paper would pay money for such folderol and support such a parasite is beyond me.

Finally, your near fanatical devotion to McCarthy in no wise contributes toward a better morality. But it follows the inexorable pattern: reckless charges and sensational overstatement; ultra-nationalism and its concomitant — a compulsive effort to force acceptance of one's opinions as normative and final (remember the Puerto Ricans who shot up Blair House and the congressmen). It is regrettable that you must place yourself in the presumptuous position of appearing to believe that you and McCarthy are about the only simon-pure patriots left. You have no certainty that even McCarthy will remain true to the faith, so that leaves only you. Poor you!

As an objective presentation of reasoned opinion, an editorial can be a positive force in crystallizing public thought through reflection upon all sides of an issue. The editor, to be sure, is entitled to his opinion; but remember that although bias is inevitable, it should be kept at a minimum and under constant criticism.

I like to think of a good newspaper as history being recorded daily. The editorial page should aim to present a cross section of the best contemporary thought on vital issues of the day. My considered judgment, after extensive conversations with a wide circle of readers, is that our Monroe papers should give us a diet more substantial in protein content and less greasy with McCarthyism.

"Quackropractic"

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

On behalf of the Ouachita Parish Medical Society and the Fifth District Medical Society I would like to thank you for your sincere interest and editorial comments referable to the "cult" of Chiropractic Medicine. As an ethical, professional group, we must depend upon unbiased layman as yourself to alert the community to such hazards of public health.

The members of the Medical Profession are not infallible, neither are they endowed with supernatural powers, but they have at their command all of the medical ideas which have been tested and proven since written history began.

Every physician is pledged to give his discoveries to his fellow practitioners and the ideas of each generation have been passed along to the next generation. When an organization has studied, and taught and practiced a certain line of reasoning for 10,000 years, they are quite likely to have knowledge which is worth using. The ideas which present day physicians are using are based on the toil and study of millions of capable men who have devoted their lives to this work.

True, the Louisiana State Medical Society is sponsoring a program designed to place the cold facts before the public. This is our honest responsibility to the community. It is not intended to insult the accused's personal intelligence, but it is designed to educate the layman as to the "cult's" ignorance and incompetence to practice medicine. These are the cultists who advertise in the newspapers that they can cure tuberculosis, heart disease, cancer, and infectious diseases by simply "adjusting the spine."

Chiropractic, per-se, may have its derivation from the Greek era, but it was founded by the owner of a grocery and meat market in 1895. I should not think it facetious to recognize that such a meager beginning has propelled itself to the most prosperous business in 59 years.

It is stated that the course of study covers four years, but it is not stated how many years the student actually completes. It is stated that a 4,400 hours basic course is recommended, but it is not stated how many hours are required! If the curriculum and hours of study parallel or surpass the minimum requirements of the American Medical Association for Class A Medical Schools, why doesn't the American Medical Association recognize Chiropractors as Doctors of Medicine? To become a Doctor of Medicine, a high school graduate must attend college (pre-medical school) four years, maintaining a "B" average or better in grades before he is even considered for Medical School. If he is accepted for Medical School, he must then maintain a passing grade for four additional years before he is allowed to graduate. He then interns for one year, and, if he desires to specialize, he remains in one of the medical centers as a resident for from three to five more years, depending upon the specialty. Thus, you can see that a high school graduate has from nine to thirteen years ahead of him before he is allowed to practice in any of our communities. Should anyone wish to complete this medical course as outlined above and then see fit to limit himself to Chiropractic medicine, he could certainly do so with our blessings!

It is stated that there are 22,000 chiropractors in the U. S. and over 32,000,000 citizens in America under chiropractor "care"; but this doesn't necessarily make it legitimate. In fact, in our own state of Louisiana, it is — at the present— illegal to practice chiropractic medicine. But it was proudly boasted that there were 100 chiropractors practicing in Louisiana currently, despite their knowledge that the law exists.

I dwell only briefly upon the explanation given for chiropractic medicine. It is asinine to believe that any man can "adjust" a vertebral column (the spine). For all intents and purpose, it is a boney, semi - rigid structure, supported by many strong ligaments and muscles. To actually move (or adjust) one vertebra forward or backward upon the other, even a fraction of an inch, would cause immediate paralysis from this level of the spinal cord, downward. If this should occur high enough in the neck, immediate death ensues. If this method of treatment is to be accepted, then the years and years of medical research in the fields of polio myelitis, cancer, and heart disease, to mention only a few, have been wasted, to say nothing of the millions of dollars donated to support them.

We are shamed for having deprived sick people of chiropractic medical care. Yet, it is stated, that the chiropractor does not want to practice medicine. Pray tell, what is the practice of medicine if it is not the care of the sick? Thus, th physician - anesthesiologist's terminology, "Chiropractic Medicine," to me, is well - founded. It is stat-that the chiropractor prescribes no medicine, performs no surgery, etc.; however, may I here refer you to a short article which appeared in our local newspaper only recently, verbatum.

Chicago, March 10 —U P —Two men were ordered booked Wednesday on charges of performing an abortion on a 24-year-old unmarried Dallas girl who was found dead on a suburban street Tuesday.

An inquest into the death of Ozell Skains, Dallas telephone operator, was continued until March 18 to permit a chemical analysis.

Ordered booked at the inquest Wednesday were John C. Goetschel 26, and George Malek, 27.

At the inquest, Oak Park police Lt. Fremont P. Nestor testified that both men told him they knew Miss Skains was pregnant out of wedlock.

He said Goetschel, a chiropractor, told him he prescribed 12 five-grain quinine tablets for her and told her to take two at a time, followed by a hot bath.

Goetschel, Nestor said, also admitted giving Miss Skains chiropractic treatments in an attempt to induce abortion.

Thus the word is actually "Quackropractic." It is derived from one English and one Greek word. "Quack" and "Praktikos," meaning "done by quacks."

Seriously, our objection to chiropractors is certainly nothing new. The Louisiana State Medical Society has, for years, opposed any legislation relative to admitting chiropractors to this state. Louisiana is proudly one of the three states in the Union that has not legally accepted chiropractic medicine. There can be no compromise when the health of our families is at stake. To this end, our legislators in the past, have always agreed.

It is our sincere hope and prayer that th citizens of this community will recognize the true facts and join us in our fight for their well-being.

Chairman - Committee on Public Policy, Ouachita Parish Medical Society.

Chiropractor Doctors

El Dorado, Ark.

Editor, Morning World:

I read in your paper that there is an attack on the Chiropractor doctors in Louisiana. In behalf of them and my own experience; my neck was broken in 1948, causing high blood pressure. I tried many fine doctors, but no medicine did any good. I wasn't able to work at all. A certain Chiropractor was recommended to me and I started taking adjustments, but I did not have any confidence in him. I continued to go and I began to improve and now am working everyday and have been since September 1, 1953.

I want the world to know I am 100 per cent for them and if any question I could answer would help, I would be glad to do so.

DAR Deserves Homage Of All Americans

Columbus, Ohio.

Editor, Morning World:

Your editorial of recent date, republished in The Columbus Ohio Dispatch, dealing with America's outstanding patriotic organization, the Daughters of the American Revolution, is most timely, for which I wish to thank you.

With you I join in praise of the fine work this great organization has done and is doing to keep this magnificent nation of ours on the true road that made it great and the most powerful of nations in recorded history. This organization has consistently and with undeviating courage fought its detractors and deserves the homage of all red - blooded Americans.

It seems clear that in our generation there has arisen a coterie of false philosophers, preaching a false doctrine entirely foreign to the original American concept of human self - government. These pseudo-liberals would have us accept the principle that government is everything, creator of all, man included, the very antithesis of everything our founding fathers believed and advocated in establishing this new idea of self - government. There was just one idea in all the thought, planning and designing this American concept . . . banishment of tyranny which our forbears came over here to get away from, religious, political and economic . . . and to set up a form of government that would forever bar the rearing of its ugly head again. These pseudo - liberals, apparently knowing little or nothing of the history of tyranny, would, in their ignorance, take us back down that long, hard road from which it took man 4000 long years to emerge.

That, briefly, is what the DAR is fighting.

Dear John Letters

Korea.

Editor, Morning World:

I am one of the home town boys here in Korea. Since being in Korea I have found a rather difficult situation in the receiving of mail and the problems of boys and their girl friends and husbands and wives. There has been so many Dear John letters written from home I think due to the misunderstandings of the Korean situation.

In my opinion, as so many hundreds of other guys here, people seem to think that the war is over. But it isn't, just a cease fire. We are facing a serious situation.

Would you please print in your paper just a little to let our wives and girl friends know that we need their assurance and confidence as much as ever. To get that we must hear from them. The problem of being untrue to our loved ones while in Korea is the main trouble.

I hope that you will please place this in your paper because it would help us here ever so much.

Highway Police—A Credit To Louisiana

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

I want to congratulate you on the article regarding the state police.

I think it is wonderful if papers, radio stations and television stations will give public servants credit where credit is due.

I think the state highway police are doing a great job, and trying hard, and if they can get the support of newspapers, radio stations and television stations it will make them feel a lot better in some of the ways they are treated otherwise.

Your editorial was really outstanding, and I hope when you find a public servant doing a good job you will continue editorials such as this.

Stagnant Water

West Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

In recent weeks your paper has said very much about rabies control in Ouachita Parish. This question therefore became very prevalent in my mind. Why spend over a thousand dollars protecting one dog from another when there are places in this parish that breed far worse diseases. It is not common sense to know that a ditch full of stagnant water, rubbish, etc. would, will and does breed more insidious diseases than one dog will transmit to another.

The place that I make reference to is located on Ouachita Drive in the West Monroe Area. I ask you as one citizen to another to personally inspect the drainage situation and therefore draw your own conclusion. It is my personal and sincere opinion that your paper has the will and fortitude to help the good people of this area with this problem of sanitation and to have the perseverance to put human health before that of a dog.

It is not my purpose to gloat the fair-haired politicians of Ouachita Parish, but rather to awaken them to the fact that we pay taxes and that we vote. Therefore I say in closing, let us protect mankind from the human first, and the canine from the dog last.

SPCA In Monroe

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

A good dog pound and a cruelty prevention society for animals? I wish to express myself strongly in favor of both.

This week a friend of mine found one of her fine collie dogs bleeding at the mouth and she rushed it to an animal hospital and the vet was able to save it. It was the children's pet and they had raised it from a little puppy.

On other occasions I have seen fine dogs beaten cruelly. Once a fine dog whose only transgression was rushing gladly to meet its master and for this show of affection wa subjected to a cruel beating. I was informed by the owner that she hated it and called the dog pound and had them come and get it.

The other was a beautiful white collie, which I saw beaten with a yard broom. I am quite sure this dog had escaped from a circus. I had previously fed it when I found it thirsty and hungry. It ate ravenously and then left.

Then there are people who put out rat poison and thereby poison cats. A poisoned cat is a pitiful thing to watch. My cat has been poisoned three times, but I have been able to pull it through. It's crime being that it likes to scratch in fresh dirt and probably scratched up some flower seed.

Can't we organize an SPCA in Monroe?

Warning Issued Here Against Two Promoters

The Louisiana Safety Association Saturday warned all civic organizations and fraternal organizations in the Twin Cities that two promoters—not sanctioned by the association—are canvassing clubs in various towns in Louisiana for the purpose of selling safety materials under the guise of setting up safety campaigns in conjunction with civic organizations.

According to the safety association, the deal made to the civic organizations is that 50 per cent of the money goes to them to pay for their material and their time; and the other 50 per cent goes to the civic organization for some charitable uses.

An operator has been in Marshall, Tex., and approaches have been made to several civic clubs in Shreveport.

Caddo Bossier Safety Council of Shreveport and Louisiana Safety Association, both chapters of the National Safety Council, do not sanction or foster the exploitation of safety campaigns in communities.

It is requested that the members of your organization be advised of the solicitation program.

Check Forgery Suspect Placed In Parish Jail

Monroe detectives Friday night arrested Willie Henderson, 47, Negro, 405 North Twenty-fourth Street, on a charge of forgery. Henderson was alleged to have cashed several "hot" checks at Joe La Dart's Grocery, 201 North Eleventh Street.

La Dart told the Morning World he had known Henderson for quite a few years, during which time he cashed a number of checks for the Negro, none of which "bounced."

Last week, La Dart explained, Henderson cashed a $25 check at his store. Several days later, before the first could be returned from the bank, he cashed another for $30. Thursday night La Dart cashed still another check, for $25, for Henderson. When the checks were returned from the bank, La Dart notified police.

When Henderson wanted to cash another $25 check Friday, La Dart excused himself to "answer the phone." He then called police. Henderson became suspicious and fled, but not before La Dart could get the license number of his car.

Upon arrival detective gave pursuit, but lost the Negro. A short time later La Dart received a call from a local bar, where Henderson was reported to be attempting to cash another check. Once more police were notified, but when the detectives arrived a few minutes later, Henderson had departed.

The flight was in vain, however, for Henderson was taken into custody at his home Friday night by detective Capt. H. B. Johnson and detective Zack Booth. He was transferred to the parish jail, and will be tried in district court.

State Library Group Winds Up Convention

Members of the Louisiana Library Association wound up a three-day convention shortly after noon Saturday after hearing reports from five members on special services to the community. The presentations of these talks were given in the general session held in the ballroom of the Virginia Hotel, beginning at 9 a.m. yesterday.

Approximately 240 delegates and guests were in attendance at the 28th annual convention which brought guest speakers from Philadelphia, New York, Chicago and Texas, as well as cities throughout the state.

Speaking to the special libraries association at a luncheon meeting, Miss Frances Hedgpeth, staff librarian, Second Air Force, Barksdale Field, described "How Air Force Libraries Work."

Other discussions held in the final day of the convention were:

"The New Orleans Public Library on Television," by Mrs. Evelyn Cormier, librarian at the Martin Behrman High School, New Orleans.

"Bibliography of Louisiana State Documents," Mrs. Margaret Lane, recorder of documents, Office of the Secretary of State, Baton Rouge.

"Patterns of Public Library Service to Negroes in Louisiana," Mrs. Lois Shortess, Louisiana State Library, Baton Rouge.

"The Webster Parish Materials Center," Miss Sue Hefley, supervisor of the Webster Parish Materials Center, Minden.

"Off-Campus Branch Libraries, Northwestern State College," Miss Olive Roberts, Northwestern State College, Natchitoches.

Friday night at the book dinner, held atop the Virginia Hotel, the annual Modisette and literary awards were presented. Receiving the Modisette award for outstanding work in the field of public libraries was the Iberville Parish library, represented by Mrs. Kay Werner McGinnis, librarian. Mrs. Fensky Terzia of Monroe, new member of the Louisiana Library board, made the presentation.

R. G. McWilliams, who translated a 22-year narrative of an early French explorer, was the recipient of the Louisiana Library Association literary award. A. O. Goldsmith, member of the LSU press, accepted in behalf of the translator, who was unable to attend the meeting. Mrs. Lois Shortess presented the award.

Speaking on the "Gaucho in the Library," Edward Laroque Tinker, American novelist and attorney of New York City, urged delegates and friends of the Louisiana Library Association to turn to Latin America and its literature for "closer association with visitors from those countries." The noted speaker and biographer termed the countries to the south of the United States as fertile fields for persons in the library field to obtain folk lore and books which rival those of western Americana.

Tinker, who twice has been cited by the French government for his works in the French influence in America, especially in Louisiana, was the principal speaker at the book dinner held Friday night on the roof garden of the Virginia Hotel. The dinner meeting was the final social-business highlight of the three-day meeting, which ended shortly after noon Saturday.

Although most noted for his works on French influence in Louisiana, both in literature and in bibliographies, Tinker, while on a tour of South and Central America under the auspices of the Carnegie Endowment, made a collection of books on the gaucho, the cowboy of Argentina and Uraguay. Shortly afterwards his book, "The Horsemen of the Americas, and the Literature They Inspired," was published. His talk to the 28th annual convention of the state Library Association was taken from this book and the work which was necessary to bring the publication out.

Local Burglary Solved Following Arrest Of Three

The arrest yesterday afternoon of three Negro juveniles by detectives and Major John Whitfield, city juvenile officer, solved one of two burglaries reported to have occurred in Monroe Friday night.

The three youths were arrested a little over an hour after the Friday night burglary of the Negro Recreation Center, Eleventh and Oak streets, was reported to police.

Chief of detectives Hugh Tolbert said the youths gained entrance to the building by forcing a door on the east side of the building. Forty phonograph records, valued at $30, and two cases of soft drinks were reported missing.

Tolbert said the phonograph records were recovered, but that the soft drinks had gone the way of all soft drinks in the possession of three thirsty boys.

The burglary was reported at 2:45 p.m. The juveniles were taken into custody about 4 p.m.

A burglar was also reported to have taken an untold amount of dry cleaning and laundry from Liner's Laundry, 512 South Grand street, between 5 p.m. Friday and 7 a.m. Saturday.

Detectives said the thief gained entrance to the building by working his way along a wall beside the river, and climbing through an opening in the rear of the building, where a window formerly had been. There was no obstruction in the opening at the time of the theft.

State Library's Need For Building Backed By Group

The citizens' library movement, meeting in connection with the Louisiana Library Association at the Virginia hotel, reaffirmed its support of the Louisiana State Library's need for a new building.

The citizens' movement is composed of organizations and individuals united to promote library development in the state. One of its 1954 goals is to secure funds from the Legislature for the construction of a state library building.

In his report, James L. Love of Hammond, president of the group, spoke of the enthusiastic backing of individuals and organizations in promoting the objectives of the movement. Love mentioned the endorsements of educational, culturral, civic, and veterans' organizations on the state and local level. He commended parish library boards for their help and interest. Love commented on the cooperation of newspapers, both editorially and in their news columns.

Officers, in addition to Love, include Mrs. Fenn A. Leaming, Mansfield, vice-president; Mrs. George Lester, Bains, secretary; C. Paul Phelps, Ponchatoula, treasurer; John Caffery, Franklin, Dr. Harriett Daggett, Baton Rouge, and Mrs. Martha Robinson, New Orleans, directors; and Sallie Farrell, Baton Rouge, executive secretary.

Defense Official Stresses Value Of Early Warnings

BATON ROUGE—UP—Victor E. Cooley, deputy director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, said here Saturday that continued improvement of the military early warning system is "probably the greatest possible contribution" the federal government can make to local defense.

Cooley, addressing the Louisiana Municipal Association, said that with only a few minutes of warning of impending attack, individuals can "duck and cover" and thus increase their chances of survival "by as much as 50 per cent."

"Presumably we can improve our status in direct ratio to the time we have in which to take precautions against assault," the civil defense official said.

Cooley told the mayors and other officials of Louisiana cities that New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Shreveport are considered principal target areas and that these and other targets "should be best prepared for disaster." Among the steps he suggested for protection from atomic attack:

1. Dispersion—"Don't be there when the bomb hits." Make the cities less attractive as targets by encouraging a "live in the suburbs" movement.

2. Improving the "physical security" or construction of principal facilities and strengthening the protective features, such as bomb shelters, of existing buildings within cities. "The area of total distribution would be reduced about one-third if all buildings could stand a pressure of ten pounds per square inch."

3. Reduce fire hazards by "better housekeeping"—enforcement of existing laws to lessen the amount of combustible material in potential "firestorm" areas.

Essential governmental functions at all levels must continue, Cooley said, to insure preservation of law and order, control of fires and rescue, health and welfare services, and restoration of municipal utility services and the judicial and legal systems.

"One thing we must remember," Cooley added, "both the reduction of our vulnerability and our preparations for meeting attack should be carried out in an atmosphere of calm deliberation—not in a state of hysteria that encourages scattering of frenzied efforts in all directions that could only incite panic in the event of a real emergency."

Warning Issued Here Against Two Promoters

The Louisiana Safety Association Saturday warned all civic organizations and fraternal organizations in the Twin Cities that two promoters—not sanctioned by the association—are canvassing clubs in various towns in Louisiana for the purpose of selling safety materials under the guise of setting up safety campaigns in conjunction with civic organizations.

According to the safety association, the deal made to the civic organizations is that 50 per cent of the money goes to them to pay for their material and their time; and the other 50 per cent goes to the civic organization for some charitable uses.

An operator has been in Marshall, Tex., and approaches have been made to several civic clubs in Shreveport.

Caddo Bossier Safety Council of Shreveport and Louisiana Safety Association, both chapters of the National Safety Council, do not sanction or foster the exploitation of safety campaigns in communities.

It is requested that the members of your organization be advised of the solicitation program.

Check Forgery Suspect Placed In Parish Jail

Monroe detectives Friday night arrested Willie Henderson, 47, Negro, 405 North Twenty-fourth Street, on a charge of forgery. Henderson was alleged to have cashed several "hot" checks at Joe La Dart's Grocery, 201 North Eleventh Street.

La Dart told the Morning World he had known Henderson for quite a few years, during which time he cashed a number of checks for the Negro, none of which "bounced."

Last week, La Dart explained, Henderson cashed a $25 check at his store. Several days later, before the first could be returned from the bank, he cashed another for $30. Thursday night La Dart cashed still another check, for $25, for Henderson. When the checks were returned from the bank, La Dart notified police.

When Henderson wanted to cash another $25 check Friday, La Dart excused himself to "answer the phone." He then called police. Henderson became suspicious and fled, but not before La Dart could get the license number of his car.

Upon arrival detective gave pursuit, but lost the Negro. A short time later La Dart received a call from a local bar, where Henderson was reported to be attempting to cash another check. Once more police were notified, but when the detectives arrived a few minutes later, Henderson had departed.

The flight was in vain, however, for Henderson was taken into custody at his home Friday night by detective Capt. H. B. Johnson and detective Zack Booth. He was transferred to the parish jail, and will be tried in district court.

The grand prize, a $100 savings bond donated by The Shreveport Times, was presented to Martha Emily Farrow of Centenary College for her play, "The Sleeping Beauty." The winner was chosen from the four first place manuscripts.

State Library Group Winds Up Convention

Members of the Louisiana Library Association wound up a three-day convention shortly after noon Saturday after hearing reports from five members on special services to the community. The presentations of these talks were given in the general session held in the ballroom of the Virginia Hotel, beginning at 9 a.m. yesterday.

Approximately 240 delegates and guests were in attendance at the 28th annual convention which brought guest speakers from Philadelphia, New York, Chicago and Texas, as well as cities throughout the state.

Speaking to the special libraries association at a luncheon meeting, Miss Frances Hedgpeth, staff librarian, Second Air Force, Barksdale Field, described "How Air Force Libraries Work."

Other discussions held in the final day of the convention were:

"The New Orleans Public Library on Television," by Mrs. Evelyn Cormier, librarian at the Martin Behrman High School, New Orleans.

"Bibliography of Louisiana State Documents," Mrs. Margaret Lane, recorder of documents, Office of the Secretary of State, Baton Rouge.

"Patterns of Public Library Service to Negroes in Louisiana," Mrs. Lois Shortess, Louisiana State Library, Baton Rouge.

"The Webster Parish Materials Center," Miss Sue Hefley, supervisor of the Webster Parish Materials Center, Minden.

"Off-Campus Branch Libraries, Northwestern State College," Miss Olive Roberts, Northwestern State College, Natchitoches.

Friday night at the book dinner, held atop the Virginia Hotel, the annual Modisette and literary awards were presented. Receiving the Modisette award for outstanding work in the field of public libraries was the Iberville Parish library, represented by Mrs. Kay Werner McGinnis, librarian. Mrs. Fensky Terzia of Monroe, new member of the Louisiana Library board, made the presentation.

R. G. McWilliams, who translated a 22-year narrative of an early French explorer, was the recipient of the Louisiana Library Association literary award. A. O. Goldsmith, member of the LSU press, accepted in behalf of the translator, who was unable to attend the meeting. Mrs. Lois Shortess presented the award.

Speaking on the "Gaucho in the Library," Edward Laroque Tinker, American novelist and attorney of New York City, urged delegates and friends of the Louisiana Library Association to turn to Latin America and its literature for "closer association with visitors from those countries." The noted speaker and biographer termed the countries to the south of the United States as fertile fields for persons in the library field to obtain folk lore and books which rival those of western Americana.

Tinker, who twice has been cited by the French government for his works in the French influence in America, especially in Louisiana, was the principal speaker at the book dinner held Friday night on the roof garden of the Virginia Hotel. The dinner meeting was the final social-business highlight of the three-day meeting, which ended shortly after noon Saturday.

Although most noted for his works on French influence in Louisiana, both in literature and in bibliographies, Tinker, while on a tour of South and Central America under the auspices of the Carnegie Endowment, made a collection of books on the gaucho, the cowboy of Argentina and Uraguay. Shortly afterwards his book, "The Horsemen of the Americas, and the Literature They Inspired," was published. His talk to the 28th annual convention of the state Library Association was taken from this book and the work which was necessary to bring the publication out.

Local Burglary Solved Following Arrest Of Three

The arrest yesterday afternoon of three Negro juveniles by detectives and Major John Whitfield, city juvenile officer, solved one of two burglaries reported to have occurred in Monroe Friday night.

The three youths were arrested a little over an hour after the Friday night burglary of the Negro Recreation Center, Eleventh and Oak streets, was reported to police.

Chief of detectives Hugh Tolbert said the youths gained entrance to the building by forcing a door on the east side of the building. Forty phonograph records, valued at $30, and two cases of soft drinks were reported missing.

Tolbert said the phonograph records were recovered, but that the soft drinks had gone the way of all soft drinks in the possession of three thirsty boys.

The burglary was reported at 2:45 p.m. The juveniles were taken into custody about 4 p.m.

A burglar was also reported to have taken an untold amount of dry cleaning and laundry from Liner's Laundry, 512 South Grand street, between 5 p.m. Friday and 7 a.m. Saturday.

Detectives said the thief gained entrance to the building by working his way along a wall beside the river, and climbing through an opening in the rear of the building, where a window formerly had been. There was no obstruction in the opening at the time of the theft.

State Library's Need For Building Backed By Group

The citizens' library movement, meeting in connection with the Louisiana Library Association at the Virginia hotel, reaffirmed its support of the Louisiana State Library's need for a new building.

The citizens' movement is composed of organizations and individuals united to promote library development in the state. One of its 1954 goals is to secure funds from the Legislature for the construction of a state library building.

In his report, James L. Love of Hammond, president of the group, spoke of the enthusiastic backing of individuals and organizations in promoting the objectives of the movement. Love mentioned the endorsements of educational, cultural, civic, and veterans' organizations on the state and local level. He commended parish library boards for their help and interest. Love commented on the cooperation of newspapers, both editorially and in their news columns.

Officers, in addition to Love, include Mrs. Fenn A. Leaming, Mansfield, vice-president; Mrs. George Lester, Bains, secretary; C. Paul Phelps, Ponchatoula, treasurer; John Caffery, Franklin, Dr. Harriett Daggett, Baton Rouge, and Mrs. Martha Robinson, New Orleans, directors; and Sallie Farrell, Baton Rouge, executive secretary.

Defense Official Stresses Value Of Early Warnings

BATON ROUGE—UP—Victor E. Cooley, deputy director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, said here Saturday that continued improvement of the military early warning system is "probably the greatest possible contribution" the federal government can make to local defense.

Cooley, addressing the Louisiana Municipal Association, said that with only a few minutes of warning of impending attack, individuals can "duck and cover" and thus increase their chances of survival "by as much as 50 per cent."

"Presumably we can improve our status in direct ratio to the time we have in which to take precautions against assault," the civil defense official said.

Cooley told the mayors and other officials of Louisiana cities that New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Shreveport are considered principal target areas and that these and other targets "should be best prepared for disaster." Among the steps he suggested for protection from atomic attack:

1. Dispersion—"Don't be there when the bomb hits." Make the cities less attractive as targets by encouraging a "live in the suburbs" movement.

2. Improving the "physical security" or construction of principal facilities and strengthening the protective features, such as bomb shelters, of existing buildings wtihin cities. "The area of total distribution would be reduced about one-third if all buildings could stand a pressure of ten pounds per square inch."

3. Reduce fire hazards by "better housekeeping"—enforcement of existing laws to lessen the amount of combustible material in potential "firestorm" areas.

Essential governmental functions at all levels must continue, Cooley said, to insure preservation of law and order, control of fires and rescue, health and welfare services, and restoration of municipal utility services and the judicial and legal systems.

"One thing we must remember," Cooley added, "both the reduction of our vulnerability and our preparations for meeting attack should be carried out in an atmosphere of calm deliberation—not in a state of hysteria that encourages scattering of frenzied efforts in all directions that could only incite panic in the event of a real emergency."

Federal Court Work To Start Here Next Week; Trials To Open April 5

By PAUL JASPER
(Staff Reporter)

Preliminary business of the U. S. District Court sessions scheduled for Monroe will get under way here next week, and actual court trials will begin April 5, Mrs. Margie Daniels, U. S. deputy clerk of court here, said yesterday.

Mrs. Daniel said she received word from the federal clerk's office in Shreveport this week that motions will be filed in court here next Wednesday, and pre-trial conferences of attorneys will be held Thursday and Friday.

Then the court will recess until actual hearings begin at 9 p.m. Monday, April 5, with Judge Ben Dawkins, Jr. scheduled to hear the civil suits and Judge Edwin F. Hunter, Jr. to hear criminal cases if any are set for that day.

Mrs. Daniel said she has not as yet received a docket for the criminal cases, but did receive the civil docket. She said she learned from Shreveport the criminal docket has not been completed.

She also released a completed list of area residents to be called for petit jurors, but said to her knowledge no grand jury list has been drawn, leading to speculation that the grand jury docket may be very light and will be passed to the next place on the court circuit.

Expected to come up among the criminal cases, however, are the trials of Dr. J. T. French, Ouachita Parish coroner, Homer Jefferson French and several local pharmacists, all on charges of alleged narcotics violations.

Dr. French; his son; Mitchell A. Denoux, owner of the North Side Pharmacy; John M. Drouet, owner of Drouet's Drug Store; and Joseph A. Carso, owner of Carso's Pharmacy, were indicted on the narcotics counts early last October.

Among the civil cases to be heard is the retrial of some $140,000 in damage suits brought against the Missouri Pacific Railroad, in which tutors of the minor children of Mr. and Mrs. E. Weems of New Orleans and Mr. and Mrs. Buford Whittington of Monroe have charged the railroad company with negligence in connection with a train-automobile collision on July 3, 1952, in which six persons—relatives of the plaintiffs—were killed.

The case, following a 12-day hearing here during the last session of court here, was declared a mistrial and is scheduled to begin again on May 31.

The complete civil docket thus far:

April 5—Mrs. Carrie L. Rhodes vs. Commercial Casualty Insurance Co. and Mrs. Kate Lindsay Burgess, et al; and J. D. Wilbanks and Mrs. A. G. Wood vs. Commercial Casualty, et al. The cases will be tried together.

April 6—Cora Eugene Bowman, et al, vs. W .C. Feazel, et al.

April 7—Esso Standard Oil Co. vs. Mrs. Ida Page Dumas, et al (25 other defendants).

April 7—J. P. Plunkett, Mrs. Irene McCartney and T. A. McCartney, and Jesse Eppinette, as administrator of the estate of Jessie Fay Eppinette, vs. the Maryland Casualty Co. The three separate suits involved will be tried together.

April 8—George W. Temple vs. Bituminous Gas Corp., et al.

April 9—Alice Marie Roberts vs. American Surety Co. of New York.

April 12-16—calender to be made.

April 26—Virgie Childress Livingston vs. George Edward Miller.

April 27 — Elmer Lawrence Lowery vs. Guy A. Thompson, treasurer of the Missouri Pacific railroad Co.

Four Ex-Convicts Are Arrested On Forgery Charges

Four Negroes, all of whom are ex-convicts, have been arrested and are being held in the Ouachita Parish jail on forgery charges, E. L. Walker, investigator for the sheriff department, said Saturday. The four are charged with having forged and passed three checks to local merchants.

Walker identified the four as Tommy Walker, Henry Jones, Uriah Johnson and Jessie Williams. He said the four used the names of "Bradley Louis" and "W. E. Chaney" as signatures for the checks.

The checks were made payable to "Guy Madison" and "Roy Conn."

Walker said one of the Negroes would take the forged check into a store where he was not known and attempt to cash it. A second Negro, known by the manager of the store, would identify the person attempting to cash the check. After the check was cashed it was divided among the group. Two such checks were passed in one store and another elsewhere.

All of the checks were written on the West Monroe branch of the Central Savings Bank and Trust company.

As many as three of the Negroes would sign part of the signature in order that no definite identification would be made on the handwriting, Walker pointed out.

Any person in the parish having checks either signed by the above names or made out to "Guy Madison" or "Roy Conn" are urged to contact the Ouachita Parish sheriff department.

Federal Court Work To Start Here Next Week; Trials To Open April 5

By PAUL JASPER
(Staff Reporter)

Preliminary business of the U. S. District Court sessions scheduled for Monroe will get under way here next week, and actual court trials will begin April 5, Mrs. Margie Daniels, U. S. deputy clerk of court here, said yesterday.

Mrs. Daniel said she received word from the federal clerk's office in Shreveport this week that motions will be filed in court here next Wednesday, and pre-trial conferences of attorneys will be held Thursday and Friday.

Then the court will recess until actual hearings begin at 9 p.m. Monday, April 5, with Judge Ben Dawkins, Jr. scheduled to hear the civil suits and Judge Edwin F. Hunter, Jr. to hear criminal cases if any are set for that day.

Mrs. Daniel said she has not as yet received a docket for the criminal cases, but did receive the civil docket. She said she learned from Shreveport the criminal docket has not been completed.

She also released a completed list of area residents to be called for petit jurors, but said to her knowledge no grand jury list has been drawn, leading to speculation that the grand jury docket may be very light and will be passed to the next place on the court circuit.

Expected to come up among the criminal cases, however, are the trials of Dr. J. T. French, Ouachita Parish coroner, Homer Jefferson French, and several local pharmacists, all on charges of alleged narcotics violations.

Dr. French; his son; Mitchell A. Denoux, owner of the North Side Pharmacy; John M. Drouet, owner of Drouet's Drug Store; and Joseph A. Carso, owner of Carso's Pharmacy, were indicted on the narcotics counts early last October.

Among the civil cases to be heard is the retrial of some $440,000 in damage suits brought against the Missouri Pacific Railroad, in which tutors of the minor children of Mr. and Mrs. E. Weems of New Orleans and Mr. and Mrs. Buford Whittington of Monroe have charged the railroad company with negligence in connection with a train-automobile collision on July 3, 1952, in which six persons—relatives of the plaintiffs—were killed.

The case, following a 12-day hearing here during the last session of court here, was declared a mistrial and is scheduled to begin again on May 31.

The complete civil docket thus far:

April 5—Mrs. Carrie L. Rhodes vs. Commercial Casualty Insurance Co. and Mrs. Kate Lindsay Burgess, et al; and J. D. Wilbanks and Mrs. A. G. Wood vs. Commercial Casualty, et al. The cases will be tried together.

The party left the school at 7:15 a. m. and arrived at the park at 10:00. They were met by the custodian at the museum, who gave them an interesting lecture about the defenses, the siege and the fall of Vicksburg in 1863. Concluding the lecture they made a detailed tour of the park.

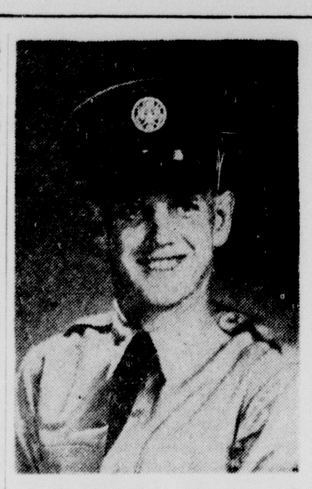

At noon a picnic lunch was enjoyed by the group. They returned to the Highland Elementary School at 5:30 p. m. Each expressed complete satisfaction with the trip. They summed up the trip in one accord saying, "We learned more history by 'seeing' than we did by reading."

Four Ex-Convicts Are Arrested On Forgery Charges

Four Negroes, all of whom are ex-convicts, have been arrested and are being held in the Ouachita Parish jail on forgery charges. E. L. Walker, investigator for the sheriff department, said Saturday. The four are charged with having forged and passed three checks to local merchants.

Walker identified the four as Tommy Walker, Henry Jones, Uriah Johnson and Jessie Williams. He said the four used the names of "Bradley Louis" and "W. E. Chaney" as signatures for the checks.

The checks were made payable to "Guy Madison" and "Roy Conn."

Walker said one of the Negroes would take the forged check into a store where he was not known and attempt to cash it. A second Negro, known by the manager of the store, would identify the person attempting to cash the check. After the check was cashed it was divided among the group. Two such checks were passed in one store and another elsewhere.

All of the checks were written on the West Monroe branch of the Central Savings Bank and Trust company.

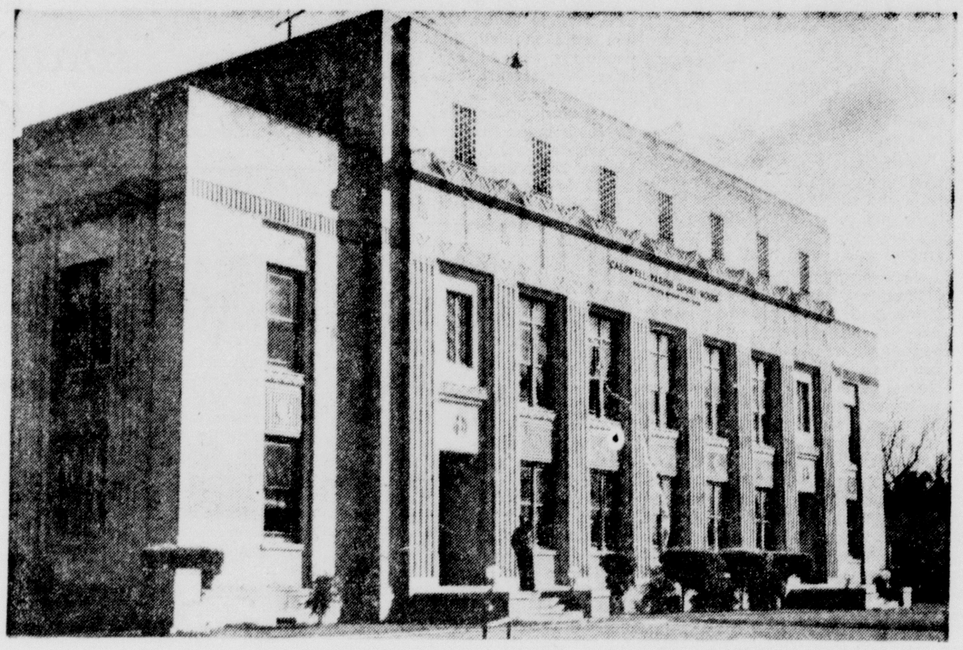

As many as three of the Negroes would sign part of the signature in order that no definite identification would be made on the handwriting, Walker pointed out.

Any person in the parish having checks either signed by the above names or made out to "Guy Madison" or "Roy Conn" are urged to contact the Ouachita Parish sheriff department.

Caldwell Parish--Agriculture, Cotton, Stock Raising And Lumber

Modern Farm Life, Thriving Citizenry Keeps Area Ahead

By J. H. McQUERRY

Caldwell Parish is an approximate square territory with 24-mile dimensions, lying south of Ouachita Parish.

The parish was authorized in an act of the legislature which was signed by Governor E. D. White on March 6, 1838, and was land taken from Ouachita and Catahoula parishes, with Ouachita furnishing the major portion. However, one of Ouachita's citizens objected to the transfer of his holdings, and an adjustment was made by subsequent legislation.

The name Caldwell is generally presumed to have been taken from that of a prominent Ouachita family with land in the new parish.

The Ouachita River meandered through the new parish near its center, with alluvial lands on its east bank and hill lands on the west. The east side was heavily timbered with gum, ash, oak, hickory and cypress, with a similar growth in the creek bottoms on the west and with pine forests on the hills and ridges.

Land Grants

At the time of the formation of the parish, ownership to some lands was held through grants by the former Spanish and French governments. The United States survey into sections, townships and ranges was not begun until 1850. Prior to this time, however, many persons were living in the territory and several communities had been started.

One of these was at Columbia where the Ouachita River was easily approached and could be forded when the river was low, making it possible for the settlement to become a trading post available to both river and land routes.. Daniel Humphries is credited with building the first home in Columbia in 1827.

The new parish was divided into five wards on March 30, 1838, at a meeting of Justices of the Peace James Gray, Jacob Humble, Fleming Noble, Thomas Rutland and James Woolridge, with the assistance of Judge William P. Snow. Snow and Rutland had experience in such matters as they had assisted in forming Ouachita Parish in 1813.

John Ewing, James Gray and James Woolridge met with Judge Snow on the following May 22 as the new police jury. Columbia was named the parish seat, although the settlement at Copenhagen on Prairie de Cote (now known as Copenhagen Prairie) was given consideration.

It also was ordered that a court presided over by Judge Henry W. Boyce be held in the residence of Fleming Noble until a courthouse could be built. The courthouse square was donated to the public by Henry Hyman, Richard King, James McCoy and Fleming Noble, the deed having been signed August 21, 1838. A log courthouse and jail were built soon afterwards.

First Settlement

Copenhagen was probably the first settlement of size in the area as a document recorded in 1838 shows one Bonaventura claimed that he owned a tract of land on the Ouachita River near Copenhagen by virtue of his having settled there in 1797. In the old cemetery at Copenhagen, grave markers were observed bearing dates as early as 1815, and later ones with such names as Bolenhagen, Frelensen, Gorrizon and Lorenzen.

Nothing is known locally, however, of their origin or dispersion.

A townsite was laid out for Copenhagen, and in disposing of his other lands, Frelensen reserved that on which the now vanished Copenhagen stood.

It is claimed that the second settlement in the parish was made near the Castor Bayou some four miles west of Kelly. It was there the Bannisters, Strauds and Wootens located on lands to which ownership of record could not be obtained at that time. Later, they were joined as neighbors by the Coles, Goodsons, Moffitts and Vaughns, with other families soon following to the west side in the hills.

Other homes were made on the land grants along the Ouachita River, one of which still stands a mile north of Riverton and has for many years been occupied by the family of Hugh Hill. It is a fine type of antebellum home and was built by the Bres family about the time Caldwell was made a parish.

In 1838, Ursin Landerneau settled his family on the west side of Beouf River, in what is now Ward Eight, and was later joined by the Brandin, Duchesne, Hebert, Girod, Oliveaux, Poole and other French families. Many of their descendants, bearing the old names, still live in that section of the parish.

Ouachita River

The Ouachita river was the main source of transportation from the time of the Indians until the building of the present Missouri-Pacific Railroad in 1888. Because of its location, Columbia began as a trading center in 1823 for a large area, and cotton was hauled by ox wagon from Jackson, Winn, Grant, LaSalle and Catahoula Parishes and exchanged for supplies brought in by the boats which took the cotton on their return trip to New Orleans.

The river packet lines prospered despite the railroad until gravel roads came to the Community in 1918. Since that time, the parish has progressed to concrete and blacktop thoroughfares, with gravel surfaced farm roads.

Parish Growth

As the country became populated, churches were organized, and the buildings were used for private or subscription schools, with the pioneer preachers often being the only teachers available. Some of these churches, with their faithful following, are still in existence, though domiciled in new buildings. Among them are Old Union which was organized in 1834. Palestine organized in 1840, Old Bethel formed in 1842 and Mt. Pleasant which was organized in 1844.

Calumbia, Grayson, Clarks and Kelly have well attended churches of various faiths, and are housed in edifices which are a credit to their respective communities.

The first organized effort to provide higher education for the children of the parish was begun on January 7, 1838, when Robert Chew, Harry Hymans and James McCoy donated 40 acres of land two miles west of Columbia for the site of a Pine Grove Academy. The state legislature approved the proceedings, and granted aid in the amount of $1 500 to the new school.

Subsequently, Daniel Cox of Philadelphia donated 3328 acres of land to the school, this being a part of the grant to Maison Rouge by the Spanish government. The United States Congress confirmed title to the school in 1854 after litigation regarding the entire Maison Rouge grant was settled.

Parish records show that the first school erected was a two-story brick building, 30 feet by 48 feet, with 35 windows, 13 doors, six mantel pieces, etc., at a contract price of $2500. The builder, William Sweeney, failed to receive full compensation and thus obtained possession of the property, later transferring it to the parish school board.

The school was operated intermittently until the early reconstruction days after the War Between the States when it was discontinued. The building was not torn down until 1880, however. The Pine Grove Academy lands were finally awarded to the Caldwell Parish school board after further litigation.

Parish schools enjoyed a precarious existence prior to the 1898 legislation allowing special taxes for building and maintenance by districts. Ed. H. Turner, principal of the Columbia school, was elected parish superintendent of schools in 1908, and using the benefits of this legislation began a school building and an improvement program that has continued until the present time.

School improvements were further advanced by the 1918 parish-wide school tax which made possible the building of the beautiful and efficient high school buildings erected during the 20-year administration of Superintendent E. B. Cottingham at Columbia, Grayson and Kelly, and at Brownsville for Negro students.

In 1953, a bond issue of $500.000 was approved for additions and improvements, and this work is now progressing under the supervision of the present superintendent, Ted L. Johnston.

Agriculture

Agriculture and stock raising have been the dominating activities of the parish, with clearing land and growing cotton of main interest until recent years. In 1918, the Grayson high school was authorized to teach agriculture with J. J. McKeithen, the principal, in charge of instruction. Interest in modern methods and machinery had continued throughout the parish, and now bulldozers for clearing land and building lakes and ponds for irrigation, tractors for crop cultivation, mechanical cotton pickers and combines for harvesting crops, with the other farm machinery available, makes farm life less burdensome. while telephones, electric lights, radios, television, running water and other home appliances add to the pleasures of country living.

Last year's cotton crop of 9.000 bales was processed at the three modern gins at Corey, Riverton and Columbia. In addition, crops of grain, hay and potatoes were satisfactory, and many cattle and hogs were supplied to the markets along with smaller quantities of chickens, turkeys, eggs and milk. Cattle raising has expanded greatly in the parish in recent years, with almost every farmer having a few head or several hundred grazing on naturally lush or irrigated pastures. Dairy herds are smaller, but both registered beef and dairy stock are raised for sale purposes.

Caldwell Parish has an estimated 12,000 population, with some 1,250 living in Columbia. The courthouse, now a beautiful brick structure, houses parish officers and the district court presided over by Judge V. M. Mouser, District Attorney C. C. Minard, Sheriff G. E. Erskine and Clerk of Court A. L. Darden.

Bank Assets

Columbia's two banks have total assets exceeding $5,000,000 and look after the financial interests of the parish. The Caldwell Bank & Trust Company was organized in 1902 with W. E. Godfrey as manager. After a few years A. D. Bridger joined the firm as Mr. Godfrey's assistant. Both men are still with the bank, Mr. Godfrey as chairman of the board, and Mr. Bridger as president and manager.

The Citizen's Progressive Bank was organized in 1918, with J. W. James as president and L. C. Nunn as cashier and manager. Mr. James is still the president, and Mr. Nunn is the executive vice president and manager.

Columbia has the oldest business establishment in the parish in the weekly paper, now known as the "Watchman-Progress." In 1859, the grandfather of J. C. Hines, a Caldwell Parish citizen, issued the "Caldwell News." The Civil War interrupted its publication, and after the war closed a group of citizens began publishing a "Caldwell Herald" which was changed to the "Caldwell Watchman" in 1885 by new owners. The paper continued under this name until the name "Progress" was added to the name by the present owner and publisher, H. Ted Woods, making the paper the "Caldwell Watchman-Progress."

Columbia has a modern hospital staffed with experienced physicians and surgeons. It has active fraternal orders and two growing service clubs—Kiwanis and Lions. Caldwell Post No. 161, American Legion has an active membership and maintains a home on the hill in Columbia Heights.

Community Life

Grayson, south of Columbia, is a village with some 500 residents who are making their town a center for manufacturing and shipping forest products, and a recently organized Lions Club is to be used in coordinating the activities of the community. Grayson's churches are active, and the community's school is a source of special pride to the residents.

Kelly, with a population of 350, is near the southern border of the parish and is another town which takes special pride in its churches and school.

Columbia Heights, practically a part of Columbia, was in earlier days called Indian Village. Today it has an estimated population of 400 people who are served by stores, service stations, a drive-in theater and has all the advantages of a town with a country atmosphere.

Corey, Riverton, Hebert, Holum, Burlington and Vixen are among the other named centers in the parish, together with Brownsville, the largest Negro settlement in the parish. Brownsville is served by stores, church, branch library, funeral home, high school and boasts numerous attractive homes.

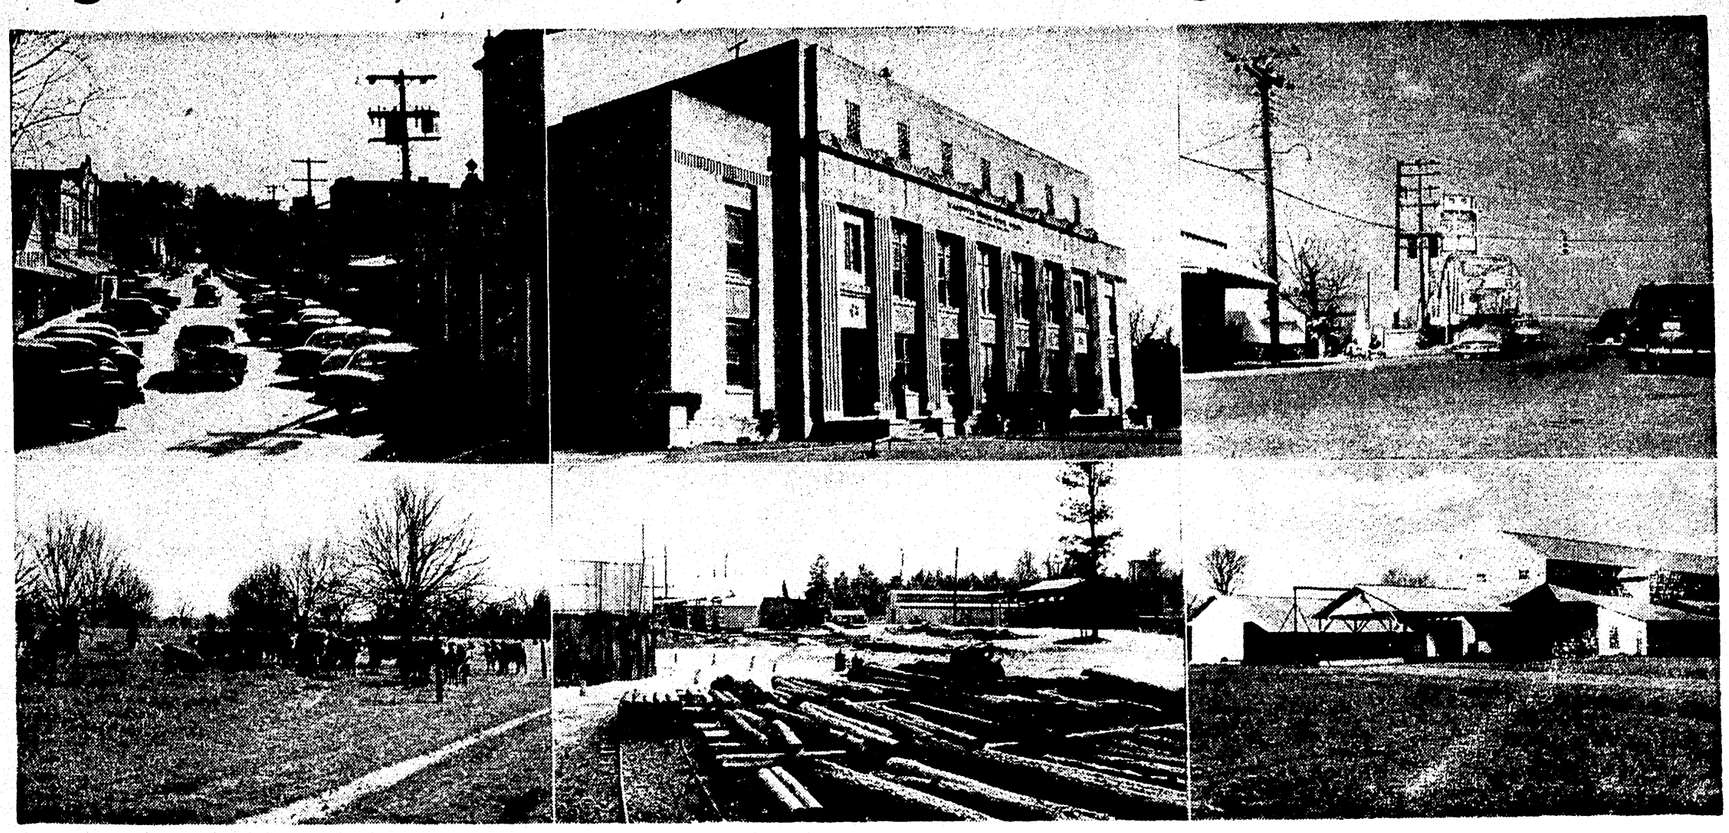

Clarks, once the largest town in the parish, was the home of the Louisiana Central Lumber Company before the sawmill suspended operations last year. It is not a ghost town, however. Many of the people left the community, and some of the houses were moved away, but the management sold homes to individuals and gave the utilities to the newly incorporated village of 800 inhabitants who have made the outlook good for the future prosperity of Clarks.

Several other mills in various parts of the parish are enlarging their plants in order to care for the needs of the lumber industry, while tree crops being grown for railway ties, pulp wood, piling, poles and posts are being cared for by local interests supplying the outside market in these items.

Scenery, Lakes

Caldwell Parish boasts of being a few miles south of Monroe on U. S. highway 165. It is the center of an area that abounds in beautiful scenery, fish-filled lakes and productive farming land. It is proud of its sons and daughters who have made good at home and in other places. Among them is General Graves Erskine of Marine Corps fame who has continued the distinguished career begun in World War I. His boyhood home is just across the river from Columbia, a short distance south of the pecan orchard-stock farm owned by Dr. J. Q. Graves of Monroe.

Although it is one of the smallest and least populous of the Louisiana parishes, Caldwell Parish makes up in the friendliness and hospitality of its people for what it lacks in size and population. This is borne out in the slogan adopted many years ago by Columbia—"The Little City of Happy Homes on the Ouachita."

INDUSTRIES OF THE PARISH—A herd of white face cattle graze, bottom left, in the fertile pastures on a farm belonging to Dr. J. Q. Graves. Logs on the grounds of the N. D. Allen Mill, west of Columbia, center, will be planed and shipped to sections throughout the U. S. for sale. The Allen sawmill is the largest mill in the parish. The Corey Gin, right, north of Riverton, is one of the largest and most modern gins in this section of the state.

TWO MODERN SCHOOLS in Caldwell Parish located at Kelly, La. (top) and Grayson are typical of the interest and stress placed on education in the parish.

The Lone Grave

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This poem was written in 1884 by the late Judge A. A. Gunby, of Monroe. The Lone Bluff grave is on the west side of the Ouachita river ten miles above Columbia, across the river from the home of the recently deceased George L. Shipp.)

There is a stream to the Southwest
Of all the streams I love the best;
For on its banks, live all I love,
And the blue skies that shine above
The fairest that e'er met my eye—
And there I live and hope to die
And in my humble dwelling-place,
The Indians called it Ouachita;
A lovely sweet and peaceful name
That brings no mention of war
Or gory chieftain's fame
If all is true that I heard tell
The rivers rises in a dell
Where flowers of pink and white and blue
And of every other beautious hue.
Are mingled with the emerald grass,
And thence as clear as a looking glass,
Its waters southward take their way
And make a pleasant roundelay
As onward they flow through lovely vales—
Unmoved by aught but gentle gales.
Deep, graceful, tranquil-boomed, clear,
With thick grey forest on its lee,
Whose shadows underneath appear
More vivid than the living tree.
I lay it down as fact and law
No traveler ever saw
A loveller stream than Ouachita.

But to my story—far down south
Not very far from the river's mouth,
Its waters lave on the western shore
A bluff or hill that's steep and high;
You feel you have been there before
When first this landscape meets your eye—
For 'tis indeed a splendid relief
With pine trees on its summit growing
And on its side to the river's edge,
The wild flowers are freely blowing;
The famous honeysuckle you see
And dainty nat'les bright and wee
Wink at you from their lowly stands
And throw a kiss with tiny hands;
The yellow-jessine folds its wreath
And sigheth forth its fragrant breath
In such a flood that with surprise
Old Nature owns both her eyes
And smiles with gladness profound
That you might its echo sound.

This bluff is called Lone Grave Mound—
For on its dizzy top is found
Some few feet back from its steep confines
Just at the roots of the lofty pines,
A lonely grave, without a stone
Or other mark to make known
What friendless one sleeps there alone;
For all around are nature's wilds,
No evidence of rustic road
Or path for man exists for miles
About this lonesome drear abode.
Except across the river where
An old plantation, broad and fair
Spreads its corn and cotton fields.

'Twas on this place so wide and low
That nearly forty years ago,
An overseer lived, whose life
Was gladened by a fair young wife
Her form was frail—her name was Ruth—
He married her in tender youth.
And ere the bridal year had flown
Consumption's fatal seed were sown;
That wrecking, wasting wan disease
Which clamps its unrelenting hold—
And so Ruth languished day by day
Through all the summer's fervid ray,
And from her window often gazed
To where the Bluff's summit raised;
So cool it looked up there, and high,
For she was born a highland child
And loved to view the open sky
And nature's beauties fresh and wild.
At length a wish or fancy rose
To rest up there at life's close—
Taking her husband's hand in own,
Her wish she thus made known.
"My love," she said, "when I am dead,
And that can not be long,
For hope is fled, but I have no dread,
I know I can't be wrong,
But when I'm dead, sweet love," she said,
"Place me on yonder mound
Where grand trees spread their shade
o'erhead
Where I can see thee still
There birds will sing and gently swing
And joyous Spring her charms will bring
To deck my sylvan bed.

There Nature's breast invites to rest
Beneath the sky's blue dome—
In that cool nest I shall be blest
In sight of my dear home
Then lay me there serene and fair
Close on the river's side
And pure Alt my soul shall hear
Forever still thy bride."
Her husband promised to comply
With her fond wish if she should die
That autumn's mornings she lingered low,
But seemed at times to better grow
And friends began new hopes to weave—
And then, the Lord on Christmas Eve
What seemed all could be bright and gay
Her funeral came on Christmas Day
They said no prayers, they sang no song,
But o'awed hands on shoulders strong
Bore the morning air, so bright and chill
Carried their mistress, clad up till
And silently they laid her down
Where the wild birds always hear the sound
Of gurgling waters far below
And as the seasons come and go,
Fair Ruth's resting place is seen
Surrounded by the woodland green.
Solemn pine trees moan and wave
There let her sleep in love and awe,
Beside the placid Ouachita.

More Atom Information Is Requested By Brooks

By KAY RAY

WASHINGTON, March 27 (Special) — Congressman Overton Brooks of Shreveport believes atomic and hydrogen secrets made available to this country's allies ought to be made available also to the House Armed Services committee.

He argues — and rightly, many believe — that the secrets would be safer there than with the allies.

The Louisianan, a high-ranking member of the committee, feels so strongly about the whole situation that he has urged the Defense Department to tell committee members more.

First, he feels members of Congress ought to get information known already to Russia, and, second, members of the armed services and appropriations committees, particularly, should get information revealed to our allies.

"Thirty-seven per cent of France is communistic. When we give information to the French, we are taking a terrific chance the Communists will get it. England is not fighting Communists as hard as we are. The situation is likewise with our other allies. When they get information, they don't regard it with the same sanctity that we do," Brooks stated.

He continued, "Since Congress is charged with the defense of the country and under the 'new look' of the administration, the atom and hydrogen bombs are the two kings of our defense program, congressmen ought to be given enough information in order to show responsibility."

To illustrate the lack of pertinent knowledge held by members of his committee, despite the fact that several are also on the joint committee on atomic energy, Brooks said they know no more about the imagination - defying hydrogen explosion at Bikini March 1 than does the Louisiana man on the street, provided the latter is a newspaper reader.

The congressman also believes information already held by the Russians should be unveiled before the American people as a whole.

Brooks recalled the bitter "B-36" hearings before his committee in the late 1940's, which culminated in the resignation of the assistant secretary of the navy in charge of air. Out of the hearings the idea of strategic defense of the country was developed, he said.

"The B-36 was then under heavy attack and the idea of an intercontinental bomber for the purpose of delivering atomic weapons was brought into the open. Those opposing this idea said then we shouldn't put all our eggs in one basket and shouldn't rely on air to deliver atomic bombs and to keep us out of war or to win wars. . . . We have now gone back to that concept of new look which emphasizes defense based around atomic and hydrogen bombs delivered by air to the enemy," he said.

"Since this is the case, potency and destructiveness of the new weapons is of vital importance to Congress, which has charge of this country's defense," he added.

Brooks emphasized, "I don't believe any technical detail of construction or development should be given members of Congress. This would serve no purpose. But I do believe those things which show suitableness of secret weapons, mobility and destructibility should be very easily given to Congress without increasing the risk of our country's safety."

The Shreveport congressman helped write the original atomic legislation, and supported the idea of civilian control.

"I think Congress was tremendously wise in stipulating that a civilian agency should handle atomic energy. The years will increasingly show this is true," he asserted.

Brooks, who witnessed the launching of rockets Friday at White Sands proving grounds in New Mexico, predicted, "The day is not far off when guided missiles with atomic warheads will travel 2,000 to 3,000 miles."

Benson May Ask More Money For Drouth Areas

WASHINGTON, March 26—UP—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson said Friday he may ask Congress for more money to help drouth-stricken farmers if a potential dustbowl threat worsens.

Benson told a Women's National Press Club lunch that he is watching a five - state Southwestern drouth area very closely. While it does not appear to be a "major disaster" yet, he said it is "pretty severe."

"I am sorry to say it shows signs of the beginning of another dustbowl," Benson said.

"Certainly if it develops," he said "there is real need for federal help I will make a request to Congress."

Benson conceded that "when a crop blows out it is disaster to the individual farmer."

Benson also said he discussed the surplus butter problem with President Eisenhower Friday. He said it was agreed that the government is ready to take losses if need be—"and there will be losses"—in order to move butter out of storage and on to consumers' tables.

Jena's Bridge At Hemp's Creek To Be Replaced

JENA, March 27. (Special)—The washed - out bridge on Highway 84 east of Jena over Hemp's creek will be replaced soon, according to State Rep. Bill Hodges, Jr., of LaSalle Parish.

Mr. Hodges said that the project will be a federal aid job, with the U. S. government putting up approximately one-half of the cost of the job has been estimated at not more than $50,000.

The bridge was washed out during last spring's record flood in this area. The work of replacing the bridge has been held up, Rep. Rep. Hodges said, due to difficulty in obtaining the necessary right-of-way clearance.

In replacing the old structure, the state solon said plans call for widening the bridge by 10 feet to provide pedestrian walkways.

Caldwell Parish--Agriculture, Cotton, Stock Raising And Lumber

Modern Farm Life, Thriving Citizenry Keeps Area Ahead

By J. H. McQUERRY

Caldwell Parish is an approximate square territory with 24-mile dimensions, lying south of Ouachita Parish.

The parish was authorized in an act of the legislature which was signed by Governor E. D. White on March 6, 1838, and was land taken from Ouachita and Catahoula parishes, with Ouachita furnishing the major portion. However, one of Ouachita's citizens objected to the transfer of his holdings, and an adjustment was made by subsequent legislation.

The name Caldwell is generally presumed to have been taken from that of a prominent Ouachita family with land in the new parish.

The Ouachita River meandered through the new parish near its center, with alluvial lands on its east bank and hill lands on the west. The east side was heavily timbered with gum, ash, oak, hickory and cypress, with a similar growth in the creek bottoms on the west and with pine forests on the hills and ridges.

Land Grants

At the time of the formation of the parish, ownership to some lands was held through grants by the former Spanish and French governments. The United States survey into sections, townships and ranges was not begun until 1850. Prior to this time, however, many persons were living in the territory and several communities had been started.

One of these was at Columbia where the Ouachita River was easily approached and could be forded when the river was low, making it possible for the settlement to become a trading post available to both river and land routes. Daniel Humphries is credited with building the first home in Columbia in 1827.

The new parish was divided into five wards on March 30, 1838, at a meeting of Justices of the Peace James Gray, Jacob Humble, Fleming Noble, Thomas Rutland and James Woolridge, with the assistance of Judge William P. Snow. Snow and Rutland had experience in such matters as they had assisted in forming Ouachita Parish in 1813.

John Ewing, James Gray and James Woolridge met with Judge Snow on the following May 22 as the new police jury. Columbia was named the parish seat, although the settlement at Copenhagen on Prairie de Cote (now known as Copenhagen Prairie) was given consideration.

It also was ordered that a court presided over by Judge Henry W. Boyce be held in the residence of Fleming Noble until a courthouse could be built. The courthouse square was donated to the public by Henry Hyman, Richard King, James McCoy and Fleming Noble, the deed having been signed August 21, 1838. A log courthouse and jail were built soon afterwards.

First Settlement

Copenhagen was probably the first settlement of size in the area as a document recorded in 1838 shows one Bonaventura claimed that he owned a tract of land on the Ouachita River near Copenhagen by virtue of his having settled there in 1797. In the old cemetery at Copenhagen, grave markers were observed bearing dates as early as 1815, and later ones with such names as Bolenhagen, Frelensen, Gorrizon and Lorenzen.

Nothing is known locally, however, of their origin or dispersion.

A townsite was laid out for Copenhagen, and in disposing of his other lands, Frelensen reserved that on which the now vanished Copenhagen stood.

It is claimed that the second settlement in the parish was made near the Castor Bayou some four miles west of Kelly. It was there the Bannisters, Strauds and Woottens located on lands to which ownership of record could not be obtained at that time. Later, they were joined as neighbors by the Coles, Goodsons, Moffitts and Vaughns, with other families soon following to the west side in the hills.

Other homes were made on the land grants along the Ouachita River, one of which still stands a mile north of Riverton and has for many years been occupied by the family of Hugh Hill. It is a fine type of antebellum home and was built by the Bres family about the time Caldwell was made a parish.

In 1838, Ursin Landerneau settled his family on the west side of Beouf River, in what is now Ward Eight, and was later joined by the Brandin, Duchesne, Hebert, Girod, Oliveaux, Poole and other French families. Many of their descendants, bearing the old names, still live in that section of the parish.

Ouachita River

The Ouachita river was the main source of transportation from the time of the Indians until the building of the present Missouri-Pacific Railroad in 1888. Because of its location, Columbia began as a trading center in 1823 for a large area, and cotton was hauled by ox wagon from Jackson, Winn, Grant, LaSalle and Catahoula Parishes and exchanged for supplies brought in by the boats which took the cotton on their return trip to New Orleans.

The river packet lines prospered despite the railroad until gravel roads came to the Community in 1918. Since that time, the parish has progressed to concrete and blacktop thoroughfares, with gravel surfaced farm roads.

Parish Growth

As the country became populated, churches were organized, and the buildings were used for private or subscription schools, with the pioneer preachers often being the only teachers available. Some of these churches, with their faithful following, are still in existence, though domiciled in new buildings. Among them are Old Union which was organized in 1834, Palestine organized in 1840, Old Bethel formed in 1842 and Mt. Pleasant which was organized in 1844.

Calumbia, Grayson, Clarks and Kelly have well attended churches of various faiths, and are housed in edifices which are a credit to their respective communities.

The first organized effort to provide higher education for the children of the parish was begun on January 7, 1838, when Robert Chew, Harry Hymans and James McCoy donated 40 acres of land two miles west of Columbia for the site of a Pine Grove Academy. The state legislature approved the proceedings, and granted aid in the amount of $1,500 to the new school.

Subsequently, Daniel Cox of Philadelphia donated 3328 acres of land to the school, this being a part of the grant to Maison Rouge by the Spanish government. The United States Congress confirmed title to the school in 1854 after litigation regarding the entire Maison Rouge grant was settled.

Parish records show that the first school erected was a two-story brick building, 30 feet by 48 feet, with 35 windows, 13 doors, six mantel pieces, etc., at a contract price of $2500. The builder, William Sweeney, failed to receive full compensation and thus obtained possession of the property, later transferring it to the parish school board.

The school was operated intermittently until the early reconstruction days after the War Between the States when it was discontinued. The building was not torn down until 1880, however. The Pine Grove Academy lands were finally awarded to the Caldwell Parish school board after further litigation.

Parish schools enjoyed a precarious existence prior to the 1898 legislation allowing special taxes for building and maintenance by districts. Ed. H. Turner, principal of the Columbia school, was elected parish superintendent of schools in 1908, and using the benefits of this legislation began a school building and an improvement program that has continued until the present time.

School improvements were further advanced by the 1918 parish-wide school tax which made possible the building of the beautiful and efficient high school buildings erected during the 20-year administration of Superintendent E. B. Cottingham at Columbia, Grayson and Kelly, and at Brownsville for Negro students.

In 1953, a bond issue of $500,000 was approved for additions and improvements, and this work is now progressing under the supervision of the present superintendent, Ted L. Johnston.

Agriculture

Agriculture and stock raising have been the dominating activities of the parish, with clearing land and growing cotton of main interest until recent years. In 1918, the Grayson high school was authorized to teach agriculture with J. J. McKeithen, the principal, in charge of instruction. Interest in modern methods and machinery had continued throughout the parish, and now bulldozers for clearing land and building lakes and ponds for irrigation, tractors for crop cultivation, mechanical cotton pickers and combines for harvesting crops, with the other farm machinery available, makes farm life less burdensome, while telephones, electric lights, radios, television, running water and other home appliances add to the pleasures of country living.

Last year's cotton crop of 9,000 bales was processed at the three modern gins at Corey, Riverton and Columbia. In addition, crops of grain, hay and potatoes were satisfactory, and many cattle and hogs were supplied to the markets along with smaller quantities of chickens, turkeys, eggs and milk. Cattle raising has expanded greatly in the parish in recent years, with almost every farmer having a few head or several hundred grazing on naturally lush or irrigated pastures. Dairy herds are smaller, but both registered beef and dairy stock are raised for sale purposes.

Caldwell Parish has an estimated 12,000 population, with some 1,250 living in Columbia. The courthouse, now a beautiful brick structure, houses parish officers and the district court presided over by Judge V. M. Mouser, District Attorney C. C. Minard, Sheriff G. E. Erskine and Clerk of Court A. L. Darden.

Bank Assets

Columbia's two banks have total assets exceeding $5,000,000 and look after the financial interests of the parish. The Caldwell Bank & Trust Company was organized in 1902 with W. E. Godfrey as manager. After a few years A. D. Bridger joined the firm as Mr. Godfrey's assistant. Both men are still with the bank, Mr. Godfrey as chairman of the board, and Mr. Bridger as president and manager.

The Citizen's Progressive Bank was organized in 1918, with J. W. James as president and L. C. Nunn as cashier and manager. Mr. James is still the president, and Mr. Nunn is the executive vice president and manager.

Columbia has the oldest business establishment in the parish in the weekly paper, now known as the "Watchman-Progress." In 1859, the grandfather of J. C. Hines, a Caldwell Parish citizen, issued the "Caldwell News." The Civil War interrupted its publication, and after the war closed a group of citizens began publishing a "Caldwell Herald" which was changed to the "Caldwell Watchman" in 1885 by new owners. The paper continued under this name until the name "Progress" was added to the name by the present owner and publisher, H. Ted Woods, making the paper the "Caldwell Watchman-Progress."

Columbia has a modern hospital staffed with experienced physicians and surgeons. It has active fraternal orders and two growing service clubs—Kiwanis and Lions. Caldwell Post No. 161, American Legion has an active membership and maintains a home on the hill in Columbia Heights.

Community Life

Grayson, south of Columbia, is a village with some 500 residents who are making their town a center for manufacturing and shipping forest products, and a recently organized Lions Club is to be used in coordinating the activities of the community. Grayson's churches are active, and the community's school is a source of special pride to the residents.

Kelly, with a population of 350, is near the southern border of the parish and is another town which takes special pride in its churches and school.

Columbia Heights, practically a part of Columbia, was in earlier days called Indian Village. Today it has an estimated population of 400 people who are served by stores, service stations, a drive-in theater and has all the advantages of a town with a country atmosphere.

Corey, Riverton, Hebert, Holum, Burlington and Vixen are among the other named centers in the parish, together with Brownsville, the largest Negro settlement in the parish. Brownsville is served by stores, church, branch library, funeral home, high school and boasts numerous attractive homes.

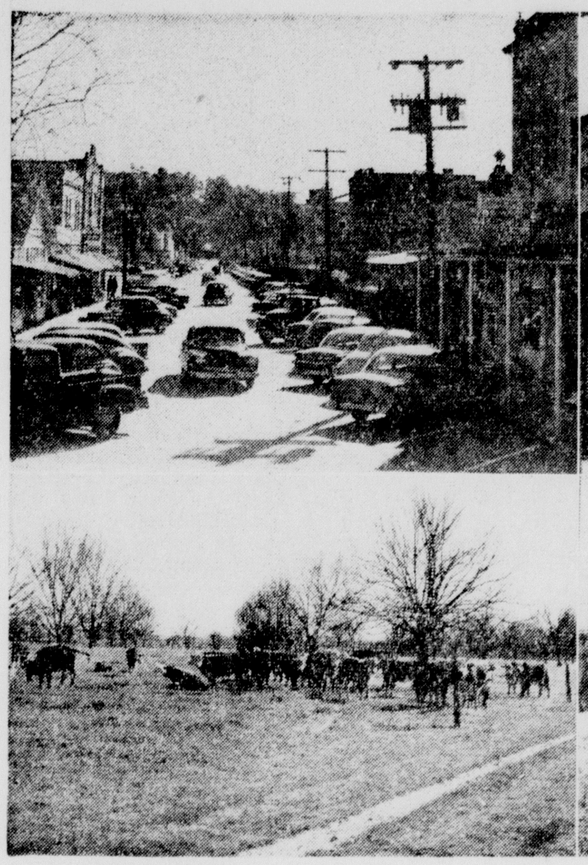

Clarks, once the largest town in the parish, was the home of the Louisiana Central Lumber Company before the sawmill suspended operations last year. It is not a ghost town, however. Many of the people left the community, and some of the houses were moved away, but the management sold homes to individuals and gave the utilities to the newly incorporated village of 800 inhabitants who have made the outlook good for the future prosperity of Clarks.

Several other mills in various parts of the parish are enlarging their plants in order to care for the needs of the lumber industry, while tree crops being grown for railway ties, pulp wood, piling, poles and posts are being cared for by local interests supplying the outside market in these items.

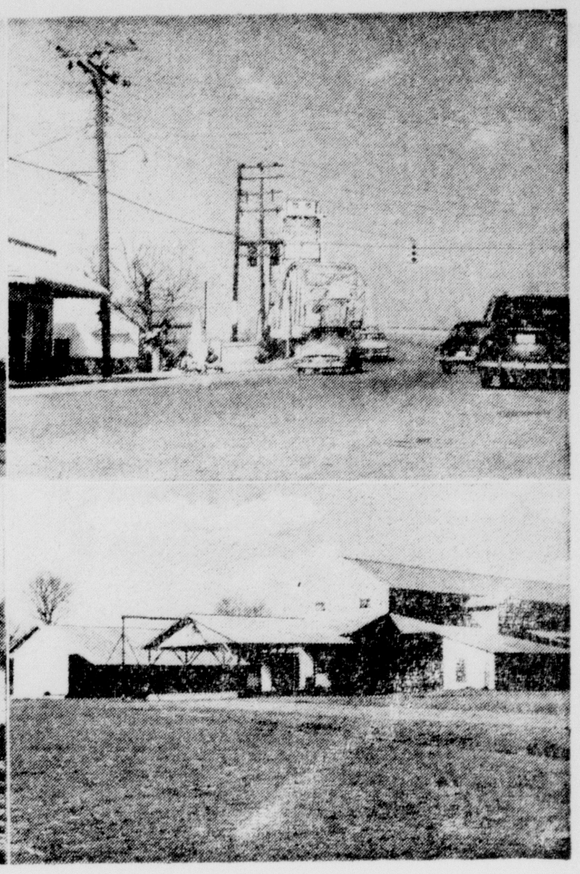

Scenery, Lakes

Caldwell Parish boasts of being a few miles south of Monroe on U. S. highway 165. It is the center of an area that abounds in beautiful scenery, fish-filled lakes and productive farming land. It is proud of its sons and daughters who have made good at home and in other places. Among them is General Graves Erskine of Marine Corps fame who has continued the distinguished career begun in World War I. His boyhood home is just across the river from Columbia, a short distance south of the pecan orchard-stock farm owned by Dr. J. Q. Graves of Monroe.

Although it is one of the smallest and least populous of the Louisiana parishes, Caldwell Parish makes up in the friendliness and hospitality of its people for what it lacks in size and population. This is borne out in the slogan adopted many years ago by Columbia—"The Little City of Happy Homes on the Ouachita."

INDUSTRIES OF THE PARISH—A herd of white face cattle graze, bottom left, in the fertile pastures on a farm belonging to Dr. J. Q. Graves. Logs on the grounds of the N. D. Allen Mill, west of Columbia, center, will be planed and shipped to sections throughout the U. S. for sale. The Allen sawmill is the largest mill in the parish. The Corey Gin, right, north of Riverton, is one of the largest and most modern gins in this section of the state.

TWO MODERN SCHOOLS in Caldwell Parish located at Kelly, La. (top) and Grayson are typical of the interest and stress placed on education in the parish.

The Lone Grave

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This poem was written in 1884 by the late Judge A. A. Gunby, of Monroe. The Lone Bluff grave is on the west side of the Ouachita river ten miles above Columbia, across the river from the home of the recently deceased George L. Shipp.)

There is a stream in the Southwest
Of all the streams I love the best;
For on its banks, live all I love,
And the blue skies that shine above
The fairest that e'er met my eye—
And there I live and hope to die
And in my humble dwelling lie.
The Indians called it Ouachita;
A lovely sweet and peaceful name
That brings no mention of war
Or gory chieftain's fame.
If all is true that I heard tell
The rivers rises in a dell
Where flowers of pink and white and blue
And of every other beautious hue
Are mingled with the emerald grass
And thence as clear as a looking glass,
Its waters southward take their way
And make a pleasant roundelay
As onward they flow through lovely vales—
Unmoved by aught but gentle gales.
Deep, graceful, tranquil-bosomed, clear,
With thick green forest on its lee,
Whose shadows underneath appear
More vivid than the living tree.
I lay it down as fact and law
No traveler ever saw
A lovelier stream than Ouachita.

But to my story—far down south
Not very far from the river's mouth,
Its waters lave on the western shore
A bluff or hill that's steep and high;
You feel you have been there before
When first this landscape meets your eye—
For 'tis indeed a splendid ledge,
With pine trees on its summit growing
And on its sides to the river's edge,
The wild flowers are freely blowing;
The famous honey-suckle you see
And dainty daisies bright and wee
Wink at you from their lowly stands
And throw a kiss with tiny hands;
The yellow-jasmine folds its wreath
And sigheth forth its fragrant breath
In such a flood, that with surprise
Old Nature opens both her eyes
And smiles with gladness profound
That you might its echo sound.

This bluff is called Lone Grave Mound—
For on its dizzy top is found
Some few feet back from its steep confines
Just at the roots of the lofty pines,
A lonely grave, without a stone
Or other mark to make known
What friendless one sleeps there alone;
For all around are nature's wilds,
No residence or rustic road
Or path for man exists for miles
About this lonesome drear abode.
Except across the river where
An old plantation broad and fair
Spreads its corn and cotton fields.

'Twas on this place so wide and low
That nearly forty years ago,
An overseer lived, whose life
Was gladened by a fair young wife
Her form was frail,—her name was Ruth—
He married her in tender youth.
And ere the bridal year had flown
Consumption's fatal seed were sown;
That wrecking, wasting wan disease
Which clamps its unrelenting hold—
And so Ruth languished day by day
Through all the summer's fervid ray,
And from her window often gazed
To where the Bluff's summit raised;
So cool it looked up there, and high,
For she was born a highland child
And loved to view the open sky
And nature's beauties, fresh and wild.
At length a wish or fancy rose
To rest up there at life's close—
Taking her husband's hand in own,
Her wish she thus made known
"My love," she said, "when I am dead,
And that can not be long,
For hope is fled, but I have no dread,
I know I can't be wrong.
But when I'm dead, sweet love," she said,
"Place me on yonder hill
Where grand trees spread their shade o'erhead
Where I can see thee still.
There birds will sing and gently swing
And joyous Spring her charms will bring
To deck my sylvan bed.

There Nature's breast invites to rest
Beneath the sky's blue dome—
In that cool nest, I shall be blest
In sight of my dear home.
Then law me there serene and fair
Close by the river's side,
And its pure air my soul shall bear
Forever, still thy bride."
Her husband promised to comply
With her fond wish if she should die
Thro' autumn's months she lingered low,
But seemed at times to better grow
And friends began new hopes to weave—
And then she died on Christmas Eve
Alas! when all should be bright and gay
Her funeral came on Christmas Day
They said no prayers, they sang no song,
But drawn blacks, on shoulders strong
Thro' the morning air, so bright and chill
Carried their mistress, kind, up hill
And silently, they laid her down
Where she might always hear the sound
Of gurgling waters far below;
And as the seasons come and go,
Fair Ruth's resting place is seen
Surrounded by the woodland green.
There let her sleep in love and awe,
Beside the placid Ouachita.

By KAY RAY

WASHINGTON, March 27 (Special) — Congressman Overton Brooks of Shreveport believes atomic and hydrogen secrets made available to this country's allies ought to be made available also to the House Armed Services committee.

He argues — and rightly, many believe — that the secrets would be safer there than with the allies.

The Louisianan, a high-ranking member of the committee, feels so strongly about the whole situation that he has urged the Defense Department to tell committee members more.

First, he feels members of Congress ought to get information known already to Russia, and, second, members of the armed services and appropriations committees, particularly, should get information revealed to our allies.

"Thirty-seven per cent of France is communistic. When we give information to the French, we are taking a terrific chance the Communists will get it. England is not fighting Communists as hard as we are. The situation is likewise with our other allies. When they get information, they don't regard it with the same sanctity that we do," Brooks stated.

He continued, "Since Congress is charged with the defense of the country and under the 'new look' of the administration, the atom and hydrogen bombs are the two kings of our defense program, congressmen ought to be given enough information in order to show responsibility."

To illustrate the lack of pertinent knowledge held by members of his committee, despite the fact that several are also on the joint committee on atomic energy, Brooks said they know no more about the imagination - defying hydrogen explosion at Bikini March 1 than does the Louisiana man on the street, provided the latter is a newspaper reader.

The congressman also believes information already held by the Russians should be unveiled before the American people as a whole.

Brooks recalled the bitter "B-36" hearings before his committee in the late 1940's, which culminated in the resignation of the assistant secretary of the navy in charge of air. Out of the hearings the idea of strategic defense of the country was developed, he said.

"The B-36 was then under heavy attack and the idea of an intercontinental bomber for the purpose of delivering atomic weapons was brought into the open. Those opposing this idea said then we shouldn't put all our eggs in one basket and shouldn't rely on air to deliver atomic bombs and to keep us out of war or to win wars. . . . We have now gone back to that concept of new look which emphasizes defense based around atomic and hydrogen bombs delivered by air to the enemy," he said.

"Since this is the case, potency and destructiveness of the new weapons is of vital importance to Congress, which has charge of this country's defense," he added.

Brooks emphasized, "I don't believe any technical detail of construction or development should be given members of Congress. This would serve no purpose. But I do believe those things which show suitableness of secret weapons, mobility and destructibility should be very easily given to Congress without increasing the risk of our country's safety."

The Shreveport congressman helped write the original atomic legislation, and supported the idea of civilian control.

"I think Congress was tremendously wise in stipulating that a civilian agency should handle atomic energy. The years will increasingly show this is true," he asserted.

Brooks, who witnessed the launching of rockets Friday at White Sands proving grounds in New Mexico, predicted, "The day is not far off when guided missiles with atomic warheads will travel 2,000 to 3,000 miles."

Jena's Bridge At Hemp's Creek To Be Replaced

JENA, March 27, (Special)—The washed - out bridge on Highway 84 east of Jena over Hemp's creek will be replaced soon, according to State Rep. Bill Hodges, Jr., of LaSalle Parish.

Mr. Hodges said that the project will be a federal aid job, with the U. S. government putting up approximately one-half of the cost of the job has been estimated at not more than $50,000.

The bridge was washed out during last spring's record flood in this area. The work of replacing the bridge has been held up, Rep. Rep. Hodges said, due to difficulty in obtaining the necessary right-of-way clearance.

In replacing the old structure, the state solon said plans call for widening the bridge by 10 feet to provide pedestrian walkways.

Early Signing Of Exemptions Urged

Ouachita Parish Tax Assessor Bert Coverdale reminded persons who have not signed their homestead exemption forms to come by his office at their earliest convenience. In reminding home owners to sign the application forms, Coverdale reiterated that the deadline is May 15, as in past years.

The Louisiana statutes require that all home owners sign the homestead exemption applications on or before the May 15 deadline in order to benefit from the law. All forms not signed are required by law not to be exempted.

The assessor pointed out that the office will remain open through the noon hour from now until the deadline in order that persons working may be able to come by and sign the forms. The office is located on the first floor of the parish court house.

"It is very important to all homeowners that they sign these forms," Coverdale said. "And anyone coming by the office before the last-minute rush will be able to sign the form within a few minutes—it takes but an instant to look up the application form and have it signed."

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

Lively times are envisioned for Texas' Big State League this season if Howard Green, the youthful loop president, doesn't rescind his "let 'em fight" edict. Baseball tempers being what they are, Howard's clubs will probably start billing a fight-a-night to stimulate attendance, but somehow this doesn't seem cricket.

It seems Green has instructed his umpires not to interfere if players become embroiled in fisticuffs, and not to eject any players from a game for fighting. It's an unheard-of ruling in this day and time of strict control over the sport.

"When and if fights do start, the umpires are to stand by as spectators and not take on the duties of a referee," Green has been quoted as telling his umps.

Already we can envision possibilities if the rule is allowed to stand. Say, a fight starts. The ump retreats to a safe distance and lets the brawl go on. There's no telling when it will end or how many more ball players will become involved. It could become a free-for-all. The club with the best alley fighters could win the pennant by crippling up their less pugilistic rivals even though they might be more adept in the art of baseball. Already, we can see rival pilots beating the bushes of the boxing stables. A fighter may not be able to bat over .100 or be able to throw a decent strike, but if he can beat up the guys that can often enough, the team with the most able-bodied punch-drunks could take the flag in a breeze.

But after all, the umps probable will have something to say about any battles at games they're working. Possibly, the game officials will pull their watch when a fight starts and say: "Alright boys you've got three minutes to settle this. After all we've got a ball game to play."

It'll be an interesting experiment if the order stands up.

Remember when golf balls had a hide as smoothe as a billiard ball? Those balls didn't drive very far. But golfers discovered that these "slick" balls suddenly began to get more distance after they had been scuffed up a bit. So the manufacturers began designing the cover with those little pock marks and other facings. Sure enough, these balls went for plenty of distance over the earlier spheres.

Further experiments has resulted in another new cover design that reputedly is adding ten or more yards to a golfer's drives. U. S. Rubber has come out with the diamond effect, and Twin City pros—Winnie Cole at Bayou DeSiard, Hugh Britt at Municipal, and Leonard Warren at McGuire Park—are already finding their course visitors taking to the new design which, the manufacturers claim, enables the ball to get more "lift" when driven, thus traveling further.

Milo Mattinson, pro at Morehouse Country Club, Bastrop, decided to give the ball a test against others in his stock, we have been told. Milo gave each his customary swing and commented, "I don't think there's much difference. They all seemed to drive the same way. The feel was the same. There can't be much difference in the distances."

But, when his caddy, who had gone out to retrieve the balls, reported back, the diamond designs had traveled around ten yards further.

Whether its just luck or not, the golfers will be the boys to make the final tests in the long run. If the ball stands up to the current claims, then golfing will have reached another milestone.

Rebel 9 Hosts Byrd Tomorrow At Playgrounds

The West Monroe Rebels' baseball club plays host to the Byrd Yellow Jacket nine tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 at the Playgrounds.

Coach Bobby Wilson could not be reached late last night, but the conjecture is that he will start his strongest team, including ace hurler Wayne Hendricks, against the Shreveporters in an attempt to secure revenge for a previous loss there.

The game will be a Class AA Conference tussle. The Rebs have a 1-1 mark for conference tilts this season, and a 2-1 overall record.

Timely Tip Leads All Way To Take Arkansas Derby

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 27 (AP)—A. L. Birch's favored Timely Tip led all the way to win the 18th running of the $10,000-added Arkansas Derby before a record crowd of 14,022 at Oaklawn Park today.

With Harold Craig in the irons, the top weighted three-year-old colt sped to the lead over the fast track to finish a length ahead of John H. Clark's Winning Count.

Rebel stable's Super Devil was third with Pollard and Harkins' Close Out fourth.

Timely Tip, winning his third race as a three-year-old, ran the mile and a furlong in 1:49 4-5—3-5 of a second off the track record—and paid $4.20, $3.20 and $2.60.

Winning Count, ridden by jockey Hank Moreno who piloted Dark Star to victory in the 1953 Kentucky Derby, paid $3.60 and $3.; Super Devil returned $3.80.

The mutuel handle of $781,876 for the closing day of the 31-day Arkansas meeting set an all-time record for one day's wagering.

New records also were set in the total handle and crowds for the season. A total of 258,177 fans wagered $14,406,49, compared with last year's record season of 241,763 persons betting $13,498,975.

Timely Tip was forced to repeal repeated challenges by Winning Count and Super Devil as the field entered the stretch. In the early stages of the Derby, Joe's Crest stayed in closest pursuit of the Birch colorbearer but faded as the pack entered the final turn.

Timely Tip, who has won 10 victories in 16 starts during his career, has earned $31,585—including today's share of the purse.

Doggett Sparks Purple Victory In L. S. U. Game

BATON ROUGE, March 27 (AP)—Al Doggett's sure hand on a wet ball gave his Purple teammates a 20-6 victory over a fumbling Gold team in Louisiana State University's annual spring practice football game today.

The 22-year-old Homer quarterback ran for one touchdown, passed for another and did most of his team's kicking throughout a constant downpour that drove the 500 fans under the stands.

The rain earlier had washed out a track meet with Loyola and cast a gloom over LSU's "Sports Open House" that honored old-time football fans and paid homage to the class of 1900.

The Purple team racked up touchdowns in the first, second final quarter. Doggett punched over one yard for the opening score to climax a 90-yard drive, highlighted by the running of Chuck Johns and Vince Gonzales.

The Purple struck again midway in the second quarter after Dickie Prescott skidded 46 yards to the goal line on a pitchout from Doggett. The St. Francisville senior dove over on the next play.

Doggett's 10-yard pass to Jerry Dumas at the opening of the fourth quarter ended the Purple scoring.

The Gold team finally came to terms with the slippery ball a few minutes later as Cliff Stringfield opened up with a series of long passes to newcomer Rolland Hoover, a 20-year-old sophomore from Goshen, Ind. One of them covered 33 yards and a touchdown.

Stringfield missed his extra point try, while Doggett made two out of three.

Pomace Shows Way In Magic City Dash

MIAMI, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Hasty House farms' Pomace scored a front-running two length victory in the $10,000 Magic City Handicap before 17,949 spectators at Gulfstream Park today.

The $16.10 winner defeated Sir Mango, the 6 to 5 favorite owned by H. N. Eads. Sir Mango was a nose in advance of Duntreath farm's Stop Gap. Pomace was timed in 1:10 2-5 for the six furlongs.

Johnny Adams hustled Pomace to the front at the start and he never was passed although he was challenged for a half mile by Sir Mango. Pomace shook off Sir Mango entering the stretch in response to Adams' urging and steadily increased his advantage through the final eighth of a mile.

Northeast Golfers Aim For New Orleans Meet

The Northeast State Golf Team will pack their clubs and head for New Orleans tomorrow to compete in the New Orleans Invitational Tournament scheduled to begin on April 1.

The event will be held at the New Orleans Country Club and consist of golf teams from L. S. U., Spring Hill, Tulane and Northeast. Both L. S. U. and Tulane excell in having golf squads that are hard to beat and it is evident that much competition will be offered. Trophies will be given to the outstanding individuals and teams in the tourney.

Boasting a team of Wayne Woods, Harold Woods, Jr., Bobby Ledbetter, and Al Gallagher, the Redskins plan to compete as a team and also for individual honors.

Wayne Woods was runner - up in the Twin City Championship last year while his brother, Harold Woods, Jr., won the Cramer Haas Memorial Tournament here.

Al Gallagher, recently discharged from the air force received high honors for his flight and Bobby Ledbetter placed on the air force team while in service.

Coached by John Luffey and Jerry Rust, these men show great promise as the strongest golf machine Northeast has ever produced.

Calhoun Elated As White Shows Hurling Promise

CALHOUN, La., March 27 (Special)—The Calhoun High Chieftians, rounding into good shape and elated over the uncovering of Joe White as a starting pitcher, returns to action next week, having a tentative date with Chatham on Tuesday and a positive assignment with Downsville in the annual "Sports Day" program held between the two schools. The event with Downsville will be held here this year, and the ball game is scheduled for a 1 p.m. start Thursday.

In Friday's game against West Monroe, White came into his own as he yielded only one hit to the Rebels—a triple by "Chubby" Johnston, a former Calhoun High product. The only other ball close to a hit was a short fly by Johnston that was caught and dropped by Irving Sills, Calhoun outfielder. The Chiefs lost the game, 6-5, as the result of nine errors and poor base running.

Coach Terrell has been trying desperately to fill vacancies left by Jerry Johnson, first base; "Chubby" Johnston, third base; and Gerald Coker, left field. Third and first have been weak spots. Trying for third are Stan Weams, Leon Malone and Tommy Roan. A newcomer to the squad, eighth-grader Dewey Wilder, looked good in the West Monroe game.

At shortstop is dependable Richard Mitchell whose booming triple and single led all the hitters in the Rebel scrap. Second base is filled by Keneth Coon. Charles Aulds is improving rapidly and will hold down left field. Sills, one of the most dependable squadmen, plays center and right field. Richard Crawford and Henry Little share right field when Sills is in center.

Another all around performer is Donald Jack Finley who alternates between catcher and first base. Sharing pitching duties with White are Earl Finley, R. Puckett, and R. Skipper.

In addition to pitching, the versatile White plays center and first base. Just as in basketball, where he scored 1,155 points during the last season, White appears headed for another good year in baseball.

Loy Heard Has Ace On McGuire Layout

Loy Heard of West Monroe boasts his first hole-in-one, scored during the past week over the McGuire Park course in West Monroe.

Pro Leonard Warren last night said Heard aced the 100-yard No. 8 hole, using a nine iron. He was playing in a foursome that included Jimmy Green, E. J. Miller, and Everett Lawson.

Heard's card for the 18-hole round showed an even par 72.

Wildcats Launch Baseball Season Against Airmen

PINEVILLE, La., March 27, (Special)—Louisiana College Wildcats make their debate in the '54 baseball campaign Monday when they travel to Alexandria Air Field Base. The afternoon encounter, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, finds Coaches Lenny Fant and Billy Buckley depending chiefly on freshmen and newcomers.

Herbert Coats at first, Gerald Jordan at shortstop, and Carl Ben Priest in left field are the only returning players from last season.

Two Texas lads, Gerald "Cotton" Williams and Melvin Brown, will comprise the battery. Coach Fant has designated Williams as his starting pitcher in Monday's contest.

Second base will be turned over to freshman Tommy Bankston, who has been looking very impressive when teaming with Jordan. Either Ted Hayes or Ernie Duplechin, the catcher last year, will handle third. Hayes is a freshman speedster and outstanding player.

Billy Roy Snyder or Julius Scott will patrol in center field. Both are capable boys. In right field, James Lanier or Tommy Wilmore will be named. Lanier is another one of the freshmen.

Miss Hart Takes Women's Singles In Neighbor Play

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Doris Hart, Miami, the No. 2 ranking woman player in the United States, kept the Good Neighbor women's tennis championship in this country today by defeating Helen Fletcher, England's No. 2 star, 6-4, 6-4.

Both Wightman Cup players were on practically even terms in their baseline play but Miss Hart showed superiority in volleying. Miss Fletcher seldom took the net.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, the nation's No. 2 ranking player, won his way into the finals of the men's singles by beating Gardner Mulloy, 40-year-old Miamian rated No. 4 nationally, 6-3, 4-6, 8-6, 8-6.

Seixas won the match with brilliant overhead smashes and sharply angled volleys which kept Mulloy running from one side line to the other.

Seixas will play Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., in the final tomorrow.

Miss Hart and Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, the winners last year at Wimbledon, defeated Miss Fletcher and Mrs. Joy Mottram of England, 6-0, 5-7, 6-3, to win the women's doubles title.

In a men's doubles semi-final match, Hugh Stewart of Los Angeles and Hal Burrows of Charlottesville, W. Va., knocked out Sven Davidson of Sweden and Kurt Neilsen of Denmark, 6-2, 0-6, 7-5. Stewart and Burrows will meet Larsen and Sidney Schwartz of Fort Lee, Va., in tomorrow's finals.

Miss Hart and Seixas teamed to defeat Miss Fletcher and Stewart, 6-3, 6-3, in the mixed doubles semi-finals. In the other bracket, Miss Fry and Burrows defeated Suzanne Herr of Miami Beach and Seymour Greenberg of Chicago, 6-0, 6-1.

Royal Tan Takes Grand National; 4 Horses Die

By STERLING SLAPPEY

AINTREE, England, March 27 (AP)—Royal Tan, a determined veteran from Ireland who had failed twice before, won the 108th Grand National Steeplechase today in a thrilling race that brought death to four of the 29 starters.

The 10-year-old Royal Tan, who stumbled at the final fence in 1951 while leading and fell at the same barrier in 1952, came through with silks flying this time in the world's greatest steeplechase. An Irish sweepstakes is decided on its outcome.

Royal Tan outfought Tudor Line in a tingling stretch duel, and just made it under the wire by a slim neck margin. Irish Lizard, the post-time favorite at 15-2, finished third, another 10 lengths behind. Royal Tan paid 8-1, Tudor Line, 10-1.

It was the second straight National victory for the lucky Irish combine of owner Joe Griffin, 36-year-old Dublin chocolate manufacturer, jockey Bryan Marshall and trainer Vincent O'Brien.

Last year they teamed up to win the 4-mile, 856-yard race over 30 tough jumps with Early Mist—another valiant Irish 'chaser. Early Mist was withdrawn this year due to an injury.

The crowd, estimated variously at from 125,000 to double that number, saw one of the most exciting Nationals since Lottery won the inaugural running in 1839.

"Only nine of the starters finished, and four, including the pre-race favorite, Coneyburrow, will never race again. Coneyburrow, 7-1 overnight favorite who went off as the joint second choice with Royal Tan, was so seriously injured in a tumble three fences from home that he was later destroyed. Legal Joy, who ran second to Teal in the 1952 Grand National, went down at the 13th fence and broke his neck. Dominick's Bar dropped dead during the race and Paris New York broke a leg and was destroyed.

Churchtown, also trained by O'Brien, finished fourth, followed by Sanperion, Martinique, Uncle Barney, Southern Coup and Ontray.

Royal Tan, only really class horse in the race, carried top weight of 161 pounds. The chestnut gelding by Tartan-Princess Of Birds was timed in a slow 9:32 4-5, compared with the record of 9:20 2-5 set by Golden Miller in 1934 and equalled by Bogskar in 1940.

Royal Tan earned $24,288, while Tudor Line got $2,917 and Irish Lizard's share was $1,458.

British bookmakers said the race was expensive for them. One said he must pay out $312,400 on Royal Tan. He added that bettors won another $710,400 on Lincolnshire and Grand National winning doubles—backers who coupled Lincoln winner Nahar with Royal Tan.

Ring King Takes Cherry Blossom In Upset Victory

LAUREL, Md., March 27 (AP)—Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Ring King, an absentee from the triple crown races, brought grief to the undefeated California invader, Double Speed, by winning today's Cherry Blossom Stakes.

Double Speed's Kentucky Derby hopes took a big dip as he finished third, 5½ lengths back of the winner.

Brae Burn farm's War Piper, the only triple crown eligible among the nine starters, was second.

Double Speed showed none of the vaunted flash of last year, when he won all four starts in California. The winning time for the six furlongs here was only a mediocre 1:11.

The crowd of 26,608, which had bet $102,586 on Double Speed out of a total of $172,586, booed jockey Pete Moreno and Double Speed upon their return for unsaddling.

Jockey Willie Hartack sent Ring King into the lead after the field had gone half a mile and turned into the homestretch. They sailed down handily to win by 3¼ lengths and return $8,060 for the owner and $27.80 for those who bet $2 on the bay son of Alsab.

Double Speed, who had led from start to finish in his four California races as a 2-year-old, never did get into the lead in this eastern debut.

Mullin Ends Big League Career, Goes To Buffalo

LAKELAND, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Pat Mullin, 36-year-old outfielder, ended his 14-year major league career with the Detroit Tigers today with a shift to the Buffalo farm club. He will serve as player-coach.

Accompanying Mullin to the Tigertown camp, where Buffalo is training, were two recruit pitchers, Paul Foytack and Frank Lary.

General manager Muddy Ruel disclosed the four changes that cut Detroit's roster to 35 players, including Steve Souchock, who remains in his Dearborn home with a fractured wrist.

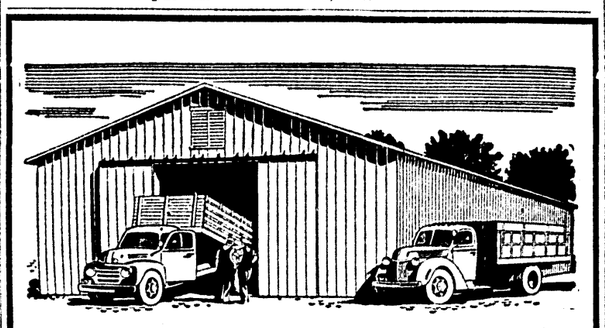

As a rookie Mullin gave promise of becomming a payer of top rank. A broken collar bone, suffered in 1940 imposed a lasting handicap. For the last five seasons he had been used mostly as a pinch-hitter and utility outfielder.

Mullin, one of the most popular players in Briggs Stadium history, accepted his release graciously.

"Anyway, I'm still in the Tiger family," the veteran said. "That's a lot." He's been with Detroit since 1940.

Nats Trade Thomas

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

Lively times are envisioned for Texas' Big State League this season if Howard Green, the youthful loop president, doesn't rescind his "let 'em fight" edict. Baseball tempers being what they are, Howard's clubs will probably start billing a fight-a-night to stimulate attendance, but somehow this doesn't seem cricket.

It seems Green has instructed his umpires not to interfere if players become embroiled in fisticuffs, and not to eject any players from a game for fighting. It's an unheard-of ruling in this day and time of strict control over the sport.

"When and if fights do start, the umpires are to stand by as spectators and not take on the duties of a referee," Green has been quoted as telling his umps.

Already we can envision possibilities if the rule is allowed to stand. Say, a fight starts. The ump retreats to a safe distance and lets the brawl go on. There's no telling when it will end or how many more ball players will become involved. It could become a free-for-all. The club with the best alley fighters could win the pennant by crippling up their less pugilistic rivals even though they might be more adept in the art of baseball. Already, we can see rival pilots beating the bushes of the boxing stables. A fighter may not be able to bat over .100 or be able to throw a decent strike, but if he can beat up the guys that can often enough, the team with the most able-bodied punch-drunks could take the flag in a breeze.

But after all, the umps probable will have something to say about any battles at games they're working. Possibly, the game officials will pull their watch when a fight starts and say: "Alright boys you've got three minutes to settle this. After all we've got a ball game to play."

It'll be an interesting experiment if the order stands up.

Remember when golf balls had a hide as smoothe as a billiard ball? Those balls didn't drive very far. But golfers discovered that these "slick" balls suddenly began to get more distance after they had been scuffed up a bit. So the manufacturers began designing the cover with those little pock marks and other facings. Sure enough, these balls went for plenty of distance over the earlier spheres.

Further experiments has resulted in another new cover design that reputedly is adding ten or more yards to a golfer's drives. U. S. Rubber has come out with the diamond effect, and Twin City pros—Winnie Cole at Bayou DeSiard, Hugh Britt at Municipal, and Leonard Warren at McGuire Park—are already finding their course visitors taking to the new design which, the manufacturers claim, enables the ball to get more "lift" when driven, thus traveling further.

Milo Mattinson, pro at Morehouse Country Club, Bastrop, decided to give the ball a test against others in his stock, we have been told. Milo gave each his customary swing and commented, "I don't think there's much difference. They all seemed to drive the same way. The feel was the same. There can't be much difference in the distances."

But, when his caddy, who had gone out to retrieve the balls, reported back, the diamond designs had traveled around ten yards further.

Whether its just luck or not, the golfers will be the boys to make the final tests in the long run. If the ball stands up to the current claims, then golfing will have reached another milestone.

PINEVILLE, La., March 27, (Special)—Louisiana College Wildcats make their debate in the '54 baseball campaign Monday when they travel to Alexandria Air Field Base. The afternoon encounter, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, finds Coaches Lenny Fant and Billy Buckley depending chiefly on freshmen and newcomers.

Herbert Coats at first, Gerald Jordan at shortstop, and Carl Ben Priest in left field are the only returning players from last season.

Two Texas lads, Gerald "Cotton" Williams and Melvin Brown, will comprise the battery. Coach Fant has designated Williams as his starting pitcher in Monday's contest.

Second base will be turned over to freshman Tommy Bankston, who has been looking very impressive when teaming with Jordan. Either Ted Hayes or Ernie Duplechin, the catcher last year, will handle third. Hayes is a freshman speedster and outstanding player.

Billy Roy Snyder or Julius Scott will patrol in center field. Both are capable boys. In right field, James Lanier or Tommy Wilmore will be named. Lanier is another one of the freshmen.

Miss Hart Takes Women's Singles In Neighbor Play

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Doris Hart, Miami, the No. 2 ranking woman player in the United States, kept the Good Neighbor women's tennis championship in this country today by defeating Helen Fletcher, England's No. 2 star, 6-4, 6-4.

Both Wightman Cup players were on practically even terms in their baseline play but Miss Hart showed superiority in volleying. Miss Fletcher seldom took the net.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, the nation's No. 2 ranking player, won his way into the finals of the men's singles by beating Gardner Mulloy, 40-year-old Miamian rated No. 4 nationally, 6-3, 4-6, 8-6, 8-6.

Seixas won the match with brilliant overhead smashes and sharply angled volleys which kept Mulloy running from one side line to the other.

Seixas will play Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., in the final tomorrow.

Miss Hart and Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, the winners last year at Wimbledon, defeated Miss Fletcher and Mrs. Joy Mottram of England, 6-0, 5-7, 6-3, to win the women's doubles title.

In a men's doubles semi-final match, Hugh Stewart of Los Angeles and Hal Burrows of Charlottesville, W. Va., knocked out Sven Davidson of Sweden and Kurt Neilsen of Denmark, 6-2, 0-6, 7-5. Stewart and Burrows will meet Larsen and Sidney Schwartz of Fort Lee, Va., in tomorrow's finals.

Miss Hart and Seixas teamed to defeat Miss Fletcher and Stewart, 6-3, 6-3, in the mixed doubles semi-finals. In the other bracket, Miss Fry and Burrows defeated Suzanne Herr of Miami Beach and Seymour Greenberg of Chicago, 6-0, 6-1.

Rebel 9 Hosts Byrd Tomorrow At Playgrounds

The West Monroe Rebels' baseball club plays host to the Byrd Yellow Jacket nine tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 at the Playgrounds.

Coach Bobby Wilson could not be reached late last night, but the conjecture is that he will start his strongest team, including ace hurler Wayne Hendricks, against the Shreveporters in an attempt to secure revenge for a previous loss there.

The game will be a Class AA Conference tussle. The Rebs have a 1-1 mark for conference tilts this season, and a 2-1 overall record.

Timely Tip Leads All Way To Take Arkansas Derby

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 27 (AP)—A. L. Birch's favored Timely Tip led all the way to win the 18th running of the $10,000-added Arkansas Derby before a record crowd of 14,022 at Oaklawn Park today.

With Harold Craig in the irons, the top weighted three-year-old colt sped to the lead over the fast track to finish a length ahead of John H. Clark's Winning Count.

Rebel stable's Super Devil was third with Pollard and Harkins' Close Out fourth.

Timely Tip, winning his third race as a three-year-old, ran the mile and a furlong in 1:49 4-5—3-5 of a second off the track record—and paid $4.20, $3.20 and $2.60.

Winning Count, ridden by jockey Hank Moreno who piloted Dark Star to victory in the 1953 Kentucky Derby, paid $3.60 and $3.; Super Devil returned $3.80.

The mutuel handle of $781,876 for the closing day of the 31-day Arkansas meeting set an all-time record for one day's wagering.

New records also were set in the total handle and crowds for the season. A total of 258,177 fans wagered $14,406,49, compared with last year's record season of 241,763 persons betting $13,498,975.

Timely Tip was forced to repeal repeated challenges by Winning Count and Super Devil as the field entered the stretch. In the early stages of the Derby, Joe's Crest stayed in closest pursuit of the Birch colorbearer but faded as the pack entered the final turn.

Timely Tip, who has won 10 victories in 16 starts during his career, has earned $31,585—including today's share of the purse.

FIORE GETS NOD

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 27 (AP)—Carmine Fiore, left hooking specialist from Brooklyn, N. Y., scored a unanimous, but unpopular decision over Italo Scortichini of Italy tonight in a spirited 10-round bout at War Memorial auditorium. Fiore weighed 147 and Scortichini 154¾.

Royal Tan Takes Grand National; 4 Horses Die

By STERLING SLAPPEY

AINTREE, England, March 27 (AP)—Royal Tan, a determined veteran from Ireland who had failed twice before, won the 108th Grand National Steeplechase today in a thrilling race that brought death to four of the 29 starters.

The 10-year-old Royal Tan, who stumbled at the final fence in 1951 while leading and fell at the same barrier in 1952, came through with silks flying this time in the world's greatest steeplechase. An Irish sweepstakes is decided on its outcome.

Royal Tan outfought Tudor Line in a tingling stretch duel, and just made it under the wire by a slim neck margin. Irish Lizard, the post-time favorite at 15-2, finished third, another 10 lengths behind. Royal Tan paid 8-1, Tudor Line, 10-1.

It was the second straight National victory for the lucky Irish combine of owner Joe Griffin, 36-year-old Dublin chocolate manufacturer, jockey Bryan Marshall and trainer Vincent O'Brien.

Last year they teamed up to win the 4-mile, 856-yard race over 30 tough jumps with Early Mist—another valiant Irish 'chaser. Early Mist was withdrawn this year due to an injury.

The crowd, estimated variously at from 125,000 to double that number, saw one of the most exciting Nationals since Lottery won the inaugural running in 1839.

"Only nine of the starters finished, and four, including the pre-race favorite, Coneyburrow, will never race again. Coneyburrow, 7-1 overnight favorite who went off as the joint second choice with Royal Tan, was so seriously injured in a tumble three fences from home that he was later destroyed. Legal Joy, who ran second to Teal in the 1952 Grand National, went down at the 13th fence and broke his neck. Dominick's Bar dropped dead during the race and Paris New York broke a leg and was destroyed.

Churchtown, also trained by O'Brien, finished fourth, followed by Sanperion, Martinique, Uncle Barney, Southern Coup and Ontray.

Royal Tan, only really class horse in the race, carried top weight of 161 pounds. The chestnut gelding by Tartan-Princess Of Birds was timed in a slow 9:32 4-5, compared with the record of 9:20 2-5 set by Golden Miller in 1934 and equalled by Bogskar in 1940.

Royal Tan earned $24,288, while Tudor Line got $2,917 and Irish Lizard's share was $1,458.

British bookmakers said the race was expensive for them. One said he must pay out $312,400 on Royal Tan. He added that bettors won another $710,400 on Lincolnshire and Grand National winning doubles—backers who coupled Lincoln winner Nishar with Royal Tan.

Ring King Takes Cherry Blossom In Upset Victory

Double Speed's Kentucky Derby hopes took a big dip as he finished third, 5½ lengths back of the winner.

Brae Burn farm's War Piper, the only triple crown eligible among the nine starters, was second.

Double Speed showed none of the vaunted flash of last year, when he won all four starts in California. The winning time for the six furlongs here was only a mediocre 1:14.

The crowd of 26,608, which had bet $102,586 on Double Speed out of a total of $172,586, booed jockey Pete Moreno and Double Speed upon their return for unsaddling.

Jockey Willie Hartack sent Ring King into the lead after the field had gone half a mile and turned into the homestretch. They sailed down handily to win by 3½ lengths and return $8.060 for the owner and $27.80 for those who bet $2 on the bay son of Alsab.

Double Speed, who had led from start to finish in his four California races as a 2-year-old, never did get into the lead in this eastern debut.

Mullin Ends Big League Career, Goes To Buffalo

LAKELAND, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Pat Mullin, 36-year-old outfielder, ended his 14-year major league career with the Detroit Tigers today with a shift to the Buffalo farm club. He will serve as player-coach.

Accompanying Mullin to the Tigertown camp, where Buffalo is training, were two recruit pitchers, Paul Foytack and Frank Lary.

General manager Muddy Ruel disclosed the four changes that cut Detroit's roster to 35 players, including Steve Souchock, who remains in his Dearborn home with a fractured wrist.

As a rookie Mullin gave promise of becomming a payer of top rank. A broken collar bone, suffered in 1940 imposed a lasting handicap. For the last five seasons he had been used mostly as a pinch-hitter and utility outfielder.

Mullin, one of the most popular players in Briggs Stadium history, accepted his release graciously.

"Anyway, I'm still in the Tiger family," the veteran said. "That's a lot." He's been with Detroit since 1940.

Nats Trade Thomas

Bums Remain Team To Beat; Yankees Big Question

Brooklyn Shows Only 'Set' Team In National Loop

By JACK HAND

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Brooklyn still is the team to beat in the National League as the clubs head home after a spotty training season, marred by an epidemic of injuries and chill, windy weather.

Don Newcombe's return to '51 form after two years in the Army boosted Dodger stock while Bobby Thompson's unfortunate accident chilled Milwaukee's pennant boom.

Although the addition of ex-Yankee Vic Raschi was a life saver to St. Louis' thin pitching staff, the Cards still are experimenting with rookies at shortstop and first base.

Philadelphia desperately needs infield help to back up Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons and the New York Giants still are not sure how much pitching they will get from Sal Maglie and Larry Jansen, despite outfielder Willie Mays' return from the Army.

Cincinnati is stabbing for right-handed pitching among a flock of ex G.I. and minor league material and Chicago shows no improvement over last year's sorry finish. Pittsburgh, once again an early Grapefruit League leader does seem to have uncovered some new home run power but it must pick up 15 games to escape the cellar.

Nothing that has happened during spring training has changed the position of Brooklyn as the winter book favorite to win a third straight pennant. The Dodgers are a "set" ball club with no changes, except the addition of Newcombe, a 20-game winner in '51, and a new manager in Walter Alston, up from Montreal.

Perhaps Roy Campanella, Duke Snider, Carl Furillo and Gil Hodges won't have such great seasons again, but the Brooks can afford to squander some of their 13-game lead and still make the world series.

Jackie Robinson hasn't been able to play too much but Don Thompson has been doing a fine job in left field. Carl Erskine appears headed for another big year, as does Newcombe. Joe Black has been throwing like the Black of '52.

Thomson's triple ankle fracture was a tremendous blow to Milwaukee's chances for the ex-New York Giant was in fine form, hitting the ball hard and anxious to help the Braves get off fast. It may be July before Bobby is back in left field. Danny O'Connell seems to have won the second base job from Jack Dittmer and rookie Hank Aaron, Sally League batting champ at Jacksonville, is making a strong bid for right field.

Manager Charlie Grimm has Chet Nichols back from the Army to make up for Max Surkont, Johnny Antonelli and Don Liddle, who were traded in the O'Connell and Thomson deals.

The St. Louis picture is uncertain. Raschi, 35, was purchased from the Yanks for $75,000 to fill the gap left by Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, now in the Army. Manager Eddie Stanky is giving shortstop Alex Grammas and first baseman Tom Alston, each a $100,000 purchase, a chance to make the club. But the pitching staff, even with the addition of Raschi, still is Stanky's main problem.

FOURTH STRAIGHT—The Logtown girls' basketball team, pictured above, recently won its fourth consecutive Ouachita Parish Elementary League championship for eight-graders by beating Swartz in the league finals, 22-14. Coach A. L. Lewis' sextet won 21 of 22 games during the season, and lost only two in the past four years, both losses to junior high teams. Members of the squad, left to right, are Coach Lewis, Lucille Brooks, Doris McCaa, Nita Scott, Irene Dupree, Evelene Arrant, Armadine Miller, Christine Telano, Avis Patton, Levonne Eppinette, and Carol Shipp.

Olson 9-5 Over Gavilan

Rochester Evens Pro Cage Series With Minneapolis

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 27 (AP)—Jack Coleman's jump shot from 10 feet out with seven seconds remaining kept Rochester alive in the western division playoffs of the National Basketball Association today as the Royals defeated the Minneapolis Lakers 74-73.

Rochester's victory in the national televised game squared the series at one game each. The deciding game will be played in Minneapolis tomorrow afternoon.

Rochester led most of the way, streaking to a 16-12 advantage at the first quarter mark. The Royals increased their margin in the second period and walked off at the halftime intermission holding a seemingly comfortable 36-28 edge.

But the Lakers rallied in the third quarter, outscoring their opponents by seven points and the teams went into the final session with Rochester ahead only 53-52. From there it was touch and go until Coleman's climactic basket won it for the Royals.

Little Bobby Wanzer was high for Rochester with 16 points. Arnie Risen had 14, Bob Davies 11 and Coleman 10 for the Royals.

If Minneapolis wins tomorrow, the Lakers will play the eastern division champion Syracuse Nationals at home on March 31 in the first game of a best-of-seven series. Should Rochester come out on top, the title series would begin on the Royals' court, also on March 31.

The Royals face a Herculean task in tomorrow's deciding game. The Lakers never have lost a play-off game on Minneapolis' court.

CHICAGO, March 27 (AP)—Hawaiian-born Carl (Bobo) Olson, a current 9-5 favorite, makes his first world middleweigh. title defense against the pride of Cuba, world Welterweight Champion Kid Gavilan, at Chicago Stadium Friday night.

The nationally-televised, 15-round bout (9 p.m. CST) between the constant-flailing Olson and flurry-vicious Gavilan, each a proud and determined champion, has experts and armchair fans alike expecting a whale of a fight.

The muscular Olson figures to have a six-pound bulge over the high-waisted, spindly-shanked Gavilan, 159 to 153.

Olson, 25, by bulling, crowding tactics, is expected to thwart Gavilan's effort to graduate from 147 to 160 pound champion as did Sugar Ray Robinson, who twice licked both Gavilan and Olson.

But Bobo's favoritism is likely to drop to perhaps as close as 7-5 or 6-5 by the time he throws his first punch in defense of the 160-pound title he acquired by outpointing Randy Turpin of England last Oct. 21.

Gavilan's pro career lists almost twice as many bouts as Olson's, 115 to 60. The Kid has a 98-13-4 record, including 27 KO's. Bobo has won 54 bouts, 26 by KO, and lost six.

Gavilan is confident he can defeat Olson, perhaps by a knockout, thus providing some solace for the fact Robinson retired as unbeaten middleweight champion late in 1952 without giving him a chance to whip Sugar Ray.

The Cuban Kid doesn't like to hear Robinson described as boxing's greatest fighter, pound-for-pound. He thinks he is. And he has promised the president of Cuba, personally, he will bring the 160-pound crown back with him to Havana.

Brawl Features Syracuse Climb In Pro Playoffs

BOSTON, March 27 (AP)—The Syracuse Nationals won the National Basketball Association eastern division championship today with an 83-76 victory over the Boston Celtics in a game marked by a wild brawl in Boston Garden.

The triumph was the second straight for Syracuse in the best of three series with Boston. It was the Nationals' sixth consecutive playoff victory and 12th win in their last 13 games.

Syracuse lost its star Dolph Schayes early in the second half while trailing 53-47 when he was knocked heavily to the floor by Bob Harris of the Celtics. Schayes was flattened as he drove in for a shot and the melee resulted.

Schayes' rugged teammate Wally Osterkorn touched off the rhubarb by punching Harris. Players from both benches rushed to the floor and jostled and shoved one another.

The jam was broken up reasonably soon and order seemed restored. Then Osterkorn took offense at a remark by one of the Celtics and sailed into easy Ed MacCauley of Boston. The new tussle was wilder than the first and it took some 15 uniformed policemen, aided by Boston Garden ushers and referees Sid Borgia and Stan Stutz, to break it up.

About 100 persons were milling around on the court at one stage.

There was a 25 minute delay as Schayes went to the dressing room for three stitches to close a gash near his eye.

'Raw Deal' Indian Vs. Cronin Again Tuesday

One of the most-bitterly contested wrestling rivalries in recent months continues at Kallio's Arena Tuesday night, when Pat "Big Boy" Cronin takes on Indian Chief Apache for the third straight week in the 90-minute time limit, two falls to win feature match. The Chief, who has fallen victim to Cronin's villainy and lost both previous bouts, is still looking for his first win over the Mississippian.

In the two one-fall supportng matches, huge Charro Aztec meets a newcomer, the Alaska Wolf Man, in the semi-final; and Al Massey, the big Floridian, fights Paddy Mack in the 8:15 opener.

The semi has a one-hour time limit, and the opener thirty minutes.

Cronin's strategy against the Chief seems to be the old battle-strategy of getting your opponent so infuriated he loses control. Two weeks ago, the "Big Boy" slugged Chief Apache so frequently and pulled his long hair so much that the Indian was almost beside himself in anger, and in trying to retaliate, got himself caught in a vicious armstomp, Cronin's pet match-ender.

Last week, the Chief tried to keep cool despite his previous knowledge of Cronin's style, but this lasted only a few minutes, and the furious battle reached its height in the second fall when the Indian, riproaring mad, smashed Cronin to the mat and applied his prone hammerlock which made "Big Boy" give up in a hurry. So upset was the Chief that long after Cronin "gave", the Apache was still waving his feet in the air any applying pressure, until he was finally pulled off by referee Bill Barney.

The Indian Chief's prone hammerlock is one of the most colorful holds ever seen here, in which the Indian throws his victim flat on his face, twists his arm up tight behind him, and then, to exert powerful pressure, does headstand after headstand on the prone grappler's back.

With the falls even at one apiece last Tuesay, Cronin began the third and final by mauling Apache all over the ring, using every villainous tactic in the book, and as a final touch, twisting the Chief's long braids around his throat in a perfect noose, and tightening the pressure. During all of this flagrant fouling, the referee, despite the crowd's howls of protest, did nothing. Yet when the Indian finally escaped, went completely berserk from anger, and threw both Barney and Cronin out of the ring, and slugged them both everytime they tried to reenter, he was disqualified and the match awarded to Cronin. Both Cronin and referee Barney got what they deserved, for each was equally guilty of causing the Chief to lose his head—Cronin for numerous fouls all through the event, and Barney for not disqualifying the villian early in the third heat.

Unless Apache has some new defense against villainy Tuesday, it is hard to determine how he'll ever beat Cronin, for the "Big Boy's" fouls go unheeded, while the Chief is disqualified if he retaliates.

There will be two referees for this match Tuesday. Perhaps one of them will be impartial and instead of merely counting to ten while Cronin is committing mayhem on the Indian for nine counts, disqualify him instantly for persisting in such acts.

Aztec, in the semi-final, is another burly wrestler whose style is as illegal as Cronin's. The big Mexican, who is at his best when he has an opponent by the hair, never hesitates to run cringing to the apron when his rival is getting the best of it. The Alaska Wolf Man, who may be anything from a tiber wolf to an Eskimo, is unknown in these parts. However, if he tries to fight cleanly against Aztec, he may as well go back to the Klondike.

Mack has had much successs in the past two weeks, first making Barney, who is cheered as a wrestler but strenuously booed as a referee-particularly in the main events of the past two weeks, give up from a crabhold; and last week giving Rex Mobley the same treatment. Against Massey, who had a bloody match last Tuesday before beating "Wild Bill" Steddum, he not only meets a husky mat veteran, but one who never hesitates to retaliate to any illegal procedures. Massey should show Mack a trick or two this week, probably of the "roundhouse" variety.

Rivals Seriously Think Five-Year Reign About Over

By JOE REICHLER

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Is the great New York Yankee pennant winning machine finally beginning to sputter? Are the stars who have spearheaded the club to five straight world championships finally beginning to show signs of wear and tear? Have the players become rich and fat and smug and satisfied as has been implied in some quarters? In short, are the Yankees ready to be taken?

The answers will be a long time coming but for the first time in years, Yankee rivals seriously believe they have a chance. Such a Yankee setback would be welcomed by millions of baseball fans whose reaction to the club's repeated successes has been: "It's time for a change."

Openly gleeful over the Yankees' dismal showing in spring exhibition games, rival clubs are convinced this is the year of the new look in the American League standings.

Wise old Bucky Harris and Freddie Hutchinson, a pair of managers who have no pennant illusions of their own, already have joined such contending team pilots as Al Lopez, Paul Richards and Lou Boudreau in the belief the Yankees can be beaten this year. Even Manager Casey Stengel agrees the Yankees will have a very hard time winning the pennant if the other clubs have improved.

Have the other clubs improved? And how much? Also, how much have the Yankees deteriorated, if any?

Cleveland, runnerup to the Yankees the past three seasons, has virtually the same team that finished 8½ games behind the champions last year. Once again the Indians must rely on their three big pitchers — Bob Lemon, Mike Garcia and Early Wynn — who won 56 of the tribe's 92 victories.

The trade with Philadelphia for outfielder Dave Philley apparently bolsters the outfield but the infield still lacks a solid first baseman to team with Al Rosen and Larry Doby in the punch department.

Chicago, with improved pitching and a more concentrated attack than last year, could replace the Indians as the Yankees' chief challenger. Jack Harshman, a lefthander from Nashville and righthanler Don Johnson, the former Yankee bent on a comeback, should bolster the pitching staff.

Boston's position depends upon how soon Ted Williams recovers from his collarbone fracture. If the slugging outfielder can return to the lineup by May 1, the Red Sox can be a dark horse contender. The team appears to be sound at every position. The pitching is greatly improved by the fine showing of such youngsters as Bill Henry, Tom Brewer and Gene Clevenger. With Ted's big bat to help George Kell, Jackie Jansen, Billy Goodman, Jimmy Piersall and Sammy White, the club could go all the way.

The acquisition of southpaw Maury McDermott and outfielder Tom Umphlett from Boston in exchange for Jensen is generally regarded as a good trade for Washington. But the Senators still lack that long ball hitter. Washington fans should be prepared for lots of 2-1 and 3-2 games in Griffith Stadium.

Detroit has an improved club but still lacks a lefthanded power hitter, a dependable catcher and team speed.

Philadelphia has a new manager, several new faces and a new attitude but has the same old troubles. The pitching is the big question mark.

The only thing certain about the Baltimore Orioles, newest member of the league, is that they will have a sellout for their home season opener with Chicago. The Orioles inherited the hapless Browns, who finished deep in the American League cellar and except for adding a new manager (Jimmy Dykes) and such veteran players as Eddie Waitkus, Joe Coleman, Sam Mele, Gil Coan and Vern Bickford have been able to do little to bolster the club.

Decorated Noses Out Cyclotron In San Mateo Event

SAN MATEO, Calif., March 27 (AP)—Decorated, given a fine ride by veteran Johnny Longden, closed with a rush today to win the $25,000 added Bay Meadows Handicap by a nose. The time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:43 4-5.

Cyclotron was second after leading in the stretch and just being nipped at the wire in a photo finish.

Southarlington ran third after setting the pace until the far turn.

Berceem, the post time favorite, raced fourth and never seriously threatened.

Decorated was largely overlooked in the betting after his more illustrious stablemate, Imbros, had been declared out of it earlier in the day. The winner paid $17.70, $7.40 and $5.60. Cyclotron, ridden by Ray York and owned by Clifford Moores, went off as second choice and paid $3.90 and $3.40. Southarlington, with John Bucalo up, returned $7.60.

The race grossed $28,300 and was worth $16,500 to the winner.

Northeast Vs. Centenary Tilt Here Postponed

The Northeast State-Centenary College baseball tilt, scheduled here for yesterday afternoon was cancelled because of wet grounds.

The game, according to Indian Coach "Woody" Boyles, will be played early in April, pending arrangements to the satisfaction of both schools.

The Tribe diamondeers travel to Monticello, Ark., tomorrow for a tilt with the Arkansas A. and M. Boll Weevils. Freshman J. B. Nolan is slated for mound duty.

On Friday the Indian nine opens their Gulf States Conference schedule against Southwestern at Lafayette. The McNeese Cowboys will also be opponents on the trip, on the following day in Lake Charles.

Committee Declares Track Rule Invalid

ALEXANDRIA, La., March 27 (AP)—The executive committee of the Louisiana High School Athletic Association decided today that a rule governing qualifiers for the state track meet was invalid.

Waters said entrants in the 1954 meet will not be required to qualify in district meets.

Bums Remain Team To Beat; Yankees Big Question

Brooklyn Shows Only 'Set' Team In National Loop

By JACK HAND

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Brooklyn still is the team to beat in the National League as the clubs head home after a spotty training season, marred by an epidemic of injuries and chill, windy weather.

Don Newcombe's return to '51 form after two years in the Army boosted Dodger stock while Bobby Thompson's unfortunate accident chilled Milwaukee's pennant boom.

Although the addition of ex-Yankee Vic Raschi was a life saver to St. Louis' thin pitching staff, the Cards still are experimenting with rookies at shortstop and first base.

Philadelphia desperately needs infield help to back up Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons and the New York Giants still are not sure how much pitching they will get from Sal Maglie and Larry Jansen, despite outfielder Willie Mays' return from the Army.

Cincinnati is stabbing for right-handed pitching among a flock of ex G.I. and minor league material and Chicago shows no improvement over last year's sorry finish. Pittsburgh, once again an early Grapefruit League leader does seem to have uncovered some new home run power but it must pick up 15 games to escape the cellar.

Nothing that has happened during spring training has changed the position of Brooklyn as the winter book favorite to win a third straight pennant. The Dodgers are a "set" ball club with no changes, except the addition of Newcombe, a 20-game winner in '51, and a new manager in Walter Alston, up from Montreal.

Perhaps Roy Campanella, Duke Snider, Carl Furillo and Gil Hodges won't have such great seasons again, but the Brooks can afford to squander some of their 13-game lead and still make the world series.

Jackie Robinson hasn't been able to play too much but Don Thompson has been doing a fine job in left field. Carl Erskine appears headed for another big year, as does Newcombe. Joe Black has been throwing like the Black of '52.

Thomson's triple ankle fracture was a tremendous blow to Milwaukee's chances for the ex-New York Giant was in fine form, hitting the ball hard and anxious to help the Braves get off fast. It may be July before Bobby is back in left field. Danny O'Connell seems to have won the second base job from Jack Dittmer and rookie Hank Aaron, Sally League batting champ at Jacksonville, is making a strong bid for right field.

Manager Charlie Grimm has Chet Nichols back from the Army to make up for Max Surkont, Johnny Antonelli and Don Liddle, who were traded in the O'Connell and Thomson deals.

The St. Louis picture is uncertain. Raschi, 35, was purchased from the Yanks for $75,000 to fill the gap left by Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, now in the Army. Manager Eddie Stanky is giving shortstop Alex Grammas and first baseman Tom Alston, each a $100,000 purchase, a chance to make the club. But the pitching staff, even with the addition of Raschi, still is Stanky's main problem.

FOURTH STRAIGHT—The Logtown girls' basketball team, pictured above, recently won its fourth consecutive Ouachita Parish Elementary League championship for eight-graders by beating Swartz in the league finals, 22-14. Coach A. L. Lewis' sextet won 21 of 22 games during the season, and lost only two in the past four years, both losses to junior high teams. Members of the squad, left to right, are Coach Lewis, Lucille Brooks, Doris McCaa, Nita Scott, Irene Dupree, Evelene Arrant, Armadine Miller, Christine Telano, Avis Patton, Levonne Eppinette, and Carol Shipp.

Olson 9-5 Over Gavilan

CHICAGO, March 27 (AP)—Hawaiian-born Carl (Bobo) Olson, a current 9-5 favorite, makes his first world middleweight title defense against the pride of Cuba, world Welterweight Champion Kid Gavilan, at Chicago Stadium Friday night.

The nationally-televised, 15-round bout (9 p.m. CST) between the constant-flailing Olson and flurry-vicious Gavilan, each a proud and determined champion, has experts and armchair fans alike expecting a whale of a fight.

The muscular Olson figures to have a six-pound bulge over the high-waisted, spindly-shanked Gavilan, 159 to 153.

Olson, 25, by bulling, crowding tactics, is expected to thwart Gavilan's effort to graduate from 147 to 160 pound champion as did Sugar Ray Robinson, who twice licked both Gavilan and Olson.

But Bobo's favoritism is likely to drop to perhaps as close as 7-5 or 6-5 by the time he throws his first punch in defense of the 160-pound title he acquired by outpointing Randy Turpin of England last Oct. 21.

Gavilan's pro career lists almost twice as many bouts as Olson's, 115 to 60. The Kid has a 98-13-4 record, including 27 KO's. Bobo has won 54 bouts, 26 by KO, and lost six.

Gavilan is confident he can defeat Olson, perhaps by a knockout, thus providing some solace for the fact Robinson retired as unbeaten middleweight champion late in 1952 without giving him a chance to whip Sugar Ray.

The Cuban Kid doesn't like to hear Robinson described as boxing's greatest fighter, pound-for-pound. He thinks he is. And he has promised the president of Cuba, personally, he will bring the 160-pound crown back with him to Havana.

Rochester Evens Pro Cage Series With Minneapolis

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 27 (AP)—Jack Coleman's jump shot from 10 feet out with seven seconds remaining kept Rochester alive in the western division playoffs of the National Basketball Association today as the Royals defeated the Minneapolis Lakers 74-73.

Rochester's victory in the national televised game squared the series at one game each. The deciding game will be played in Minneapolis tomorrow afternoon.

Rochester led most of the way, streaking to a 16-12 advantage at the first quarter mark. The Royals increased their margin in the second period and walked off at the halftime intermission holding a seemingly comfortable 36-28 edge.

But the Lakers rallied in the third quarter, outscoring their opponents by seven points and the teams went into the final session with Rochester ahead only 53-52. From there it was touch and go until Coleman's climactic basket won it for the Royals.

Little Bobby Wanzer was high for Rochester with 16 points. Arnie Risen had 14, Bob Davies 11 and Coleman 10 for the Royals.

If Minneapolis wins tomorrow, the Lakers will play the eastern division campion Syracuse Nationals at home on March 31 in the first game of a best-of-seven series. Should Rochester come out on top, the title series would begin on the Royals' court, also on March 31.

The Royals face a Herculean task in tomorrow's deciding game. The Lakers never have lost a playoff game on Minneapolis' court.

Brawl Features Syracuse Climb In Pro Playoffs

BOSTON, March 27 (AP)—The Syracuse Nationals won the National Basketball Association eastern division championship today with an 83-76 victory over the Boston Celtics in a game marked by a wild brawl in Boston Garden.

The triumph was the second straight for Syracuse in the best of three series with Boston. It was the Nationals' sixth consecutive playoff victory and 12th win in their last 13 games.

Syracuse lost its star Dolph Schayes early in the second half while trailing 53-47 when he was knocked heavily to the floor by Bob Harris of the Celtics. Schayes was flattened as he drove in for a shot and the melee resulted.

Schayes' rugged teammate Wally Osterkorn touched off the rhubarb by punching Harris. Players from both benches rushed to the floor and jostled and shoved one another.

The jam was broken up reasonably soon and order seemed restored. Then Osterkorn took offense at a remark by one of the Celtics and sailed into easy Ed MaCauley of Boston. The new tussle was wilder than the first and it took some 15 uniformed policemen, aided by Boston Garden ushers and referees Sid Borgia and Stan Stutz, to break it up.

About 100 persons were milling around on the court at one stage.

There was a 25 minute delay as Schayes went to the dressing room for three stitches to close a gash near his eye.

'Raw Deal' Indian Vs. Cronin Again Tuesday

One of the most-bitterly contested wrestling rivalries in recent months continues at Kallio's Arena Tuesday night, when Pat "Big Boy" Cronin takes on Indian Chief Apache for the third straight week in the 90-minute time limit, two falls to win feature match. The Chief, who has fallen victim to Cronin's villainy and lost both previous bouts, is still looking for his first win over the Mississippian.

In the two one-fall supportng matches, huge Charro Aztec meets a newcomer, the Alaska Wolf Man, in the semi-final; and Al Massey, the big Floridian, fights Paddy Mack in the 8:15 opener.

The semi has a one-hour time limit, and the opener thirty minutes.

Cronin's strategy against the Chief seems to be the old battle-strategy of getting your opponent so infuriated he loses control. Two weeks ago, the "Big Boy" slugged Chief Apache so frequently and pulled his long hair so much that the Indian was almost beside himself in anger, and in trying to retaliate, got himself caught in a vicious armstomp, Cronin's pet match-ender.

Last week, the Chief tried to keep cool despite his previous knowledge of Cronin's style, but this lasted only a few minutes, and the furious battle reached its height in the second fall when the Indian, riproaring mad, smashed Cronin to the mat and applied his prone hammerlock which made "Big Boy" give up in a hurry. So upset was the Chief that long after Cronin "gave", the Apache was still waving his feet in the air any applying pressure, until he was finally pulled off by referee Bill Barney.

The Indian Chief's prone hammerlock is one of the most colorful holds ever seen here, in which the Indian throws his victim flat on his face, twists his arm up tight behind him, and then, to exert powerful pressure, does headstand after headstand on the prone grappler's back.

With the falls even at one apiece last Tuesay, Cronin began the third and final by mauling Apache all over the ring, using every villainous tactic in the book, and as a final touch, twisting the Chief's long braids around his throat in a perfect noose, and tightening the pressure. During all of this flagrant fouling, the referee, despite the crowd's howls of protest, did nothing. Yet when the Indian finally escaped, went completely berserk from anger, and threw both Barney and Cronin out of the ring, and slugged them both everytime they tried to reenter, he was disqualified and the match awarded to Cronin. Both Cronin and referee Barney got what they deserved, for each was equally guilty of causing the Chief to lose his head—Cronin for numerous fouls all through the event, and Barney for not disqualifying the villian early in the third heat.

Unless Apache has some new defense against villainy Tuesday, it is hard to determine how he'll ever beat Cronin, for the "Big Boy's" fouls go unheeded, while the Chief is disqualified if he retaliates.

There will be two referees for this match Tuesday. Perhaps one of them will be impartial and instead of merely counting to ten while Cronin is committing mayhem on the Indian for nine counts, disqualify him instantly for persisting in such acts.

Aztec, in the semi-final, is another burly wrestler whose style is as illegal as Cronin's. The big Mexican, who is at his best when he has an opponent by the hair, never hesitates to run cringing to the apron when his rival is getting the best of it. The Alaska Wolf Man, who may be anything from a tiber wolf to an Eskimo, is unknown in these parts. However, if he tries to fight cleanly against Aztec, he may as well go back to the Klondike.

Mack has had much success in the past two weeks, first making Barney, who is cheered as a wrestler but strenuously booed as a referee-particularly in the main events of the past two weeks, give up from a crabhold; and last week giving Rex Mobley the same treatment. Against Massey, who had a bloody match last Tuesday before beating "Wild Bill" Steddum, he not only meets a husky mat veteran, but one who never hesitates to retaliate to any illegal procedures. Massey should show Mack a trick or two this week, probably of the "roundhouse" variety.

Rivals Seriously Think Five-Year Reign About Over

By JOE REICHLER

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Is the great New York Yankee pennant winning machine finally beginning to sputter? Are the stars who have spearheaded the club to five straight world championships finally beginning to show signs of wear and tear? Have the players become rich and fat and smug and satisfied as has been implied in some quarters? In short, are the Yankees ready to be taken?

The answers will be a long time coming but for the first time in years, Yankee rivals seriously believe they have a chance. Such a Yankee setback would be welcomed by millions of baseball fans whose reaction to the club's repeated successes has been: "It's time for a change."

Openly gleeful over the Yankees' dismal showing in spring exhibition games, rival clubs are convinced this is the year of the new look in the American League standings.

Wise old Bucky Harris and Freddie Hutchinson, a pair of managers who have no pennant illusions of their own, already have joined such contending team pilots as Al Lopez, Paul Richards and Lou Boudreau in the belief the Yankees can be beaten this year. Even Manager Casey Stengel agrees the Yankees will have a very hard time winning the pennant if the other clubs have improved.

Have the other clubs improved? And how much? Also, how much have the Yankees deteriorated, if any?

Cleveland, runnerup to the Yankees the past three seasons, has virtually the same team that finished 8½ games behind the champions last year. Once again the Indians must rely on their three big pitchers — Bob Lemon, Mike Garcia and Early Wynn — who won 56 of the tribe's 92 victories.

The trade with Philadelphia for outfielder Dave Philley apparently bolsters the outfield but the infield still lacks a solid first baseman to team with Al Rosen and Larry Doby in the punch department.

Chicago, with improved pitching and a more concentrated attack than last year, could replace the Indians as the Yankees' chief challenger. Jack Harshman, a lefthander from Nashville and righthanler Don Johnson, the former Yankee bent on a comeback, should bolster the pitching staff.

Boston's position depends upon how soon Ted Williams recovers from his collarbone fracture. If the slugging outfielder can return to the lineup by May 1, the Red Sox can be a dark horse contender. The team appears to be sound at every position. The pitching is greatly improved by the fine showing of such youngsters as Bill Henry, Tom Brewer and Gene Clevenger. With Ted's big hat to help George Kell, Jackie Jansen, Billy Goodman, Jimmy Piersall and Sammy White, the club could go all the way.

The acquisition of southpaw Maury McDermott and outfielder Tom Umphlett from Boston in exchange for Jensen is generally regarded as a good trade for Washington. But the Senators still lack that long ball hitter. Washington fans should be prepared for lots of 2-1 and 3-2 games in Griffith Stadium.

Detroit has an improved club but still lacks a lefthanded power hitter, a dependable catcher and team speed.

Philadelphia has a new manager, several new faces and a new attitude but has the same old troubles. The pitching is the big question mark.

The only thing certain about the Baltimore Orioles, newest member of the league, is that they will have a sellout for their home season opener with Chicago. The Orioles inherited the hapless Browns, who finished deep in the American League cellar and except for adding a new manager (Jimmy Dykes) and such veteran players as Eddie Waitkus, Joe Coleman, Sam Mele, Gil Coan and Vern Bickford have been able to do little to bolster the club.

Decorated Noses Out Cyclotron In San Mateo Event

SAN MATEO, Calif., March 27 (AP)—Decorated, given a fine ride by veteran Johnny Longden, closed with a rush today to win the $25,000 added Bay Meadows Handicap by a nose. The time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:43 4-5.

Cyclotron was second after leading in the stretch and just being nipped at the wire in a photo finish.

Southarlington ran third after setting the pace until the far turn.

Berceem, the post time favorite, raced fourth and never seriously threatened.

Decorated was largely overlooked in the betting after his more illustrious stablemate, Imbros, had been declared out of it earlier in the day. The winner paid $17.70, $7.40 and $5.60. Cyclotron, ridden by Ray York and owned by Clifford Mooers, went off as second choice and paid $3.90 and $3.40. Southarlington, with John Bucalo up, returned $7.60.

The race grossed $28,300 and was worth $16,500 to the winner.

Northeast Vs. Centenary Tilt Here Postponed

The Northeast State-Centenary College baseball tilt, scheduled here for yesterday afternoon was cancelled because of wet grounds.

The game, according to Indian Coach "Woody" Boyles, will be played early in April, pending arrangements to the satisfaction of both schools.

The Tribe diamondeers travel to Monticello, Ark., tomorrow for a tilt with the Arkansas A. and M. Boll Weevils. Freshman J. B. Nolan is slated for mound duty.

On Friday the Indian nine opens their Gulf States Conference schedule against Southwestern at Lafayette. The McNeese Cowboys will also be opponents on the trip, on the following day in Lake Charles.

Hearing Set To Discuss Oil And Gas Allowables

BATON ROUGE, La.,—UP—The Department of Conservation has called a public hearing April 13 in New Orleans to discuss oil production allowable figures for May and gas allowables for May and June.

Commissioner John B. Hussey urged purchasers of crude oil and gas to submit "realistic" figures and explanations for any changes from current levels.

The April allowable was increased by about five per cent to 703,338 barrels, partially restoring several cuts made last year.

The New Orleans hearing will be at 9 a.m. in the Monteleone hotel, and will include discussion of problems in two fields—rules for Krumbhaar sand production in Houma field and for the upper Nodosaria No. 1 sand pool in Ellis field.

Future hearings, also in New Orleans, will be June 15, Aug. 12, Oct. 14 and Dec. 15.

Civil Verdict In Accidental Death Case Is Affirmed

BATON ROUGE—UP—The U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals here affirmed an appeal for a directed verdict against Mrs. John M. Johnson of Natchez, Miss., who had earlier won $40,000 in damages from Esso Standard Oil company for alleged accidental deaths in a traffic accident of her husband and son.

Attorneys for Esso appealed on the grounds of insufficient evidence and Judge J. Skelly Wright granted the motion for the directed verdict, which was affirmed.

A 12-man jury had awarded Mrs. Johnson $40,000 after her husband and six-year-old son were killed in an accident with a truck bearing Esso markings. She charged the driver with negligence. The accident occurred near Holly Ridge Dec. 29, 1951.

Ike Okays Strong Policy Statement By Sec. Dulles

WASHINGTON, March 27 (AP)—President Eisenhower reportedly endorsed today strong policy statements on the Indochina crisis and the Chinese Communist nonrecognition issue which Secretary of State Dulles has drafted for public declaration Monday night.

One effect of the policy statements, officials said, should be to remove the question of recognition of Red China from any diplomatic bargaining at the April 26 Geneva conference so far as the United States is concerned.

Dulles clearly has decided to go into the Korean and Indochinese talks at Geneva in the firmest possible diplomatic position by asserting now:

1. The American view that Red China's record of aggression in Korea and its support of aggression in Indochina afford no basis whatever for considering recognition and United Nations membership. Dulles does not accept this view; powerful U. S. Senate elements are even more strongly opposed.

2. That the saving of Indochina from total Communist conquest is of vital importance to the United States and the free world generally and that this country will react vigorously—at places and by means not disclosed—against any direct intervention by Red Chinese troops in Indochina. The purpose of this emphasis seems to be to say to the American people and to this country's allies that the struggle in Indochina is a concern not of France alone but of the United States and other free nations as well.

Dulles will speak in New York Monday night before the Overseas Press Club. His address will be broadcast by ABC radio and by Dumont television at 9 p.m. EST.

It was understood that Dulles also planned to include a provision which would project a kind of Monroe Doctrine for the Far East. This would follow the line of reasoning that the original Monroe Doctrine protected American republics newly emerged from colonialism in the last century against further conquest, and that the United States has a similar national interest today in protecting the Asian countries similarly emerging from colonialism.

By such declarations, Dulles lays the basis not only for America's role in the Geneva conference but also for the preliminary talks with friendly nations. These talks appear to have been somewhat delayed by difficulties among the Allies and dates to start them are still lacking.

In Washington, Dulles expects to have consultations with representatives of South Korea and all the other countries that fought against the Communists in the Korean War. However the South Korean government has been trying to use its agreement to go to Geneva as a bargaining point for more U. S. military assistance, and it has not yet accepted an invitation to send a representative here.

Consequently there has been no shaping of Allied policies on Korean questions which will arise at Geneva.

With respect to Indochina, the situation is even more confused. U. S. officials say the free nations must make an honest effort to get an Indochina settlement but they do not believe that the Soviet Union and Chinese Reds will accept anything less than a French surrender, however it may be camouflaged.

The French government has been negotiating with the Indochinese government of Viet Nam at Paris on Viet Nam's future status, and it has preferred not to enter pre-Geneva talks until these conversations are completed.

Striking Dockmen Plan 'March' On Washington, D. C.

NEW YORK, March 27 (AP)—Members of a striking waterfront union tonight planned a march on Washington after federal and state officials denounced their port-paralyzing walkout as a "criminal conspiracy."

Union sources said between 600 and 1,000 members of the old International Longshoremen's Assn. would make the trip by bus and automobile early Monday.

Plans called for demonstrations before the White House from 9 a.m. until noon to protest the government's role in the troubled waterfront situation.

The strike began March 5 in defiance of a fedeal injunction and is costing the Port of New York an estimated million dollars daily.

It was denounced as "primarily a criminal conspiracy" in a joint statement today by secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Mitchell met with Dewey and other officials as the representative of President Eisenhower. A statement later, promisel coordinated efforts to halt the strike.

No specific plan of action was disclosed, but Dewey indicated direct action may come next week.

Justice Douglas Ends Long Hike Footsore, Happy

WASHINGTON, March 27—UP—Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, nursing a poison ivy rash and clutching a brand of mrsythia, led a footsore band of hikers into Washington late Saturday to end an eight-day, 189-mile trek from Cumberland, Md.

The hikers, weary but exultant, clambered aboard a mule-drawn Interior Department barge for the last 4.6 miles of the trip.

Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay was on hand to greet the group and lead them aboard the barge.

"Justice Douglas, I presume," said the city-clad McKay.

Several thousand Washingtonians in automobiles, canoes and on foot turned out along the old Chesapeake & Ohio canal to cheer the expedition down the final lap into the old Georgetown section of the capital.

Douglas perched on the back of the old barge and waved his broad-brimmed Western hat at the welcome party while his colleagues huddled in blankets, sipped hot coffee and munched doughnuts.

Only nine hikers, including Douglas, out of the original 54 which set out from Cumberland last week, paced off the route.

The justice was well out in front when the straggling crew stumbled up to lock 6 on the canal after a 14-mile walk Saturday from Seneca, Md.

The other hikers fared less well than experienced outdoorman Douglas who has explored some of the world's most rugged terrain. Most of the party nursed strained ligaments and blisters.

The expedition was touched off by a Washington Post & Times-Herald editorial favoring construction of a modern highway along the bed of the canal.

Douglas, who wants the canal route preserved as a wilderness park for sports and nature enthusiasts, challenged two editors, Merlo Pusey and Robert Estabrook, to come see the wild beauties of the Potomac River Valley for themselves.

As the trip ended, Douglas seemed to have proved his point. The entire party organized itself into a club to draw up alternative suggestions to the proposed highway. The two editors, who each walked about 150 miles of the route, joined in.

No Crime Involved In Dispute Between Army, McCarthy, Says Mundt

WASHINGTON, March 27 (AP)—Sen. Mundt (R-S.D.) said today that as of now "no high crime against the government" is involved in the charges exchanged by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) and top Army officials.

Mundt temporarily has taken over from McCarthy as chairman of the Senate Investigations subcommittee while it probes the row.

The subcommittee had hoped to start televised public hearings next week, but Mundt told newsmen he did not see how this would be possible since efforts to obtain a special counsel to handle the investigation have been unsuccessful so far.

In a statement he said that it was difficult to understand "the almost feverish interest of reporters and publications" in the controversy, adding he had seen nothing like it since the Alger Hiss case.

"Nobody on either side alleges in their current charges of 'intimidation,' 'blackmail,' 'favoritism,' 'interference' and what - not," Mundt said, "that the individuals on either side of the controversy yielded to such allied pressures and propositions."

Mundt, in trying—as he phrased it—to put the controversy "in its proper perspective," said that "no high crime against the government" like treason, disloyalty or corruption is involved in the dispute.

"Involved here at worst," he said, "are misconduct and misrepresentation by one or more individuals connected with the Army or the Senate committee or both but, unless perjury is subsequently committed in sworn testimony before our committee, no crime punishable by law is now charged or indicated."

McCarthy himself recently referred to the dispute as "a silly squabble" between Roy M. Cohn, chief counsel of his investigations subcommittee, and John G. Adams, Army counselor.

He also has called the row "a tempest in a teapot" that was diverting the subcommittee from what he called its job of rooting out any Communists and their defenders in the government.

The controversy grew out of an Army report charging that McCarthy, and more particularly Cohn, had put the pressure on the Army to win favored treatment for G. David Schine, a former unpaid subcommittee consultant who was drafted as a private last November.

Both McCarthy and Cohn denied the charge, and McCarthy flung back the counter-charge that the Army report was an attempt to "blackmail" him into halting what he has described as a subcommittee probe of "coddling" of Communists in the Army.

Doctor Held For Murder Attempt Against Wife

KANSAS CITY, March 27 —UP— A prominent Kansas City obstetrician and surgeon described as "fantastic and absurd" Saturday charges that he planned to murder his wife with cyanide.

Dr. Hugh Hamilton, who was under arrest in his hospital room, was charged with attempted murder Friday night. He is a patient in traction for a fractured leg. Saturday was his 49th birthday.

Hamilton would not elaborate on his flat denial.

The surgeon's wife, Mrs. Martha Hamilton, became suspicious of pink pills she was taking for a digestive condition, said Major Eugene Pond of the detective bureau. Laboratory examination of the pills disclosed deadly cyanide was included in the total number of them.

Police found a bottle of pills, similar to those Hamilton had prescribed for his wife, in the doctor's clothes at St. Joseph hospital. Hamilton told police he had been tempted on three different occasions to take the cyanide capsules because of rumors which linked him with Kansas City's series of bombings last fall.

Police laboratory reports showed Mrs. Hamilton's digestive pills contained hydrochloric acid, which would have dissolved the cyanide in 12 hours and removed trace of the poison in the event of an autopsy.

Hamilton's suite in the downtown Bryant building was bombed last Sept. 16. It was the last in the series. Police said the bombings still were unsolved.

Longshoremen In New Orleans Stay With ILA

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—W. S. Augustine Sr., secretary of the New Orleans International Longshoremen's Association, said today the New Orleans locals would remain with the independent ILA.

He said the union would not hold another vote on the subject of shifting to the AFL longshoremen's union "unless there are unusual developments." The vote was taken Wednesday. There were no breakdown on the number of ballots for or against the ILA.

The ILA was ejected from the AFL on charges that some of its leaders were racketeers. The AFL is now organizing a new union for longshoremen in competition with the ILA.

Hearing Set To Discuss Oil And Gas Allowables

BATON ROUGE, La.,—UP—The Department of Conservation has called a public hearing April 13 in New Orleans to discuss oil production allowable figures for May and gas allowables for May and June.

Commissioner John B. Hussey urged purchasers of crude oil and gas to submit "realistic" figures and explanations for any changes from current levels.

The April allowable was increased by about five per cent to 703,338 barrels, partially restoring several cuts made last year.

The New Orleans hearing will be at 9 a.m. in the Monteleone hotel, and will include discussion of problems in two fields—rules for Krumbhaar sand production in Houma field and for the upper Nodosaria No. 1 sand pool in Ellis field.

Future hearings, also in New Orleans, will be June 15, Aug. 12, Oct. 14 and Dec. 15.

She came from Ouachita Parish High School where she rated "superior" in vocal competition at the District Music Festivals. Other recognition was won by her work in the girls' ensemble, the mixed ensemble, choir and the All-State Chorus last year.

Included in her music study are seven years of voice, two of which were in Mississippi.

Miss Batton holds membership in the college choir, campus chapter of Music Educators National Conference, the Northeast Music Guild and Gamma Zeta Social sorority.

Miss Spurlock also graduated from O. P. H. S., where she won numerous ratings of "superior" at state music festivals. She also held membership in the high school choir, ensemble and All - State Chorus.

Last spring's college production of Menotti's opera, "Amelia Goes to the Ball," found Miss Spurlock singing the part of Amelia.

Civil Verdict In Accidental Death Case Is Affirmed

BATON ROUGE—UP—The U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals here affirmed an appeal for a directed verdict against Mrs. John M. Johnson of Natchez, Miss., who had earlier won $40,000 in damages from Esso Standard Oil company for alleged accidental deaths in a traffic accident of her husband and son.

Attorneys for Esso appealed on the grounds of insufficient evidence and Judge J. Skelly Wright granted the motion for the directed verdict, which was affirmed.

A 12-man jury had awarded Mrs. Johnson $40,000 after her husband and six-year-old son were killed in an accident with a truck bearing Esso markings. She charged the driver with negligence. The accident occurred near Holly Ridge Dec. 29, 1951.

Ike Okays Strong Policy Statement By Sec. Dulles

WASHINGTON, March 27 (AP)—President Eisenhower reportedly endorsed today strong policy statements on the Indochina crisis and the Chinese Communist nonrecognition issue which Secretary of State Dulles has drafted for public declaration Monday night.

One effect of the policy statements, officials said, should be to remove the question of recognition of Red China from any diplomatic bargaining at the April 26 Geneva conference so far as the United States is concerned.

Dulles clearly has decided to go into the Korean and Indochinese talks at Geneva in the firmest possible diplomatic position by asserting now:

1. The American view that Red China's record of aggression in Korea and its support of aggression in Indochina afford no basis whatever for considering recognition and United Nations membership. Dulles does not accept this view; powerful U. S. Senate elements are even more strongly opposed.

2. That the saving of Indochina from total Communist conquest is of vital importance to the United States and the free world generally and that this country will react vigorously—at places and by means not disclosed—against any direct intervention by Red Chinese troops in Indochina. The purpose of this emphasis seems to be to say to the American people and to this country's allies that the struggle in Indochina is a concern not of France alone but of the United States and other free nations as well.

Dulles will speak in New York Monday night before the Overseas Press Club. His address will be broadcast by ABC radio and by Dumont television at 9 p.m. EST.

It was understood that Dulles also planned to include a provision which would project a kind of Monroe Doctrine for the Far East. This would follow the line of reasoning that the original Monroe Doctrine protected American republics newly emerged from colonialism in the last century against further conquest, and that the United States has a similar national interest today in protecting the Asian countries similarly emerging from colonialism.

By such declarations, Dulles lays the basis not only for America's role in the Geneva conference but also for the preliminary talks with friendly nations. These talks appear to have been somewhat delayed by difficulties among the Allies and dates to start them are still lacking.

In Washington, Dulles expects to have consultations with representatives of South Korea and all the other countries that fought against the Communists in the Korean War. However the South Korean government has been trying to use its agreement to go to Geneva as a bargaining point for more U. S. military assistance, and it has not yet accepted an invitation to send a representative here.

Consequently there has been no shaping of Allied policies on Korean questions which will arise at Geneva.

With respect to Indochina, the situation is even more confused. U. S. officials say the free nations must make an honest effort to get an Indochina settlement but they do not believe that the Soviet Union and Chinese Reds will accept anything less than a French surrender, however it may be camouflaged.

The French government has been negotiating with the Indochinese government of Viet Nam at Paris on Viet Nam's future status, and it has preferred not to enter pre-Geneva talks until these conversations are completed.

Striking Dockmen Plan 'March' On Washington, D. C.

NEW YORK, March 27 (AP)—Members of a striking waterfront union tonight planned a march on Washington after federal and state officials denounced their port-paralyzing walkout as a "criminal conspiracy."

Union sources said between 600 and 1,000 members of the old International Longshoremen's Assn. would make the trip by bus and automobile early Monday.

Plans called for demonstrations before the White House from 9 a.m. until noon to protest the government's role in the troubled waterfront situation.

The strike began March 5 in defiance of a fedeal injunction and is costing the Port of New York an estimated million dollars daily.

It was denounced as "primarily a criminal conspiracy" in a joint statement today by secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Mitchell met with Dewey and other officials as the representative of President Eisenhower. A statement later, promisel coordinated efforts to halt the strike.

No specific plan of action was disclosed, but Dewey indicated direct action may come next week.

Justice Douglas Ends Long Hike Footsore, Happy

WASHINGTON, March 27—UP—Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, nursing a poison ivy rash and clutching a brand of mrsythia, led a footsore band of hikers into Washington late Saturday to end an eight-day, 189-mile trek from Cumberland, Md.

The hikers, weary but exultant, clambered aboard a mule-drawn Interior Department barge for the last 4.6 miles of the trip.

Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay was on hand to greet the group and lead them aboard the barge.

"Justice Douglas, I presume," said the city-clad McKay.

Several thousand Washingtonians in automobiles, canoes and on foot turned out along the old Chesapeake & Ohio canal to cheer the expedition down the final lap into the old Georgetown section of the capital.

Douglas perched on the back of the old barge and waved his broad-brimmed Western hat at the welcome party while his colleagues huddled in blankets, sipped hot coffee and munched doughnuts.

Only nine hikers, including Douglas, out of the original 54 which set out from Cumberland last week, paced off the route.

The justice was well out in front when the straggling crew stumbled up to lock 6 on the canal after a 14-mile walk Saturday from Seneca, Md.

The other hikers fared less well than experienced outdoorman Douglas who has explored some of the world's most rugged terrain. Most of the party nursed strained ligaments and blisters.

The expedition was touched off by a Washington Post & Times-Herald editorial favoring construction of a modern highway along the bed of the canal.

Douglas, who wants the canal route preserved as a wilderness park for sports and nature enthusiasts, challenged two editors, Merlo Pusey and Robert Estabrook, to come see the wild beauties of the Potomac River Valley for themselves.

As the trip ended, Douglas seemed to have proved his point. The entire party organized itself into a club to draw up alternative suggestions to the proposed highway. The two editors, who each walked about 150 miles of the route, joined in.

No Crime Involved In Dispute Between Army, McCarthy, Says Mundt

WASHINGTON, March 27 (AP)—Sen. Mundt (R-S.D.) said today that as of now "no high crime against the government" is involved in the charges exchanged by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) and top Army officials.

Mundt temporarily has taken over from McCarthy as chairman of the Senate Investigations subcommittee while it probes the row.

The subcommittee had hoped to start televised public hearings next week, but Mundt told newsmen he did not see how this would be possible since efforts to obtain a special counsel to handle the investigation have been unsuccessful so far.

In a statement he said that it was difficult to understand "the almost feverish interest of reporters and publications" in the controversy, adding he had seen nothing like it since the Alger Hiss case.

"Nobody on either side alleges in their current charges of 'intimidation,' 'blackmail,' 'favoritism,' 'interference' and what - not," Mundt said, "that the individuals on either side of the controversy yielded to such allied pressures and propositions."

Mundt, in trying—as he phrased it—to put the controversy "in its proper perspective," said that "no high crime against the government" like treason, disloyalty or corruption is involved in the dispute.

"Involved here at worst," he said, "are misconduct and misrepresentation by one or more individuals connected with the Army or the Senate committee or both but, unless perjury is subsequently committed in sworn testimony before our committee, no crime punishable by law is now charged or indicated."

McCarthy himself recently referred to the dispute as "a silly squabble" between Roy M. Cohn, chief counsel of his investigations subcommittee, and John G. Adams, Army counselor.

He also has called the row "a tempest in a teapot" that was diverting the subcommittee "from what he called its job of rooting out any Communists and their defenders in the government.

The controversy grew out of an Army report charging that McCarthy, and more particularly Cohn, had put the pressure on the Army to win favored treatment for G. David Schine, a former unpaid subcommittee consultant who was drafted as a private last November.

Both McCarthy and Cohn denied the charge, and McCarthy flung back the counter-charge that the Army report was an attempt to "blackmail" him into halting what he has described as a subcommittee probe of "coddling" of Communists in the Army.

Doctor Held For Murder Attempt Against Wife

KANSAS CITY, March 27 —UP— A prominent Kansas City obstetrician and surgeon described as "fantastic and absurd" Saturday charges that he planned to murder his wife with cyanide.

Dr. Hugh Hamilton, who was under arrest in his hospital room, was charged with attempted murder Friday night. He is a patient in traction for a fractured leg. Saturday was his 49th birthday.

Hamilton would not elaborate on his flat denial.

The surgeon's wife, Mrs. Martha Hamilton, became suspicious of pink pills she was taking for a digestive condition, said Major Eugene Pond of the detective bureau. Laboratory examination of the pills disclosed deadly cyanide was included in the total number of them.

Police found a bottle of pills, similar to those Hamilton had prescribed for his wife, in the doctor's clothes at St. Joseph hospital. Hamilton told police he had been tempted on three different occasions to take the cyanide capsules because of rumors which linked him with Kansas City's series of bombings last fall.

Police laboratory reports showed Mrs. Hamilton's digestive pills contained hydrochloric acid, which would have dissolved the cyanide in 12 hours and removed trace of the poison in the event of an autopsy.

Hamilton's suite in the downtown Bryant building was bombed last Sept. 16. It was the last in the series. Police said the bombings still were unsolved.

Longshoremen In New Orleans Stay With ILA

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—W. S. Augustine Sr., secretary of the New Orleans International Longshoremen's Association, said today the New Orleans locals would remain with the independent ILA.

He said the union would not hold another vote on the subject of shifting to the AFL longshoremen's union "unless there are unusual developments." The vote was taken Wednesday. There were no breakdown on the number of ballots for or against the ILA.

The ILA was ejected from the AFL on charges that some of its leaders were racketeers. The AFL is now organizing a new union for longshoremen in competition with the ILA.

Secret Love?

If your wife is like most women, she has a "secret love" for a home of her own . . . a home that'll furnish a lot of quiet contentment for that regal family of yours. And speaking of homes for regal families . . . here's a charmer that's loaded with appealing features: to begin with it's on a 75x150' lot just 2 blocks from the Plum St. grammar school; the 1378 sq. feet of living area of this one are crammed with livable features: (2) spacious bedrooms (both with sliding door closets) . . . an unusual pine-paneled den . . . a well-proportioned 19'x14' living room with carpeting . . . a spacious pine - paneled kitchen & dining area . . . adequately heated by (3) panel - ray heaters . . . the bath has a large built-in dressing table & shower . . . this home also has aluminum frame windows. This "secret love" is located at 805 S. 6th in Monroe & it's already financed.

You Can't Beat It . . .

. . . For the small down payment . . . the reasonable monthly payments . . . the spacious 100' lot . . . the location . . . and the spaciousness of the home itself! All of the preceding is true for 308 Riverbend is an unusual buy in a 5-room home with many an exciting feature among it's 1019 sq. feet of living area. Such as: (2) comfortable bedrooms both with nice size closets; large (12'x20') living room and separate dining room; 42" automatic shutter, attic fan & floor furnace; the kitchen has an abundance of cabinet space . . . Vent-a-Hood and pantry; there's a screened utility porch on the back with washer plumbing and lots of storage room. Only $800 down turns the key with monthly payments as low as $56 including taxes and insurance. Wanta' look?

Lookin' For Somethin'?

If your family comes under the heading of "large" and you've been lookin' for a large home to fit it . . . well, we've found it in this 11 room, 5 bedroom, 3 bath home in Monroe's choicest northside location . . . 1411 PARK AVE. It's spacious, true . . . but there's also more: the downstairs has just been completely redecorated; there's new wall-to-wall carpeting in all but the kitchen downstairs; the large living room has a real fireplace; there's an enclosed sun-porch adjoining the living room; the well - arranged kitchen has nice cabinet space, a pantry, separate breakfast room and a G.E. dishwasher; the downstairs has (3) floor furnaces. The home is on a beautiful 75'x240' corner lot. This is an unusual home and it'll be a pleasure to show you today!

A "Tear-Jerker!"

"I'm that if nothing else, for I've been vacant for almost two months now, with not a kid in sight to enjoy my three bedrooms or my close location to school (around the corner to Mitchell Lane grammar!). I'm big with 1180 sq. feet of living area alone not to mention my 12'x20' breezeway on the back or my carport with an 8'x14' storeroom with washer plumbing & wired for a dryer. I've also a bath and a half . . . 42" attic fan and floor furnace . . . natural woodwork . . . more closets than you'll ever use . . . (4) outside awnings . . . and loads of other features. I'm an excellent value for the FHA appraised me for $11,500 and I'm only selling for $10,500 with only $1300 down . . . so how about coming to see me at 322 STEWART ST. in W. Monroe? Won't-cha?

Aching For An Acre?

Here's one with a wonderful home on it "to boot" located in McGuire Addition on Jewell Lake at 1005 MEADOWBROOK DRIVE. This is the home that'll steal the "little woman's" eye with it's many outstanding features. Features, such as: 1240 sq. feet of living area with two bedrooms (both have walk-in sliding door closets with built-in bureau drawers) and a 16'x14' paneled den which has sliding "Window-Walls" converting it into a breezeway in the summer and the den also a closet and built-in gun cabinet. The living room with a picture window overlooking the lake has hardwood block floors as well as the dining area; the nifty kitchen has Vent-a-hood, gas & electric outlets for stove, sliding glass door cabinets and serving bar; there's a telephone in every room including the bath; the home is adequately heated by central heating and the bath has a shower & large linen closet. It's vacant and selling for the FHA appraised value of $13,000 with monthly payments as low as $66. Call for appointment today.

Price Conscious?

Well . . . if you're that way 1309 COLLEGE AVE. will please you to no end! It's appraised by the FHA for $10,000 but selling for only $9260 with only $926 down and look what it buys! It's absolutely the best cared for home in Monroe with glistening pecan floors; automatic shutter attic fan; side screened porch; fireplace with built-in bookcases on both sides in living room; there's a large garage with metal over-head door and 6'x20' storeroom. It's a good buy . . . so better call for appointment today!

100% G. I.

Pay only the closing costs ($325) move in and enjoy all six rooms of this sensible buy located at 2710 N. 6th in West Monroe on an 80'x150' corner lot at that! This one has many an unusual feature among it's 1084 sq. feet of living area, such as: separate living and dining room . . . kitchen has vent-a-hood, washer plumbing, and roomy breakfast area . . . there's also an attic fan and floor furnace . . . the upper - level bedrooms open into an "expandable" attic that with just a little amount of work would easily make another bedroom or a spacious den. The enclosed garage with over-head door opens into the house. It's selling for the VA appraised value of $10,500 with no down payment and monthly payments as low as $65 including taxes & insurance. Call today for a "peep."

"We've Got The Goods!"

Indeed we have if you're in the market for a 3-bedroom home located close to a grammar school & a high school, for we've two brand new homes located right across the street from Millsaps grammar & only one block to the new West Monroe High School. Not only are they ideally located, but they also contain many a comfortable feature among their 1118 sq. feet of living area! 3 comfortable bedrooms . . . separate living and dining room . . . 3 panel - ray heaters . . . 42" attic fan . . . carport with storage . . . a roomy kitchen with nice cabinet space and breakfast area or space for the deep freeze. They're selling for less than the FHA appraised value and here's the best deal in town: pay only $700 down, move in and accumulate the rest of your down payment while you live there. Fair enough? Call today to look at 506 & 510 CRYER. (They're vacant).

The Breeze And I

If you've been looking for a moderate priced home with a spacious lot and shade trees galore . . . 62 SPLANE DRIVE takes the cake! Here's a 5-room home on an 81'x208' corner lot located only a block from the Highland Grammar school in Sunshine Heights with a host of happy features; the largest bedroom (16'x14') has a walk-in closet . . . there's a sliding door separating living room from the kitchen . . . it also has a separate dining room . . . disappearing stair to attic . . . attic fan . . . carport with store room and "loads" of other desirable features. Only $1190 down makes the move.

"Glory Be . . . What A Place!

This is the type home that all men fondly dream of owning . . . a solid brick (not masonry) home, built to be here when your present frame home is kindling wood! Among the 40,000 bricks and 1276 sq. feet of this one are such delightful features as: lifetime white crushed - marble roof; lifetime aluminum frame windows; central forced-air heating (2) spacious bedrooms and a most unusual brick wall den; impressive roman brick fireplace and chimney; there's a stunning kitchen and pine-paneled dining area plus an attached garage and it's on a corner lot with a 130' frontage. $1675 down is all it takes to make the move for a qualified G.I. Secret Love?

If your wife is like most women, she has a "secret love" for a home of her own . . . a home that'll furnish a lot of quiet contentment for that regal family of yours. And speaking of homes for regal families . . . here's a charmer that's loaded with appealing features: to begin with it's on a 75x150' lot just 2 blocks from the Plum St. grammar school; the 1378 sq. feet of living area of this one are crammed with livable features: (2) spacious bedrooms (both with sliding door closets) . . . an unusual pine-paneled den . . . a well-proportioned 19'x14' living room with carpeting . . . a spacious pine - paneled kitchen & dining area . . . adequately heated by (3) panel - ray heaters . . . the bath has a large built-in dressing table & shower . . . this home also has aluminum frame windows. This "secret love" is located at 805 S. 6th in Monroe & it's already financed.

You Can't Beat It . . .

. . . For the small down payment . . . the reasonable monthly payments . . . the spacious 100' lot . . . the location . . . and the spaciousness of the home itself! All of this preceding is true for 308 Riverbend is an unusual buy in a 5-room home with many an exciting feature among it's 1019 sq. feet of living area. Such as: (2) comfortable bedrooms both with nice size closets; large (12'x20') living room and separate dining room; 42" automatic shutter attic fan & floor furnace; the kitchen has an abundance of cabinet space . . . Vent-a-Hood and pantry; there's a screened utility porch on the back with washer plumbing and lots of storage room. Only $800 down turns the key with monthly payments as low as $56 including taxes and insurance. Wanta' look?

Lookin' For Somethin'?

If your family comes under the heading of "large" and you've been lookin' for a large home to fit it . . . well, we've found it in this 11 room, 5 bedroom, 3 bath home in Monroe's choicest northside location . . . 1411 PARK AVE. It's spacious, true . . . but there's also more: the downstairs has just been completely redecorated; there's new wall-to-wall carpeting in all but the kitchen downstairs; the large living room has a real fireplace; there's an enclosed sun-porch adjoining the living room; the well - arranged kitchen has nice cabinet space, a pantry, separate breakfast room and a G.E. dishwasher; the downstairs has (3) floor furnaces. The home is on a beautiful 75'x240' corner lot. This is an unusual home and it'll be a pleasure to show you today!

A "Tear-Jerker!"

"I'm that if nothing else, for I've been vacant for almost two months now, with not a kid in sight to enjoy my three bedrooms or my close location to school (around the corner to Mitchell Lane grammar!). I'm big with 1180 sq. feet of living area alone not to mention my 12'x20' breezeway on the back or my carport with an 8'x14' storeroom with washer plumbing & wired for a dryer. I've also a bath and a half . . . 42" attic fan and floor furnace . . . natural woodwork . . . more closets than you'll ever use . . . (4) outside awnings . . . and loads of other features. I'm an excellent value for the FHA appraised me for $11,500 and I'm only selling for $10,500 with only $1300 down . . . so how about coming to see me at 322 STEWART ST. in W. Monroe? Won't-cha?

Here's one with a wonderful home on it "to boot" located in McGuire Addition on Jewell Lake at 1005 MEADOWBROOK DRIVE. The living room with a picture window overlooking the lake has hardwood block floors as well as the dining area; the nifty kitchen has Vent-a-hood, gas & electric outlets for stove, sliding glass door cabinets and serving bar; there's a telephone in every room including the bath; the home is adequately heated by central heating and the bath has a shower & large linen closet. It's vacant and selling for the FHA appraised value of $13,000 with monthly payments as low as $66. Call for appointment today.

Price Conscious?

100% G. I.

Pay only the closing costs ($325) move in and enjoy all six rooms of this sensible buy located at 2710 N. 8th in West Monroe on an 80'x150' corner lot at that! This one has many an unusual feature among it's 1084 sq. feet of living area, such as: separate living and dining room . . . kitchen has vent-a-hood, washer plumbing, and roomy breakfast area . . . there's also an attic fan and floor furnace . . . the upper - level bedrooms open into an "expandable" attic that with just a little amount of work would easily make another bedroom or a spacious den. The enclosed garage with over-head door opens into the house. It's selling for the VA appraised value of $10,500 with no down payment and monthly payments as low as $65 including taxes & insurance. Call today for a "peep."

"We've Got The Goods!"

Indeed we have if you're in the market for a 3-bedroom home located close to a grammar school & a high school, for we've two brand new homes located right across the street from Millsaps grammar & only one block to the new West Monroe High School. Not only are they ideally located, but they also contain many a comfortable feature among their 1118 sq. feet of living area! 3 comfortable bedrooms . . . separate living and dining room . . . 3 panel - ray heaters . . . 42" attic fan . . . carport with storage . . . a roomy kitchen with nice cabinet space and breakfast area or space for the deep freeze. They're selling for less than the FHA appraised value and here's the best deal in town: pay only $700 down, move in and accumulate the rest of your down payment while you live there. Fair enough? Call today to look at 506 & 510 CRYER. (They're vacant).

The Breeze And I

Single Producer Is Brought In During Past Week

One producer, located in the Roseland field of Concordia parish, was brought in during the past week, according to a weekly field report of oil and gas wells drilled and completed in the Monroe district for the period ending March 25. The report, issued by the local office of the department of conservation, minerals divisions, also listed two wells plugged and abandoned and three new locations.

News From The Public Library

Although patrons of the Ouachita Parish Public Library are always interested in the new and interesting books of fiction added to the library collection, the subject books which are added are really the ones which build up the basic collection of the library. Books on a variety of subjects are being added every day and it is those that we will discuss in this column today.

Biographies are almost as popular as books of fiction and there have been several new ones added recently. "George Eliot" by Robert Speaight fills a long felt need and there had not been anything written about this remarkable author for a number of years. There is no writer on historical subjects who is more popular than Harold Lamb. His latest biography is a life of "Charlemagne" the first real French king. It is written in a highly entertaining manner which makes pleasant reading. Another interesting biography is "A Sergeant Named Batista" written by Edmund A. Chester. This is the story of the man who had so much to do with Philippine Independence. "Scenes and Portraits" by Van Wyck Brooks is an interesting biography of a famous literary figure.

Several interesting books have been added to our art collection in the past few weeks. "Complete Stories of the Great Ballets" by George Balanchine is a complete and fascinating book on the subject. "Advice To A Young Artist" by Etienne Ret fills a long felt need. "Chinese Color Prints" by Jan Tschicold is a perfectly beautiful book. "Children's Portraits" by Bettina Hurlingmann is a lovely book of famous children's portraits, while "Homes of the Brave" by T. H. Robsjohn-Gibbings is a satire on early American architecture.

Cookbooks are always popular and there are a number of new ones in the library collection. "The American Woman's Cook Book" and "The American Regional Cookbook" were both collected by Ruth Berolzheimer. They contain a wealth of good recipes and are beautifully illustrated. "Making Money in Your Kitchen" by Helen Stone is an excellent book for the housewife who wants to add to her income by working at home. "The Meat Cookbook" by John Roberson contains every sort of recipe for cooking meat. "The Art of Hungarian Cooking" by Paula Pogany Bennett is a masterly collection of recipes of this fascinating story of cookery.

Numerous books have been added dealing with the American political scene, both past and present. "The American President" by Sidney Hyman is a masterly study of the presidency and the man who have held this office. "The American Revolution" by John Richard Alden sheds new light on many phases of the Revolution. "But We Were Born Free" by Elmer Davis is this commentators view of contemporary society. Whether you agree with him or not, the book is still of importance.

Two very humorous books added recently are "Stillmeadow and Sugar Bridge" by Gladys Taber, who has written other books dealing with her experience in country living. "Forty Plus and Fancy Free" is another of Emily Kimbrough's hilarious stories. This one is an account of her adventures in Europe, accompanied by four of her good friends, all of whom were grandmothers. It makes refreshing and delightful reading.

Of course the library has had numerous requests for the book "Think Spiritually" written by Mr. Mike John of our city. We are glad to report that we have four copies and that they are all in circulation. "The Easter Book" by Frances X. Weiser will be very valuable to people planning programs for Easter. "Flying Saucers Have Landed" by Desmond Leslie will be very popular with those who are interested in the science of the future. Another book of great spiritual value is "The Magic of Believing" by Claude Myron Bristol. This is a reprint of a book for which the library has had numerous requests during the years. We are glad that now we have several copies in our own collection.

There are books of all types to appeal to all sorts of library users. Think of your library as a storehouse of information ready and waiting for your needs as they arise.

It's true that sanitary considerations rather than laziness inspire some women not to dry their dishes. Dish towels may carry germs to dishes made sterile by hot-water rinsing. To prevent tarnishing, however, silverware should be dried.

Take time to ask many questions before buying a new vacuum cleaner. For example, though the latest models offer many other conveniences, the upright type is a more efficient rug cleaner.

Here's one way to give a high-fashion touch to your basic sheath without hurting the budget: Buy some crisp material in a color to match your accessories, enough to envelop your waist a few times and lap over a bit. Wear it by winding it upward around your midriff and adorn it with a few large pearls, jeweled buttons or pins.

Carefully - applied lipstick will never disguise neglected teeth. In fact, it's likely to call attention to them. So be faithful to your brushing and visits to the dentist.

When buying gloves, be sure to get the right size. Wearing gloves that are too small for you will impede circulation, causing your hands to swell.

Girl Scout News

It's been several weeks since we mentioned Pine Wood. What with the Girl Scout birthday and cookies and new troops, camp news took a back seat for awhile. Not that camping did. It goes on just the same for the lucky girls whose leaders take training and help them to have fun in the out of doors.

For the second year, Troop 27 has chosen the last week end in February for its troop camping. Yvonne Huckabee remembers, especially, because she was awakened to the tune of "Happy Birthday". The girls of this troop are, for the most part, old-timers at this camping business. Making fires and cooking out of doors are easy now for such practiced campers. What they like best, it seems, and what they did to their hearts' content on this last trip was to hike farther and farther afield, thoroughly exploring the surrounding countryside.

One of the nice surprises of their trip was that Elizabeth Leigh, who has camped with them many times, was home from college that week end and was able to visit with them.

Mrs. N. L. Huckabee and Mrs. A. L. Swanson accompanied the following girls for their two-day camp: Yvonne Huckabee, Judy Calk, Billie Sue Swanson, Marilyn McCormick, Norma Jean Gregory, Carolyn Freund, Sue Grower, Judith Harrison, Joanne Dupuy, Billie Ann Ruple, and Mardell Reinhardt.

Some of the fly-up troops are going to have good camping as soon as they qualify for troop camping. Six leaders of fourth grade, or fly-up troops recently spend a night at camp as part of their training in the out of doors. Mrs. Charles Cason, Mrs. J. D. Henderson, Mrs. Gordon Jordon, Mrs. L. M. Graff, Mrs. E. J. Norman, and Mrs. P. A. Purvis, leaders of Troops 9, 15, 26, carried on the activities that are usually done by troops at camp. A flag ceremony, campfire games, and songs, blushing bunny for supper and breadtwists for breakfast, fire building, exploring the grounds and hiking to the river kept the group busy. We suspect they had about as much fun as the girls do.

Last week end found Troop 31 at camp with their leaders, Mrs. Harry Martin and Mrs. Ragland at camp. These girls are out door Scouts, enjoying camp to the fullest. They went to camp in the fall, again in the spring, and are planning to go again after school is out. The older girls in the troop are beginning to ask for still wider camping experiences, their leaders say. The following girls were at camp: Joycelyn Brady, Karen Brady, Harriet Hays, Shirley Bee Jolissaint, Horton Laws, Nell Laws, Mary Martin, Nancy Martin, Ann McCarty, Stephanie Menuet, Sue Norris, Anne Ragland, Charlene Shanas, and Gay Jean St. Cyr.

The cookie sale ended Friday. A check with Mrs. Yeldell, chairman, reveals that a large number of girls are qualifying for the '54 club. Club buttons will be given out at the camp rally to be held at Georgia Tucker School next Friday night. Mrs. Yeldell urges all girls and their parents who are interested in any kind of Girl Scout camping to be present at this rally.

A film on Girl Scout camping will be shown, as well as a film on camping at Wawbansee, the camp which our council will operate for two weeks in August. Information on day camp, established camp, and the proposed trip to Wawbansee on April 24 will be given at the rally. Wawbansee folders, according to Mrs. Robert Easterling, camp chairman will be ready for distribution at that time. Let's all plan to be there—Georgia Tucker School, 7:30 Friday night.

Swift-Spinks Vows Pledged

Miss Lucille Spinks became the bride of William Swift of Little Rock, Ark., in an impressive ceremony performed by the Rev. M. F. Copeland, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Vienna, in the home of Miss Bertha Spinks of Ruston.

"Because" was sung by Miss Mary Hunt, a niece of the bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, R. H. Spinks of Vidalia.

D. Y. Hart served the groom as best man.

A reception followed the ceremony. Presiding at the cake service was Miss Arline Spinks, sister of the bride and Miss Mary Hunt served from the punch bowl.

The couple departed on a wedding trip to Miami, Fla. Upon their return, they will make their home in Vienna.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Mrs. M. D. Guynes; Mrs. E. H. Davidson, Mr. Raymond Guynes; all of Baton Rouge; Mr. R. H. Spinks of Vidalia; Capt. Raleigh E. Guynes and Capt. Charles Cordell of Cherry Point, N. C.; Mrs. G. D. Guynes and son of Winnfield: Mrs. J. C. Hedgepeth; Mr. Wayne Otwell and son of Natchitoches; Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Vernon of Liberty Hill; Mr. Leon Snelley of Jonesboro; Mrs. Hayes and daughter, Jean of El Dorado, Ark.; Mrs. S. G. David of Vienna; Miss Arline Spinks of Franklinton.

You no doubt have noticed how many women sit in ungraceful positions. But are you certain you never do so yourself? Test your sitting posture by sitting before a floor - length mirror. Once you are aware of your own faults, you'll be able to do something about them.

Unless your hair is very thin, you should have it thinned out every six or eight weeks. Hair that is too heavy does not hold curls well and soon assumes an unflattering, bushy line.

REV. F. O. STOCKWELL

MRS. F. O. STOCKWELL

Missionary Prisoner And Wife Back From War Area

The Rev. F. Olin Stockwell, missionary of the Methodist Church who was held a prisoner of the Chinese communists for 23 months, part of the time in solitary confinement, on trumped-up charges of espionage, will be the guest-speaker at Bastrop Kiwanis luncheon at 12:00 noon Tuesday, March 30, and in the Monroe District Missionary Rally, First Methodist Church, West Monroe, 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, March 30.

Mr. Stockwell was released by train into Hongkong on November 17, 1952, and two weeks later rejoined his family in Chicago.

Mr. Stockwell will speak on his experiences both as a missionary and as a prisoner, and on what life was like among the communists after the taking over by them of China's government.

Mr. Stockwell was a missionary in Chengtu, West China, when the communists overran that city. He could have gone out before the entering army, but elected to remain and attempt to carry on his work. Some months later, however, he was arrested and after a communist trial, when he had no chance to defend himself, was sentenced to prison. Among other punishments, he was given a course in "mind purging" and in communist indoctrination.

A native of Perry, Okla., Mr. Stockwell is a member of a Methodist family that has given missionaries to China, India, Burma, and Argentina and a number of ministers to the United States. He was educated at Oklahoma City College, Ohio Wesleyan University and Garrett Biblical Institute. He was ordained to the ministry in Oklahoma.

Entering the missionary service of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church in 1925, Mr. Stockwell was assigned to China, and engaged in evangelistic work in the Foochow conference of Fukien Province. Later he was transferred to West China and carried on evangelistic work - organizing churches and preaching points and conducting training conferences for Chinese ministers, besides preaching to large groups in both city and country regions - in Chengtu district, Szechuan Province. In this field of work he was considered one of the outstanding missionaries to China, and he had successfully built up the Christian community and constituency of his district when the communist civil disturbance began.

The first missionary service of Mr. and Mrs. Stockwell was in Foochow, where they travelled through the churches of the North and South Mintsing district conducting services, encouraging pastors and people, and gathered families into new congregations. In 1934 they were transferred to Chengtu in Sechuan Province, where they have had oversight of evangelistic work in both city and rural fields. Mrs. Stockwell's activities have been largely among the Christian and non-Christian women of the districts. She has also taught piano in the Fine Arts Department of the West China Union University, Chengtu.

After a furlough in the United States, Mr. and Mrs. Stockwell plan to return to missionary service in West China.

Youth Will Meet To Plan For Big Easter Ceremonial

Youth from all denominations of Twin City churches are invited and urged to attend a meeting of the Christian Youth Association at 2:30 p.m. today at Memorial Methodist Church, 401 Sherrouse Avenue. The Youth Division of Memorial Methodist will act as host and will provide the fellowship period following the regular meeting.

Principal matters on the program will include the formulation of plan for observing Easter in the traditional Easter Sunrise Service at Memorial Park Cemetery, highway 80, east. This marks the seventh season that the youth of the CYA have presented the service of worship for people of this area, and in the past thousands have thronged the site of the service.

Utilizing local school and institutional choirs, church youth choirs solos, instrumental music, devotional readings, prayers, and pageantry — the young people have always helped the many worshipers to feel in a very dramatic way the experience of Easter for themselves.

All Twin City youth and their pastors and adult advisors are invited to the meeting this afternoon.

Mike John, Jr. To Give Address On His New Book

Mike John, Jr., local businessman and author of the recently published book on Christian living, "Think Spiritually," will be the speaker at Memorial Methodist Church on Sunday evening at 7:30 when Memorial Methodist Men conduct "Laymen's Night." The meeting will be under the direction of the lay leader, Edwin O. Hinton.

Mr. John's book has been enthusiastically received throughout the country as a challenging reminder of the true way of thinking and living. As speaker, Mr. John will deliver a message on the title of the , "Think Spiritually."

The choir will be comosed of men, who will help in leading the congregational singing. Several songs, composed by a Monroe layman, A. L. Parker, will be sung. The youth choir of the church will sing a special number.

Ushers for the evening will be the "men of tomorrow" — several boys from the membership class.

Following the service there will be a time of fellowship during which the people may get acquainted with Mr. John and ask questions about his recent work as author.

Today's YOUR GUIDING STAR Messages:

He will confirm a large class of candidates at the 9 a.m. service. This class is to be presented by the rector of Grace Church, Rev. John M. Allin.

The Bishop will be the celebrant and preacher at the 9:45 service, at which time the newly confirmed will make first communion.

Bishop Jones has recently observed the fifth anniversary of his consecration. Prior to his consecration as bishop he served as rector of St. Andrews Episcopal church in New Orleans.

The present class now being confirmed is the second one for the present year. A class was confirmed at this church last January by the Suffragan Bishop of the Diocese, Iveson B. Noland.

A large attendance is expected at the services today.

REV. FILER J. SEAL

Rev. F. J. Seal Is Now Olla Pastor; Revival Planned

Rev. Filer J. Seal, now assuming the pastorate of the Olla Baptist Church, took up his duties there March 2, coming from Victoria Church, Baton Rouge. He and Mrs. Seal are now busily engaged in getting acquainted with their new field.

Already he has brought highly inspirational messages to good-sized Sunday audiences.

Revival services will be held at this church April 11 through April 18 with the pastor bringing the messages. Music will be in charge of Roy C. Welch. Immediately prior to the revival there will be held prayer meetings in many homes.

Rev. J. B. Ryals Now Assuming Pastorate

Rev. J. B. Ryals, formerly of Fort Worth, Tex., has returned after attending the seminary there and is now assuming the pastorate of the Claiborne Baptist Church.

Mrs. Ryals, his wife, was formerly Martha Carroll of Monroe. They have a daughter Judy, five years of age.

At that time he was also Priest-in-Charge of Saint David's Church, Rayville and the Church of the Redeemer, Oak Ridge, La.

REV. F. O. STOCKWELL

MRS. F. O. STOCKWELL

Missionary Prisoner And Wife Back From War Area

The Rev. F. Olin Stockwell, missionary of the Methodist Church who was held a prisoner of the Chinese communists for 23 months, part of the time in solitary confinement, on trumped-up charges of espionage, will be the guest-speaker at Bastrop Kiwanis luncheon at 12:00 noon Tuesday, March 30, and in the Monroe District Missionary Rally, First Methodist Church, West Monroe, 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, March 30.

Mr. Stockwell was released by train into Hongkong on November 17, 1952, and two weeks later rejoined his family in Chicago.

Mr. Stockwell will speak on his experiences both as a missionary and as a prisoner, and on what life was like among the communists after the taking over by them of China's government.

Mr. Stockwell was a missionary in Chengtu, West China, when the communists overran that city. He could have gone out before the entering army, but elected to remain and attempt to carry on his work. Some months later, however, he was arrested and after a communist trial, when he had no chance to defend himself, was sentenced to prison. Among other punishments, he was given a course in "mind purging" and in communist indoctrination.

A native of Perry, Okla., Mr. Stockwell is a member of a Methodist family that has given missionaries to China, India, Burma, and Argentina and a number of ministers to the United States. He was educated at Oklahoma City College, Ohio Wesleyan University and Garrett Biblical Institute. He was ordained to the ministry in Oklahoma.

Entering the missionary service of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church in 1925, Mr. Stockwell was assigned to China, and engaged in evangelistic work in the Foochow conference of Fukien Province. Later he was transferred to West China and carried on evangelistic work - organizing churches and preaching points and conducting training conferences for Chinese ministers, besides preaching to large groups in both city and country regions - in Chengtu district, Szechuan Province. In this field of work he was considered one of the outstanding missionaries to China, and he had successfully built up the Christian community and constituency of his district when the communist civil disturbance began.

The first missionary service of Mr. and Mrs. Stockwell was in Foochow, where they travelled through the churches of the North and South Mintsing district conducting services, encouraging pastors and people, and gathered families into new congregations. In 1934 they were transferred to Chengtu in Sechuan Province, where they have had oversight of evangelistic work in both city and rural fields. Mrs. Stockwell's activities have been largely among the Christian and non-Christian women of the districts. She has also taught piano in the Fine Arts Department of the West China Union University, Chengtu.

After a furlough in the United States, Mr. and Mrs. Stockwell plan to return to missionary service in West China.

Youth Will Meet To Plan For Big Easter Ceremonial

Youth from all denominations of Twin City churches are invited and urged to attend a meeting of the Christian Youth Association at 2:30 p.m. today at Memorial Methodist Church, 401 Sherrouse Avenue. The Youth Division of Memorial Methodist will act as host and will provide the fellowship period following the regular meeting.

Principal matters on the program will include the formulation of plan for observing Easter in the traditional Easter Sunrise Service at Memorial Park Cemetery, highway 80, east. This marks the seventh season that the youth of the CYA have presented the service of worship for people of this area, and in the past thousands have thronged the site of the service.

Utilizing local school and institutional choirs, church youth choirs solos, instrumental music, devotional readings, prayers, and pageantry — the young people have always helped the many worshipers to feel in a very dramatic way the experience of Easter for themselves.

All Twin City youth and their pastors and adult advisors are invited to the meeting this afternoon.

Mike John, Jr. To Give Address On His New Book

Mike John, Jr., local businessman and author of the recently published book on Christian living, "Think Spiritually," will be the speaker at Memorial Methodist Church on Sunday evening at 7:30 when Memorial Methodist Men conduct "Laymen's Night." The meeting will be under the direction of the lay leader, Edwin O. Hinton.

Mr. John's book has been enthusiastically received throughout the country as a challenging reminder of the true way of thinking and living. As speaker, Mr. John will deliver a message on the title of the , "Think Spiritually."

The choir will be comosed of men, who will help in leading the congregational singing. Several songs, composed by a Monroe layman, A. L. Parker, will be sung. The youth choir of the church will sing a special number.

Ushers for the evening will be the "men of tomorrow" — several boys from the membership class.

Following the service there will be a time of fellowship during which the people may get acquainted with Mr. John and ask questions about his recent work as author.

Experience is no respector of persons, and she imparts her lessons to all. In our service this morning, we will emphasize some important lessons from "The Voice of Experience."

The Bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Louisiana, the Rt. Rev. Girault M. Jones, D. D., is today making his annual visitation to Grace church.

He will confirm a large class of candidates at the 9 a.m. service. This class is to be presented by the rector of Grace Church, Rev. John M. Allin.

The Bishop will be the celebrant and preacher at the 9:45 service, at which time the newly confirmed will make first communion.

Bishop Jones has recently observed the fifth anniversary of his consecration. Prior to his consecration as bishop he served as rector of St. Andrews Episcopal church in New Orleans.

The present class now being confirmed is the second one for the present year. A class was confirmed at this church last January by the Suffragan Bishop of the Diocese, Iveson B. Noland.

A large attendance is expected at the services today.

REV. FILER J. SEAL

Rev. F. J. Seal Is Now Olla Pastor; Revival Planned

Rev. Filer J. Seal, now assuming the pastorate of the Olla Baptist Church, took up his duties there March 2, coming from Victoria Church, Baton Rouge. He and Mrs. Seal are now busily engaged in getting acquainted with their new field.

Already he has brought highly inspirational messages to good-sized Sunday audiences.

Revival services will be held at this church April 11 through April 18 with the pastor bringing the messages. Music will be in charge of Roy C. Welch. Immediately prior to the revival there will be held prayer meetings in many homes.

Rev. J. B. Ryals Now Assuming Pastorate

Rev. J. B. Ryals, formerly of Fort Worth, Tex., has returned after attending the seminary there and is now assuming the pastorate of the Claiborne Baptist Church.

Mrs. Ryals, his wife, was formerly Martha Carroll of Monroe. They have a daughter Judy, five years of age.

Rev. Griffith Is To Be Speaker At Grace Church Here

The Rev. John M. Allin, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Monroe, announces that on Tuesday, March 30th, the Rev. H. Newton Griffith, rector of Grace Church, Lake Providence, La., will be the guest preacher at the Evangelical Service at 7:30 p.m.

He is the fourth guest preacher to be presented during this series of special services during Lent. The Reverend Griffith is well known in Monroe and has many friends here as he formerly served at Grace Church, Monroe, as assistant to The Rev. Edward Farren Hayward, Rector, in 1947-1949. At that time he was also Priest-in-Charge of Saint David's Church, Rayville and the Church of the Redeemer, Oak Ridge, La.

Prior to coming to Monroe, he served as Rector of the Church of the Epiphany, Opelousas, La., and Priest-in-Charge of Saint Mary's Church, Hamilton and St. James Church, Meridian, Tex. After leaving Monroe he was in charge of the Rayville Mission Field until 1951, at which time he became Rector of Grace Church, Lake Providence.

A cordial welcome is extended to friends of Grace Church to attend this special Evangelical Service.

THE HOME SHIFT—

Flowers Of Spring Now At Full Bloom

The first official week of spring has just passed, bringing with it beauty in the Twin Cities, in spite of the early drouth.

Some Beauty Spots

Thank you who have called in to tell me of outstanding gardens and plants. I'll list some of them for you for your Sunday's drive. Most of these I haven't seen, but a good gardener's judgment is as good as mine. Here they are: 709 Jackson St., the Colquette garden; Mrs. John Collins, corner of Fourth and Bres; Mrs. Mae Wooten, 2111 South Grand; Arkansas Avenue between Second and Third Streets; Mrs. Alan Sholars, 1206 Riverside. Mrs. Sholars has a lovely old brick wall around her garden, but just park for a few minutes in the street and look at the effect of the salmon azaleas, wisteria, and pink and white dogwoods in masses behind that wall.

At North Third and Downey Lane you'll see masses of thrift that make a beautiful show. The largest wild azalea (sometimes called pink honeysuckle) I've seen in the Twin Cities you'll find in Peggy Garnett's garden, 1606 North Second. They've simply defied nature because they are supposed to thrive in low moist places, yet in Peggy's yard they're growing with azaleas, in a well drained spot.

Garden Hints

I'm sure you've sprayed your roses and the ground around them with Bordeaux mixture for leaf spot. Every week or ten days, dust with sulphur to keep this under control. This is the time to divide chrysanthemums. Lots of people like to use cuttings, and these are more apt to give stronger and better plants. Watch your plants for aphids. Spray with Black Leaf 40 throughout the growing season.

Bearded iris can be divided after the blooming season. Work bone meal in the soil when transplanting. Also put bone meal around your early blooming bulbs that have finished blooming, and — of course — don't cut the tops. You can plait them for a neater effect.

Jo Evans says if you're growing sweetpeas and want them to grow a little faster, put a light sprinkling of nitrate alongside of the planting. Take care and don't get it on the leaves as it will burn.

Can you remember when cannas only came in gaudy colors and grew six feet tall? The new plants are lower and huskier and are available in softer tones which fit better in our color schemes. They are called the Grand Opera series because they have such names as La Traviata, Rigoletto, La Boheme, Aida, Mignon, and Madam Butterfly. The blooms from this plant work beautifully in flower arrangements. The bulbs should be planted now, and they like a rich soil.

Again the Lady Banksia rose overwhelms us. Monday afternoon late we were riding down the bayou past Mrs. F. T. Smith's garden. A very large rose of this kind was blooming profusely, and was reflected in the water. My, but, it was lovely. I'm sure you know this is the yellow thornless evergreen rose, that blooms this time every year. They're not easy to buy or root, but any effort you make to get one will be worthwhile when you see it bloom.

As usual, the Monroe Garden Club flower show was one of the most worthwhile educational events of the year. The children's division especially caught my attention. I was thinking what wonderful experience for the young ones. Not only experience working with plants but learning the spirit of competition—that we sometimes win and often lose.

Several people have called asking if that was white, (red bud) in Nodi Thather's black and white arrangement at the show. It was and its "white bud." It came from Miss Emmy Lou Biedenharn's garden. I've tried to find a plant for years but haven't been successful.

Get More From Coffee

America's favorite brew is soaring to higher price levels. Just how can we stretch that pound of coffee? First by getting a good brand, measure accurately and make no more than can be consumed at one meal. You don't get more out of coffee by boiling it. Clean the coffee pot after each using and boil it out once a week. Coffee contains oils that cling to the inside of the pot and become rancid. If you use a light roast coffee you could mix one part dark roast with four or six parts of light roast and you can't tell the dark roast is there. The dark makes stronger coffee, therefore you use less.

Dates

Miss Estelle Fournet, food preservation specialist with the Agricultural Extension Department, L. S. U. will be on my TV show on KNOE-TV Tuesday at 2:30. She'll show you how to take the guess out of jelly making.

Several housewives are ready to make draperies and cornices so we'll have that demonstration at the Agricultural Building, Friday, April 2 at 9:30 a.m. You're invited to attend.

See you next Sunday.

Keep your shower cap as fresh as you do your hair by swishing it in a solution of baking soda and water. Use three tablespoons of the soda to one quart of water. This prevents the formation of a dank, sour odor.

MRS. E. B. KNOTTS of Sicily Island, the incoming Fifth District director of the Federated Garden Clubs of Louisiana conferring with Mrs. Zollie Meadows of Ruston, the outgoing director, at the Garden Center over important Garden Club news.

SOUTHERN GARDENER—

By William Lanier Hunt

Leaf Miners Stir Interest Of Many

Since the column on holly leaf miners, the column has received inquiries from readers about other kinds of leaf miners. Just at the present time, Southern gardeners are thinking most about the boxwood leaf miner, another pest that operates between the two surfaces of boxwood leaves. The boxwood leaf miner is easy to control, compared to many other kinds, because it does not raise one generation after another all summer long like the columbine miner and the verbena leaf miner seem to do. If you suspect that you have boxwood leaf miners, examine the foliage for little blisters right now. Inside the blisters there will be little maggots which wiggle about. These are about ready to develop into little orange colored flies and come out of the leaves to lay their eggs. What you must do is to keep a watch over the maggots in the leaves and get ready to spray your boxwood just as soon as the maggots break through the surface of the leaves and begin to turn into yellow flies. Then is the time to spray the shrubs with a solution of two tablespoonfuls of wettable DDT in one gallon of water. This will kill the flies and prevent them from laying eggs in the new foliage and starting another generation to spoil your boxwood.

If boxwood leaf miner is not stopped, your bushes will gradually die back until they are gone. It is really not difficult to keep a watch over boxwood leaf miner and get them as they emerge. For about two weeks, they will be coming out and leaving tiny little pupa cases at each blister. These can be seen without even a reading glass, and as soon as they begin to show up, you should spray. It we have a cool spring, the miners may come out over a period of two weeks, so spray the second time in about a week again. In case you do not stop the boxwood leaf miner during the spring season and discover during the Summer that your plants are still infested with it, you can spray the young foliage with lindane and kill at least a great many of them. There is no reason to confuse leaf miners with nectria canker (See columns published during July and August) because this little canker spoils the whole leaf. If you have boxwood leaf miners, you will surely find wiggling tiny maggots in the foliage at each blister right now.

Those of us who love columbine often come to near despair over the leaf miner which never seems to let up on columbine foliage. The first generation comes out of the soil in the Spring and lays eggs on the undersides of columbine foliage. The eggs hatch and go right into the leaves and start tunneling. This damage certainly disfigures a columbine. The plants seem to grow right on in spite of it, but they are not very beautiful to look at. DDT in the same solution as for boxwood and other leaf miners will hold the columbine leaf miner down if you keep spraying the foliage every week or so.

Then there is the azalea leaf miner. This one seems always to be on a rampage somewhere in the South. Not a season passes without its working on azaleas somewhere or other. The experts in plant pests and diseases recommend an ordinary arsenate of lead spray to destroy azalea leaf miners. To get rid of leaf miners on verbena, chrysanthemums and Shasta daisies, keep using DDT. If you have only a few plants, you can, of course, snip off the leaves with miners in them and spray, too.

It seems a bit odd that, conscious as we are of black spot and other rose ailments, many of us fail to notice the little purplish spots on the stalks of our roses and just let them go from season to season without realizing that they are rose cankers and will eventually girdle the stems and kill them back. Rose stem canker is believed to come largely from the habit of leaving a stub above a leaf when we cut roses or prune them. Of course, it is impossible to cut very close to a leaf, but as little as possible of the stem should be left just above each leaf or bud when you are pruning or cutting roses for the house. The stub is a sort of dead end where, since growth cannot take place any longer, dead wood is bound to develop. Go over your roses now to see if there are small purplish or brown spots on the canes anywhere. If they are infected with cankers, you may as well cut them out right away. Cankers do not remain there without developing and will grow until they circle the canes and kill them. Moist conditions around rose bushes during the Winter are not good, and provide perfect conditions for rose cankers to live in. Where cow manure is put on as a winter mulch, is not too difficult to control. The summer sprays many gardeners use with copper in them will usually do it. We in the South should avoid the use of sprays with copper in them, however, during our very hot weather.

You may lose your dogwoods planted on the lawn where the lawn mower has to operate if you do not put some stakes or something around them to prevent their being bumped into and scarred over and over again. Many a front lawn has a cangerous dogwood with a canker started from this kind of injury. Your columnist recommends digging up and burning a young dogwood with a canker. An old and cherished one may be saved by cutting away the bark and wood for an inch or two and painting the wound with orange shellac if the canker is not too far gone.

A—The climbing honeysuckle, lonicera japonica halliana, provides a quick and easy covering. Space five to eight feet apart and plant in a fairly good soil.

Garden Center Notes

By Mary M. Jardine

Iris Buds Win First In Show

An out of state visitor to the Garden Center, Mrs. R. G. Elkins of El Dorado, Ark. has graciously extended an invitation to all interested gardeners to visit the Rose Show on April 16 at the home of Mrs. Paul Hyde, 14th Street, El Dorado, Ark. Time 2:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. Also an invitation to visit the Azalea Gardens of Colonel Barton in El Dorado which are open to the public at this season.

The Monroe Garden Club Flower Show was one of the most beautiful I have ever seen and those who missed it certainly missed a real treat. Many other interesting shows are planned in the district (see last Sunday's column). Try to see some or all of them.

Our flower show in the center this week was provided by the Jonesboro - Hodge Garden Club. Mrs. Zollie Meadows of Ruston and Mrs. E. B. Knotts of Sicily Island served as judges. We are pleased to note that all the horticulture was in the blue ribbon class. Blue ribbons were awarded to Miss Sue-Annie Stinson for Spring Glory narcissus and Poetaz Narcissus variety Geranium. Mrs. Jane Tardo, blue ribbon for yellow ranunculus.

Flowers Of Spring Now At Full Bloom

Some Beauty Spots

Thank you who have called in to tell me of outstanding gardens and plants. I'll list some of them for you for your Sunday's drive. Most of these I haven't seen, but a good gardener's judgment is as good as mine. Here they are: 709 Jackson St., the Colquette garden; Mrs. John Collins, corner of Fourth and Bres; Mrs. Mae Wooten, 2111 South Grand; Arkansas Avenue between Second and Third Streets; Mrs. Alan Sholars, 1206 Riverside. Mrs. Sholars has a lovely old brick wall around her garden, but just park for a few minutes in the street and look at the effect of the salmon azaleas, wisteria, and pink and white dogwoods in masses behind that wall.

At North Third and Downey Lane you'll see masses of thrift that make a beautiful show. The largest wild azalea (sometimes called pink honeysuckle) I've seen in the Twin Cities you'll find in Peggy Garnett's garden, 1606 North Second. They've simply defied nature because they are supposed to thrive in low moist places, yet in Peggy's yard they're growing with azaleas, in a well drained spot.

Garden Hints

I'm sure you've sprayed your roses and the ground around them with Bordeaux mixture for leaf spot. Every week or ten days, dust with sulphur to keep this under control. This is the time to divide chrysanthemums. Lots of people like to use cuttings, and these are more apt to give stronger and better plants. Watch your plants for aphids. Spray with Black Leaf 40 throughout the growing season.

Bearded iris can be divided after the blooming season. Work bone meal in the soil when transplanting. Also put bone meal around your early blooming bulbs that have finished blooming, and — of course — don't cut the tops. You can plait them for a neater effect.

Jo Evans says if you're growing sweetpeas and want them to grow a little faster, put a light sprinkling of nitrate alongside of the planting. Take care and don't get it on the leaves as it will burn.

Can you remember when cannas only came in gaudy colors and grew six feet tall? The new plants are lower and huskier and are available in softer tones which fit better in our color schemes. They are called the Grand Opera series because they have such names as La Traviata, Rigoletto, La Boheme, Aida, Mignon, and Madam Butterfly. The blooms from this plant work beautifully in flower arrangements. The bulbs should be planted now, and they like a rich soil.

Again the Lady Banksia rose overwhelms us. Monday afternoon late we were riding down the bayou past Mrs. F. T. Smith's garden. A very large rose of this kind was blooming profusely, and was reflected in the water. My, but, it was lovely. I'm sure you know this is the yellow thornless evergreen rose, that blooms this time every year. They're not easy to buy or root, but any effort you make to get one will be worthwhile when you see it bloom.

As usual, the Monroe Garden Club flower show was one of the most worthwhile educational events of the year. The children's division especially caught my attention. I was thinking what wonderful experience for the young ones. Not only experience working with plants but learning the spirit of competition—that we sometimes win and often lose.

Several people have called asking if that was white, (red bud) in Nodi Thather's black and white arrangement at the show. It was and its "white bud." It came from Miss Emmy Lou Biedenharn's garden. I've tried to find a plant for years but haven't been successful.

Get More From Coffee

America's favorite brew is soaring to higher price levels. Just how can we stretch that pound of coffee? First by getting a good brand, measure accurately and make no more than can be consumed at one meal. You don't get more out of coffee by boiling it. Clean the coffee pot after each using and boil it out once a week. Coffee contains oils that cling to the inside of the pot and become rancid. If you use a light roast coffee you could mix one part dark roast with four or six parts of light roast and you can't tell the dark roast is there. The dark makes stronger coffee, therefore you use less.

Dates

Miss Estelle Fournet, food preservation specialist with the Agricultural Extension Department, L. S. U. will be on my TV show on KNOE-TV Tuesday at 2:30. She'll show you how to take the guess out of jelly making.

Several housewives are ready to make draperies and cornices so we'll have that demonstration at the Agricultural Building, Friday, April 2 at 9:30 a.m. You're invited to attend.

See you next Sunday.

Keep your shower cap as fresh as you do your hair by swishing it in a solution of baking soda and water. Use three tablespoons of the soda to one quart of water. This prevents the formation of a dank, sour odor.

MRS. E. B. KNOTTS of Sicily Island, the incoming Fifth District director of the Federated Garden Clubs of Louisiana conferring with Mrs. Zollie Meadows of Ruston, the outgoing director, at the Garden Center over important Garden Club news.

SOUTHERN GARDENER—

By William Lanier Hunt

Leaf Miners Stir Interest Of Many

Since the column on holly leaf miners, the column has received inquiries from readers about other kinds of leaf miners. Just at the present time, Southern gardeners are thinking most about the boxwood leaf miner, another pest that operates between the two surfaces of boxwood leaves. The boxwood leaf miner is easy to control, compared to many other kinds, because it does not raise one generation after another all summer long like the columbine miner and the verbena leaf miner seem to do. If you suspect that you have boxwood leaf miners, examine the foliage for little blisters right now. Inside the blisters there will be little maggots which wiggle about. These are about ready to develop into little orange colored flies and come out of the leaves to lay their eggs. What you must do is to keep a watch over the maggots in the leaves and get ready to spray your boxwood just as soon as the maggots break through the surface of the leaves and begin to turn into yellow flies. Then is the time to spray the shrubs with a solution of two tablespoonfuls of wettable DDT in one gallon of water. This will kill the flies and prevent them from laying eggs in the new foliage and starting another generation to spoil your boxwood.

If boxwood leaf miner is not stopped, your bushes will gradually die back until they are gone. It is really not difficult to keep a watch over boxwood leaf miner and get them as they emerge. For about two weeks, they will be coming out and leaving tiny little pupa cases at each blister. These can be seen without even a reading glass, and as soon as they begin to show up, you should spray. It we have a cool spring, the miners may come out over a period of two weeks, so spray the second time in about a week again. In case you do not stop the boxwood leaf miner during the spring season and discover during the Summer that your plants are still infested with it, you can spray the young foliage with lindane and kill at least a great many of them. There is no reason to confuse leaf miners with nectria canker (See columns published during July and August) because this little canker spoils the whole leaf. If you have boxwood leaf miners, you will surely find wiggling tiny maggots in the foliage at each blister right now.

Those of us who love columbine often come to near despair over the leaf miner which never seems to let up on columbine foliage. The first generation comes out of the soil in the Spring and lays eggs on the undersides of columbine foliage. The eggs hatch and go right into the leaves and start tunneling. This damage certainly disfigures a columbine. The plants seem to grow right on in spite of it, but they are not very beautiful to look at. DDT in the same solution as for boxwood and other leaf miners will hold the columbine leaf miner down if you keep spraying the foliage every week or so.

Then there is the azalea leaf miner. This one seems always to be on a rampage somewhere in the South. Not a season passes without its working on azaleas somewhere or other. The experts in plant pests and diseases recommend an ordinary arsenate of lead spray to destroy azalea leaf miners. To get rid of leaf miners on verbena, chrysanthemums and Shasta daisies, keep using DDT. If you have only a few plants, you can, of course, snip off the leaves with miners in them and spray, too.

It seems a bit odd that, conscious as we are of black spot and other rose ailments, many of us fail to notice the little purplish spots on the stalks of our roses and just let them go from season to season without realizing that they are rose cankers and will eventually girdle the stems and kill them back. Rose stem canker is believed to come largely from the habit of leaving a stub above a leaf when we cut roses or prune them. Of course, it is impossible to cut very close to a leaf, but as little as possible of the stem should be left just above each leaf or bud when you are pruning or cutting roses for the house. The stub is a sort of dead end where, since growth cannot take place any longer, dead wood is bound to develop. Go over your roses now to see if there are small purplish or brown spots on the canes anywhere. If they are infected with cankers, you may as well cut them out right away. Cankers do not remain there without developing and will grow until they circle the canes and kill them. Moist conditions around rose bushes during the Winter are not good, and provide perfect conditions for rose cankers to live in. Where cow manure is put on as a winter mulch, is not too difficult to control. The summer sprays many gardeners use with copper in them will usually do it. We in the South should avoid the use of sprays with copper in them, however, during our very hot weather.

You may lose your dogwoods planted on the lawn where the lawn mower has to operate if you do not put some stakes or something around them to prevent their being bumped into and scarred over and over again. Many a front lawn has a cangerous dogwood with a canker started from this kind of injury. Your columnist recommends digging up and burning a young dogwood with a canker. An old and cherished one may be saved by cutting away the bark and wood for an inch or two and painting the wound with orange shellac if the canker is not too far gone.

Q—Please recommend a fast-growing vine to cover an ugly steep bank.

A—The climbing honeysuckle, lonicera japonica halliana, provides a quick and easy covering. Space five to eight feet apart and plant in a fairly good soil.

Garden Center Notes

By Mary M. Jardine

Iris Buds Win First In Show

An out of state visitor to the Garden Center, Mrs. R. G. Elkins of El Dorado, Ark. has graciously extended an invitation to all interested gardeners to visit the Rose Show on April 16 at the home of Mrs. Paul Hyde, 14th Street, El Dorado, Ark. Time 2:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. Also an invitation to visit the Azalea Gardens of Colonel Barton in El Dorado which are open to the public at this season.

The Monroe Garden Club Flower Show was one of the most beautiful I have ever seen and those who missed it certainly missed a real treat. Many other interesting shows are planned in the district (see last Sunday's column). Try to see some or all of them.

Our flower show in the center this week was provided by the Jonesboro - Hodge Garden Club. Mrs. Zollie Meadows of Ruston and Mrs. E. B. Knotts of Sicily Island served as judges. We are pleased to note that all the horticulture was in the blue ribbon class. Blue ribbons were awarded to Miss Sue-Annie Stinson for Spring Glory narcissus and Poetaz Narcissus variety Geranium. Mrs. Jane Tardo, blue ribbon for yellow ranunculus.

In the arrangement section first place was awarded to Mrs. Lewis Waldrip for a lovely triangular design of purple iris buds and blooms in a flat gray container. Second place award to Mrs. Lucille Rockett for a beautiful mass arrangement of pink carnations and aspidistra foliage in a square green container. Third place award to Mrs. Mabel Gatlin and Mrs. Hazel Acklin for a delightful arrangement using Wedgewood iris and yellow cupped daffodils in a soft blue container.

Mrs. R. R. Pigott, Ouachita parish's own botanist and horticulturist has loaned to the garden center from her library the following books: Wild Flowers by Homer D. House containing 364 full color illustrations and descriptive text. Field Book of American Wild Flowers and Field Book of American Trees and Shrubs by F. Schuyler Mathews. You get vitamins in a good diet—but be sure you get them.

Get Vitamins In Diet But Be Sure You Get Enough

Many people feel that vitamin capsules are a racket and completely unessential if they eat correctly. While this is true in that the first requirement for health is a well-balanced diet which is as full of minerals and vitamins as possible, yet reinforcement with commercial vitamins is helpful.

Vitamins are not medicine but food and are quite happy little friends because they make us feel gayer and better than we would without them.

The average good diet has enough vitamins to save us from tht real deficiency diseases but far too often not enough to give us that plus bonus in energy and health which lifts life out of the humdrum and makes every day sing.

Uncontrollable Factors

There are so many factors which enter into the vitamin potency of foods, factors over which we sometimes have no control. For instance, the soil the vegetables are grown in, the length of time between the garden and the table, storage losses anl the preparation of food, all play a part in the vitamin content of foods.

If you wish to tap this great source of vitality and good looks you should remember a few factors.

1. Eat brown rice or converted rice rather than the usual polished white rice.

2. Unless there is some individual reason for not doing so, eat the skins of fruits and vegetables. If you are going to peel or cut fruits or vegetables, do so just before eating or cooking them, never far ahead of time.

3. Cook with as little water as possible. If you do use water, cook vegetables dry or if you fail to do this save the water which is left in the pan and keep it in a tightly sealed jar for use in soups and sauces.

4. Never leave juices uncovered. Keep them in tightly sealed jars in the icebox.

Eat It Fresh

5. The habit of shopping for several days at a time is fine in many ways, but the least time between the garden and the table is always best.

6. Be sure that the whole wheat bread you buy has a large percentage of whole wheat flour.

Be careful about your citrus fruit or juice intake. Most people feel that they have met this requirement with a very small glass of orange juice for breakfast. If you are shooting at optimum vitality, this is not enough. Vitamin C deficiency has been correlated with chronic fatigue and a full quota is especially recommended for people from middle-age on.

7. Vitamin D is widely distributed in foods but in small amounts in most of them. Since sunshine is our greatest source, it seems wise to take this in capsule form during the winter months.

Eat as carefully as you can and if you wish to add even more to your vitamin intake, ask your doctor about which kind and how many to take.

Answer to Question No. 1

1. Yes. When each partner feels serenely secure with the other—about their opinions, spending their money, treatment of in-laws and friends, dividing their work and time—secure about life itself. Such couples can blurt out their thoughts without reserve. They don't have to watch every word or act, and can disagree about minor matters and make fun of each other's faults without anger. That keeps romance in marriage.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. Yes. As one psychologist says, "Words are dynamite." We constantly speak of labor and management as though laborers were pushed around by management. Employers and employes are terms less irritating. Instead of grievance committee, use determination committee. Instead of labor demands or management demands, why not use proposes? It's worth considering in these delicate times when words are dynamite.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. Yes. Sociologist L. S. Cottrell, says that some people can only love when they are on the receiving end. Others can love only where the object of their affections is a weak, dependent person. Others both hate and love the "loved" one at the same time. Some people simply do not know how to love another.

Your Problems

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Mrs. Landers: We have been married 12 years and have three children. All these years my husband has worked hard to get ahead and I have worked just as hard making ends meet rearing the children—one of whom has been sick for nine years—and keeping the home going. Now my husband is meeting with some success and feels it is my added job to entertain the "right people" to help him. He fails to appreciate that the house is shabby, that I have no clothes and that most of my talents lie in plain housekeeping. He feels that if I really want to help him I will sign up for a course in public speaking to overcome my self-consciousness and to gain poise. The whole thing frightens me. What is your opinion?—M.S.J.

You should spend time arguing? You should be on your knees thanking the good Lord for a husband who wants you to be at his side as he ascends the ladder to success. Jump at the chance to join a class in public speaking to gain poise; just getting away from home and having a new interest and outlet will make a new person of you and, at the same time, a better wife and mother. Forget the shabby house and your wardrobe ... your husband is smart enough to realize those things will have to be remedied, too. Take first things first. You married for "better or for worse," so grab at this chance as it is one of the few "for better" times!

Dear Mrs. Landers: I am 18 and in love with a boy of 23. We have been going steady for four years. During that time we have split up and gone back together repeatedly; it is always his fault but he is the one who always comes back, says he is sorry and we start again. Our last serious split-up lasted nine months during which time we did not speak. I wrote to him repeatedly but he did not answer. Now, he has called me, says he loves me and wants me to take him back. He claims he was a "silly kid" and did not know what he was doing. What do you think? —SKEE

M-m-m-boy! Did he hit it right on the head. He's a "silly kid" ... period. And at the age of 23 it is time he put his little blocks and toys away and grew up. Nine months and he refused to talk or to answer your letters. For heaven's sake, be glad you have the chance to ditch him ... he would break your heart six days a week and twice on Sunday if you marry him. Let him go, let him go!

In Hollywood

By Jimmy Fidler

Started From The Top

By GUY MADISON
(Guest Columnist)

HOLLYWOOD, March 27 — I guess I represent a reverse twist on Hollywood's beloved Horatio Alger theme in that I started in movies almost at the top, which is nice career planning if you can get it. I'll never be able to recount my years of hard, hard struggle, which are almost a standard of Hollywood biographies, because I was just plain lucky and hit the jackpot with almost no effort on my part.

From a ranch in Bakersfield, California, I went into the Navy in World War II. While bootcamping at San Diego, my picture on the cover of a service publication was spotted by Helen Ainsworth, an agent and talent scout, who convinced David O. Selznick, a producer on the grand scale, that I was potentially, at least, an actor.

Selznick put me under contract and while I was still in the Navy I appeared in "Since You Went Away," wearing my own gob uniform. I gladly replaced my real name, Robert Moseley, with Guy Madison, since the professional alias shielded me from the ribald jests of my shipmates.

There was a dip in my fortunes after I left Selznick. I guess I went too far eoo fast. Once I was nine months "between pictures," a Hollywood euphemism for being out of work.

I was finding it rather slow going when I decided to take a flier in TV. I was warned against it by my friends but went ahead and made a pilot video film in which I played Wild Bill Hickok. The Hickok series that followed became a big success. Then Warners spotted me and signed me for a starring role in its second 3-D picture, "The Charge at Feather River." Recently I completed the studio's first CinemaScope western, "The Command."

Looking back, I can see that my early success came too easily. I didn't appreciate it. And then there came a period of three or four years in which I wasn't particularly interested in acting for a living. Things are different now.

Outside of acting, my chief interests in life are hunting, fishing, mountain climbing and wildlife photography. I drive a pickup truck equipped with a bed and camping gear and can take to the woods from the studio without a moment's loss.

You can't be realistic in the kind of movies and TV shows I make unless you really know something about the things you're supposed to be doing. When I'm out in the woods as an actor, I want to act like a real woodsman and not do anything that would make me look foolish to people who know their stuff about the way game is stalked, fires made and trails followed.

I have never claimed to be a Shakespearean actor, but I heartily agree with King Richard III. That would be the monarch who muttered "A horse! A horse! My kingdom for a horse!"

For it was a horse, or a series of them, that brought new impulse to my screen career at a time when I was seriously considering abandoning Hollywood.

Warners secured for me a six-year-old thoroughbred named Penny, which had been training for four years to be a picture star and headlined him in "The Command," the studio's first production in CinemaScope. As a medical major with the U. S. Calvary shortly after the Custer massacre on the Little Big Horn, I am called upon to guide Penny through some of the most sensational outdoor action ever linking calvary and Indians.

I'm thoroughly at home in stories like "The Charge at Feather River" or "The Command." At least I know what I'm doing, and can follow direction.

"The Command" was laregly filmed on the vast Warner Ranch in the Santa Monica Mountains near Calabasas. The story, originally a Saturday Evening Post serial by James Warner Bellah, is that of a Cavalry doctor, soon to be discharged, who, through circumstances is forced to take over command of a scouting troop, and later two regiments of recruit infantry guarding an emigrant train.

Speaking of pictures, fortunately, I'm in a position where I don't have to take everything offered me. I haven't made a movie since I finished "The Command." But when I get a chance at an equally strong story and role, I'll grab it. I'm not being choosey; I just think I know what I can do.

ALERTED FOR ATTACK—Natives of the remote village of Anahout in Morocco are alerted to news of an attack by mountain bandit tribesmen in a scene from "Saadia," first M-G-M picture to be filmed in its entirety in French Morocco. Participating in the sequence are the famed Arab Mokhazni (French trained) troops. In insert are Cornel Wilde and Rita Gam, principals in the story's unusual romance. Mel Ferrer also stars in the Technicolor production, written, produced and directed by Albert Lewin. It opens today at the Jim Theatre and will continue through Saturday.

Bold Film Of Prison Life Is Coming Here

A picture that has received national attention from the moment it went into production will be the next hit attraction at the Paramount theatre, opening on Wednesday.

It is the Walter Wanger production for Allied Artists, "Riot in Cell Block 11," which was filmed almost in entirety within the walls and cell blocks of one of the largest penal institutions in the West, Folsom State Prison, near Sacramento, California.

The picture has given the screen two new stars with that suddeness that occasionally happens. They are Neville Brand, who has had increasingly better parts in 14 pictures since he went to Hollywood from the New York stage two years ago, and Leo Gordon, with almost an identical history.

"Riot in Cell Block 11" shows in dramatic detail the life of inmates in the United States penal institution of today, where overcrowding has imposed a problem affecting every citizen.

ALERTED FOR ATTACK—Natives of the remote village of Anahout in Morocco are alerted to news of an attack by mountain bandit tribesmen in a scene from "Saadia," first M-G-M picture to be filmed in its entirety in French Morocco. Participating in the sequence are the famed Arab Mokhazni (French trained) troops. In insert are Cornel Wilde and Rita Gam, principals in the story's unusual romance. Mel Ferrer also stars in the Technicolor production, written, produced and directed by Albert Lewin. It opens today at the Jim Theatre and will continue through Saturday.

Bold Film Of Prison Life Is Coming Here

A picture that has received national attention from the moment it went into production will be the next hit attraction at the Paramount theatre, opening on Wednesday.

It is the Walter Wanger production for Allied Artists, "Riot in Cell Block 11," which was filmed almost in entirety within the walls and cell blocks of one of the largest penal institutions in the West, Folsom State Prison, near Sacramento, California.

The picture has given the screen two new stars with that suddeness that occasionally happens. They are Neville Brand, who has had increasingly better parts in 14 pictures since he went to Hollywood from the New York stage two years ago, and Leo Gordon, with almost an identical history.

"Riot in Cell Block 11" shows in dramatic detail the life of inmates in the United States penal institution of today, where overcrowding has imposed a problem affecting every citizen.

Planning Necessary In Beautifying Home

More planning for better living is one of the greatest needs of the family today. The family is not spending enough time to thinking through what the family needs and wishes to achieve over a period of years. Too much time and money is spent doing piece-time jobs. Many mistakes are being made in remodeling the home because of the lack of planning. That long-waited-for bathroom is being put in the wrong place. Beautifying the surrounds shows lack of planning by many families.

Extension Service is anxious to help you with your planning of a long-time program. This service is helping you to do better planning—not giving you all the answers. It helps you think. If interested, call 3-2251 for this help.

Buying New Furniture

New furniture, like a new home, is bought to last a long time, therefore, it is good economics to choose pieces that are well constructed and well styled. It would be wiser to answer three questions before any purchase is made:

1. In style and design, does it satisfy the family's preference?
2. Is it suited to the family's mode of living?
3. Is it well constructed and well finished?

Snap judgment may lead to later regret. You should be very sure that the selections are right for you in so far as beauty and style are concerned and that they are suited to your home and to your needs. One authority once said, "Buying only what you know to be useful and believe to be beautiful." It is still a good rule to follow in purchasing furniture.

Handling Emotions

Do you have a child who has temper tantrums? The Family Life leader in each Home Demonstration club will lead a discussion, during the month of April, on how to handle children with temper tantrums. Why don't you visit the club nearest you or become a part of the club in your community. The agent had two calls last week from women who wanted to know how to go about getting to be a member of a Home Demonstration Club.

The home demonstration club is different to any other club in several ways. Each club has the service of the Home Demonstration Agent. The Home Demonstration Club is an educational organization and not a service club.

The services of the agent are paid for by local, state and federal funds — so the services are yours just by the asking.

All home demonstration club members will be happy to have you in the group. Just call the agent or president of the club in your community and she will give you the place and time of meetings. The presidents are as follows: Bosco, Mrs. J. R. Lee; Cadeville, Mrs. J. R. Haynes; Chenlere, Mrs. Clarence Frost; Claiborne, Mrs. C. D. Henderson; Colony, Mrs. L. J. Bower; Cypress, Mrs. N. Pinton; Drew, Mrs. P. M. Donald; Eureka, Mrs. Opal Garland; Fairbanks, Mrs. J. P. McKnight; Lakeview, Mrs. Merle Johnston; Lamkin, Mrs. D. L. Beavers; Lenwil, Mrs. L. A. Whitlock; Liberty, Mrs. Loyd Coon; Logtown, Mrs. J. B. Filhoil, Sr.; McClendon, Mrs. Connie Goodwin; Okaloosa, Mrs. Elzie Cummings; Progressive, Mrs. G. M. Younger, Sr.; Thrifty Homemaker, Mrs. Kenneth Lee; Sterlington, Mrs. O. H. Manhart; Swartz, Mrs. W. J. Roper; Watson, Mrs. J. C. Rayner; Woodlawn, Mrs. H. H. Roberts.

White Iris and Red Buds

Have you noticed how beautiful are our native white iris and red buds? Some have been blooming more than a month. Why not use these in our landscape planting? They are happy to live among us. Dr. Allen, of the National Rose Association, who spoke in Monroe several years ago, said, "Why try to grow those flowers which are not happy to live among us when we have so many that are happy with us." No flower is common so long as it is beautiful. Let's use more white iris and red buds.

Planning for More Useful and Beautiful Home Grounds.

Mrs. Loyd Coon and Mrs. J. A. Kilpatrick of Liberty Club are determined to improve the home grounds. Both need and are planning to use retaining walls and terraces, as the ground is hilly and the soil washes away when it rains.

You should see the two pearl bushes at Jimmie Kilpatricks, they are huge and she says they have bloomed constantly since January. The pearl bush is a fast grower and is also a cheap plant at our nurserymen. Now don't forget to plant some vinca. It is the plant with white blossoms used each summer at front of the agricultural building in West Monroe. The dryer it gets the more it glistens. Plant some seed now.

See you next Sunday.

Here's how to keep the cork in your glue from getting stuck: After using it for the first time, dip the cork in melted wax, allowing it to dry evenly before putting it back.

LET'S HOPE THEY NEVER DO, MIK.

RAMA, YOU TOOK OVER OUR OLD SINGH GANG WHEN YOU KILLED THE PHANTOM. DID YOU REALLY KILL HIM?

THERE'S ALL THAT'S LEFT OF HIM. WHY?

REMEMBER THE OLD SAYING—"IF THE PHANTOM COMES TO DESTROY GULLIQUE, THERE'LL BE A DOUBLE RAINBOW IN THE SKY?"

SURE, I REMEMBER. SO WHAT?

STEVE CANYON by MILTON CANIFF

THE DOPE-CRAZED PILOT KNOCKS STEVE OUT AFTER THE AIRPLANE IS SET ON AUTOMATIC PILOT...THEN HE DRAGS CANYON BACK TO THE CABIN AND TIES HIM UP. NEXT, HE FORCES HERSELF MULDOON INTO THE SAME SITUATION...

DON'T LOOK FOR YOUR CHINESE RED FRIENDS, BOSS-DOLL! WE'RE BEYOND THEIR RADAR RANGE!

MIGHT AS WELL LET ME DO THIS WITHOUT FIGHTING BACK, MME. MULDOON! I COULD SHOOT YOU RIGHT NOW!

YOU MAY HAVE THIS SHIPMENT OF HEROIN! -JUST TAKE ME DOWN TO AN UNINHABITED ISLAND!

HEAR HOW SHE PLEADS FOR HER LIFE!! -BUT IT IS NOT ENOUGH, SHE-DEVIL...

I WANT YOU TO THINK ABOUT HOW YOU TREATED MY WIFE — AS YOU FALL TO THE OCEAN!

YOU AND THE MAN YOU HIRED TO REPLACE ME!

I'LL GET THE CAN OF DRINKING WATER TO REVIVE CANYON SO YOU CAN SYMPATHIZE WITH EACH OTHER ON THE WAY DOWN!

AS THE HOPPED-UP PILOT GOES FORWARD IN THE AIRPLANE, HERSELF MULDOON TRIES FRANTICALLY TO THINK OF AN ESCAPE ...THEN SHE SPOTS A TOW CABLE! HOOKING ONE END TO A TIE-DOWN RING ON THE FLOOR, SHE EASES THE OTHER HOOK OVER THE ROPE BINDING HER TO STEVE

WAKE UP, CANYON! YOU'RE TO BE QUEEN OF THE MAY!

HERE COMES THE FISH FOOD LIFT!

GERONIMO!

AS HE KICKS STEVE AND HERSELF MULDOON FROM THE DOOR, THE DRUG ADDICT'S FOOT IS CAUGHT IN THE TOW CABLE AND HE IS THROWN INTO SPACE
